Milsap To Entertain Poultry Federation

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Country music star Ronnie Milsap will entertain the Pennsylvania poultry industry on Wednesday evening, April 22, at the Hershey Convention Center.

The occasion is the 25th annual fund raising banquet for the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation. Festivities begin with a social at 5:30 p.m. and dinner is served at 7 p.m. The Ronnie Milsap Show is scheduled to begin at 9 p.m. and conclude at 10 p.m.

The Pennsylvania Poultry Federation is the state's only farm organization that devotes full time to the problems and concerns of the poultry and egg industries. Their activities include legislation, research, disease control, government relations, promotion, educational programs, student scholarships, 4-H and FFA support and public relations.

Tickets are $125 per person and can be purchased by calling the Federation office in Harrisburg at (717) 652-7530.

Fred Bohn uses the telephone to initiate contacts with representatives of places of interest which could be included on a National Young Farmers convention itinerary.

MT. AETNA (Berks Co.) — A prediction: about 1,200 to 1,500 people from all across the United States are going to converge in southcentral Pennsylvania in 1995.

Once here, these people will travel in various groups roaming the countryside, scanning, observing the area's businesses — from agriculture to nuclear power generators — its recreation, history, traditions, and resources.

It's not a science fiction story, nor a supernatural phenomenon.

The prediction is based on the expressed desire of Fred Bohn, the person in charge of the efforts to get the 1995 National Young Farmers Convention to be held here.

He said this week that he intends to put a lot of effort into seeing that Pennsylvania has the best shot at getting selected as the site for the next convention.

But he is going to need cooperation.

Bohn, a dairy farmer near Mt. Aetna, in Berks County, recently volunteered to head up an effort to get the 1995 convention in Pennsylvania.

Every year, the national group

Chicks Become 'Superbirds' If Critical Needs Are Met

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — If a seven-pound baby grew at the same rate that today's turkey grows, when the baby reaches 18 weeks of age, it would weigh 1,500 pounds.

"We can now process 30-pound birds at 17 weeks," said Dr. Bill Emory, who spoke to 126 turkey producers and industry representatives at the Pennsylvania Turkey Conference on Wednesday.

What many producers forget, along the way to growing the "superbird" of today and tomorrow — with faster growth, greater leanness and more meat — is "what it's all about," said Emory.

Emory, veterinarian for Cuddy Farms, Monroe, N.C., said growers and processors should understand how important the environment is to overall bird's health and productivity. If the industry is going to continue to provide consumers with a bigger bird for a better price, then they should take time to look at the bird's environment from the hour it is hatched until it is shipped for processing.

Bird care

Emory said the care the bird receives in the first few days of life will determine whether it will survive. "The first few days of this

Heald Develops DHIA Farm Management Tool

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)— Farmers who participate in the Dairy Herd Improvement Association receive a monthly report that reveals vital information about their herd's performance. But many farmers, hard-pressed for time to analyze the complex reports, aren't making the best use of this information.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA) has developed a new way to help dairy farmers use DHIA data to boost productivity. Designed with the help of experts in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, the Herd Performance Evaluator Program simplifies the task of interpreting monthly DHIA reports.

"Most dairy herds have the genetic potential to produce more milk," says Dr. William Heald, Penn State professor of dairy science, who helped design the program. "Farmers can get back many dollars for each dollar spent on DHIA if they use the records to identify their herd's weaknesses.

"The Herd Performance Evaluator can analyze DHIA data and summarize the results in a one-page report that pinpoints the herd's two most costly problems."

The Herd Performance Evaluator Program uses a DHIA mainframe computer to analyze a farmer's statistics and target areas for improvement, such as reproduction, mastitis, peak milk production, lactation persistency, dry matter intake, income over feed costs, genetic potential and other economically significant factors. "The evaluator takes this complicated data and applies it to the goals you've set for your herd," Heald says. "It compares your herd with others that match your goals, identifying the two most important problems that stand between you and those goals.

"Once the top problems are identified, the computer searches your herd's DHIA records for information related to the problems. This gives farmers and their advisers clues to the source of the problems, which they can use to plan new management practices to improve production. The next month's report can be used to evaluate the herd's progress and the effect of management changes."

The program also allows subscribers to identify cows that require special attention, based on

Conservation Techniques, New Equipment Improve Farm's Livelihood

OXFORD (Chester Co.) — In the meantime, forget about mandatory compliance with H.B. 496 or a similar state nutrient management law.

Instead, comply with the Yarnall Law — a version using widely successful and highly structured conservation and nutrient management practices.

It was a combination of practices and years of devotion to conservation farming that recently netted the Yarnall Farm — operated by Hoopes, wife Jean and family — recognition by the Chester County Conservation District as Farm of the Year.

Yarnall's 160-acre dairy farm employs a wide variety of conservation practices such as field contours, tiling, grass diversions, and contour waterways to save soil and prevent vital nutrient runoff from the farm. Containing the soil is the whole idea, according to Hoopes.

Contour-planned

The farm was purchased in 1936. Soil containment practices started long ago — 1944 to be exact, when Hoopes was a junior in high school and earning his FFA American Farmer degree. At that time, the farm, which was made up with simple strips and huge exercise lots for dairy cattle, was finally contour-planned by the extension office.

The land was tiled in the early 1950s and an additional five acres were dug. Rocks were rounded up by hand to make way for more land cultivation soon after.

In the mid-1950s, a large grass

In 1956, four stalls with milking pipeline were installed in the milking house. According to Hoopes Yarnall, in 1988 a double-4 milking parlor was installed.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer Market

Wednesday, March 25, 1992

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was light to moderate and generally unaggressive. Seller offerings were fully adequate to ample. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 45 to 57 cents. Slaughter schedules were heavy. Live supplies remained moderate. Weights were in a full range but were often heavier than desired. Trade sentiment was about steady. In the parts complex, all items were at least adequate for the light and spotty call. Wings and drumsticks were noted in heavy supply and forced for sale at several points.

USDA DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY WHEAT PRICES SUFFERED ADDITIONAL LOSSES WEDNESDAY ON LATE FUND SELLING; CORN PRICES SLIPPED ON SCANT NEARBY EXPORT BUSINESS; SOYBEAN PRICES JUMPED LATE FROM SHORT COVERINGS ON BOARD. WHEAT STEADY TO 5 CENTS LOWER. CORN STEADY TO 2 CENTS LOWER. SORGHUM 2 TO 4 CENTS LOWER. SOYBEANS 2 TO 8 CENTS HIGHER. FUND SELLING BEGAN LATE IN TRADE SESSION AS TRADERS AWAITING USDA'S PROSPECTIVE PLANTINGS REPORT DUE OUT TUESDAY AFTERNOON. ANTICIPATED EXPORT DEMAND FROM CIS AND OTHER FOREIGN COUNTRIES, MAY ASSIST IN KEEPING PRICES FROM SLIPPING MUCH FURTHER. CIS HAS 90 MILLION DOLLARS DESIGNATED FOR U.S. WHEAT IN APRIL. CORN PRICES CONTINUED TO DECLINE WITH TRADERS TAKING LONG LIQUIDATIONS AND SQUARING POSITIONS BEFORE TUESDAY'S USDA PLANTINGS REPORT. SHARP INCREASES IN CORN PRODUCTION IS EXPECTED IN NEXT WEEK'S REPORT. OVERALL SLOW DOWN IN EXPORT LINE-UP, PRESSURED CORN PRICES LOWER. REPORTS INDICATE GOOD WEATHER IN ARGENTINA, SEEN PRODUCING EXCELLENT CORN YIELDS. SHORT COVERINGS TAKEN LATE IN SESSION, SENT BEAN PRICES SHARPLY HIGHER. INCREASED EXPORT DEMAND AND SEVERAL OFFERS ON THE BOOKS, ADDED STRENGTH TO BEAN PRICES.

EXPORT NEWS: TAIWAN BOUGHT 54,000 TONNES U.S. NO. 2 YELLOW SOYBEANS FOR MAY/JUNE. USDA ACCEPTED A BID TO COVER THE SALE OF 2,600 TONNES OF SOYOIL TO THE CIS UNDER EEP.

Feeding for high production has always been a delicate balancing act. But today, based on the results of breakthrough research into the effects of Rumen Available Protein® and Rumen Available Carbohydrate® on milk production, Agway has pinpointed the critical impact of synchronized nutrients on milk production. So you can make more milk, more predictably, more profitably than ever.

And only Agway puts the power of this new generation of RAP®/RAC® balanced feed and dairy ration software—Synchro-Max 2000—at your fingertips. Field studies at working dairy farms just like yours have shown average increased milk production of over three pounds per day per cow using Synchro-Max 2000.

With the push of a button, your Agway Farm Enterprise salesperson can custom-design a feeding program to maximize your production and dramatically increase income over feed costs using RAP®/RAC® regulated rations.

But that's not all he can do. From dairy feed firsts like NutriTech® and Pro:Right to innovative top-dresses like Ultra:Lac 22 to this latest development in RAP®/RAC® rations—Synchro-Max 2000—nobody knows more about getting the most out of your cows than your Agway Farm Enterprise salesperson.

Call him today. He'll give you a hand lifting production levels to new heights.

WHO SHOWS YOU HOW TO LIFT A 20,000 LB. COW WITH ONE FINGER?

An Agway Farm Enterprise salesperson computes the impact of RAP®/RAC® regulated rations on Aaron Donnan's high-production herd as they enter their double 16 milking parlor in Pifford, NY

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

SILK WORMS BEGIN TO SPIN.

ALL FOOLS DAY

Is there anyone who hasn't been on the receiving end of an April Fool's joke at some point in their life? Nearly everyone has been caught at least once. Young and old alike enjoy playing practical jokes and sending others on foolish errands. It seems the custom has been around forever. Although its origins are hazy, many folklorists believe the tradition may stem from 1582 in France when the Gregorian calendar moved New Year's Day from March 25 to January 1. Those first April Fools got caught by the calendar, rather than friends. Incidentally, in France, the person fooled is called à poisson d'avril, literally, an April fish. Anyone who has ever been "fished in" by a practical joke will know how they feel.

He is not a wise man who cannot play the fool on occasion. — English Proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

EAR WISE

It only takes 1/20,000 of a second to turn off a light, so even if you'll "be right back," turn off the light, it saves energy and doesn't waste time. The exception to this is fluorescent lights, which work more efficiently if left on, rather than turned off and on many times in a short period. If a light must be on for long periods, switch to fluorescent fixtures or try the new compact fluorescent bulbs, which are even more energy-efficient and usually can be used with existing fixtures.

MAPLE SYRUP PIE

1½ tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 egg yolks
⅛ teaspoon salt
1½ cups maple syrup
1 cup chopped walnuts
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 baked pie shell
whipped cream

Cream butter and flour. Add egg yolks, salt, syrup, and cook in double boiler until thick. Add nutmeats and vanilla. Pour into baked pie shell, let cool, and top with whipped cream.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Warm, showers north and west; colder, freezing rain south coast, snow west.

SOUTHEAST: Rainy and mild, clear and hot Florida, heavy rain and flooding west; sunny and warm; then cold.

MIDWEST: Heavy rain, snow north; clear and warm, then cold, rain, and snow.

NORTHWEST: Cold, rainy coast, sleet and snow inland, then clearing and milder.

SOUTHWEST: Cold, rainy, snow mountains, sunny California, warmer mid-week, cold on weekend.

Bicep is the performance corn herbicide. Apply up to 30 days before planting and let spring rains incorporate the herbicide for you. You'll keep your corn yields up and weed pressure down.

We recommend Bicep because it delivers the best broad-spectrum control available in a prepack at a low cost. Plus, it controls up to four weeks longer than other herbicides.

Just one application gives superior control of tough weeds and grasses...as they germinate. This season, ask us about a program featuring Bicep.

OPINION

Quality Assurance

The American Veterinary Medical Association and the National Milk Producers Federation have developed a 10-point program for Dairy Quality Assurance (DQA).

This new program started in January. Several emerging factors make the DQA program timely and important to the dairy industry:

- Adverse publicity on drugs in milk.
- Consumer concerns for food safety and freedom from adulterants.
- Agriculture and veterinary profession concerns that some drugs may be removed from the market and that extra-label drug use by veterinarians could be in jeopardy.
- New regulations on milk testing.

The Pasteurized Milk Ordinance (PMO) regulates grade A milk in the U.S.

The PMO is developed by the National Conference of Interstate Milk Shippers and is administered by the Food and Drug Administration (Center for Food Safety and Applied Nutrition) and state governments.

In some states, such as Pennsylvania, state-approved dairy sanitarians employed by milk co-ops and independent milk buyers are the front line for administration of PMO regulations. These inspectors are check-tested by state and federal inspectors.

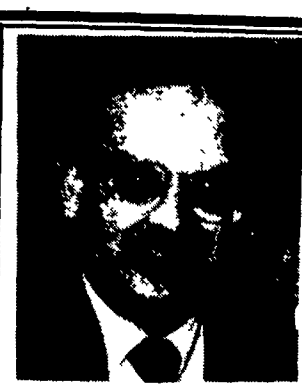
Right now, the law requires that all tanker loads of milk be tested for beta-lactams and random sampling are required for other classes of drugs or specific drugs. In addition, all positive antibiotic or inhibitor tests, whether screening or official, must be reported to state and federal regulatory agencies.

Residue violations result in dumping of affected milk plus a two-day suspension. Penalties escalate for repeat violations and residue violations result in loss of grade A permit status. A temporary permit can be issued after the 2-day suspension, but to regain permanent grade A status, the producer must satisfactorily complete the 10-point DQA program with his/her veterinarian.

One other fact should be noted. As of July 1, 1992, the regulatory somatic cell count limit will drop from 1,000,000 to 750,000/ml.

The 10-point DQA program is available on a voluntary basis right now. And every dairyman should volunteer on this one. Quality assurance not only provides on-farm documentation that consumers receive a quility product, dairymen have the assurance that the FDA inspector will not be knocking on the milk house door.

Farm Forum



NOW IS THE TIME

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

Just take a drive with your family any day of the week through the countryside of Chester Co., in spring, summer, fall and winter, it's one of the prettiest counties around.

The family farms, chicken, dairy, pigs, cattle, goats, mushroom and horse farms, make our county a picture postcard year around, its soil for crops outstanding.

- Family farmers are found in the fields in the spring planting and harvesting in the fall.
- Wives help them, little boys follow them, the Agriculture Dept. confuses them, city relatives visit them, meals wait for them, the weather can delay them.
- When your car stalls along the road, a farmer is a considerate, courteous, inexpensive road service.
- When a farmer's wife suggest he buy a new suit, he can quote from memory every expense he is certain will crop up this year.
- He likes sunshine, good food, country fairs, cow auctions, children caring for calves, sitting on the front porch on a Sunday afternoon with the family.
- He is not much for droughts, ditches, throughways, experts, and weeds.
- He works 365 days a year, sometimes 18 to 20 hrs. a day.
- Nobody else is so far from the telephone, or so close to God.
- Nobody else gets so much satisfaction out of modern plumbing, favorable weather, and good old homemade ice cream.
- Nobody else can remove all things from his pockets, and on

To Check Fire Extinguisher

Once a year you should have your fire extinguishers checked and serviced.

If you do not have fire extinguishers located at key areas where a fire may start, you should consider purchasing them. Local fire companies, fire extinguisher sales firms, and insurance companies have people who will help you decide where you need fire extinguishers and what type.

Fire extinguishers are designed to control certain types of fires. Make sure your extinguishers will control the type of fire most likely to occur at its location.

Make sure you inform your fire insurance carrier that you have installed fire extinguishers on your farm. Many insurance companies offers reduced premiums when these and other safety procedures are implemented.

Points To Consider When Buying A Computer

Prices of personnel computers are continually falling as technology advances.

Equipment is often discounted when it is not state of the art. As a result, you might be considering buying a computer.

First you need to evaluate your needs. Make a list of the things you want your computer to do.

Talk with other farmers and find out the types of software (computer programs that tell the computer what to do) they are using and like. The cardinal rule of computer buying is identify the software first and then buy the computer best designed to run your software.

Remember that the various brands of personal computers are not always compatible. Have a demonstration of the software on the computer to make sure it will run on that make of computer.

Buying a computer is like buying any other type of farm equipment. Ask a lot of questions and buy from a reputable dealer that has adequate service and support.

To Prevent Tractor Overturns

As spring planting season is rapidly approaching, take time to make sure your tractor is in safe operating condition.

Tractor overturns have been a leading cause of crippling and fatal farming injuries.

Items to consider include:

- Adjust the tractor seat, steering wheel, and mirrors for comfort and convenience of the operator.
- Fasten seat belt if the tractor has a rollover bar.
- Reduce speed when turning, crossing slopes, and on rough, slick or muddy surfaces.
- Set the wheel tread as wide as possible.
- Hitch only to the drawbar and hitch points recommended by the manufacturer.
- Lock brake pedals together before traveling in transport gear.
- With a front end loader, go slow and keep the load low when shuttling and turning.

Think safety at all times. Let's make 1992 a very safe year on your farm.

Mark 8:27 through 9:13
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 55:1-13

If Madison Avenue were put in charge of handling publicity and promotion for Christianity and were given Mark 8 as their resource material, I can pretty well imagine their response. They would play up Peter's confession of Jesus as the Christ (8:27-30) and eliminate entirely Jesus' words in the rest of the chapter.

Jesus, Mark tells us, did just the opposite. When, in answer to Jesus' question, "But who do you say that I am?", Peter replies, "You are the Christ," Jesus "charged them to tell no one about him." Why? I think Jesus wanted them to keep this a secret because he knew he would have to change their popular understanding of the Messiah. If his followers were going to recognize him as the Christ, he didn't want them to continue in their ignorance of the real meaning of this common term. For him, being the Messiah meant something quite different from the popular understanding. Many of them would expect that he would lead a popular uprising against their Roman occupiers.

A TURN-OFF

So what does being the Christ involve? Answer: the very things that are likely to discourage people from following him. "And he began to teach them that the Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders and the chief priests and the scribes, and be killed, and after three days rise again" (8:31). We can understand how Peter must have felt when he heard this and contradicted Jesus forcefully. A suffering, dying Messiah is not what we want to hear about. But that is exactly what Jesus promised us. And this s not a little disagreement of opinion; Jesus' response to this is harsh: "Get behind me, Satan. For you are not on the side of God, but of men" (8:33).

Not only is Jesus' concepion of the Messiah a guaranteed turn-off for some people, but his concepion of a Christian follower no less disturbing: "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow ne" (8:34b). Can just what kind of results we'd have in finding and enlisting new nembers if those words of Jesus were at the very top of their membership application! Join us here at St. Alban's Church and we can practically guarantee you a cross!

N0 SACRIFICES, PLEASE

This would be a turn-off because none of us want to be in the position of sacrificing anything, least of all ourselves. We become Christians to get something, not give it. We join the church for the sake of being protected from danger, not to subject ourselves to it. We go to church so that we can be assured of happiness and peace of mind. Least of all does anyone want to lose his or her life, regardless of how worthy the cause.

That's the part Madison Avenue promoters would want to downplay. But, only because they — and millions of others—have missed the point. Being willing to lay down one's life doesn't mean that we will lose it; but, in fact, it is the Only way to save it. "For whoever would save his life will lose it; and whoever loses his life for my sake and the gospel's will save it" (8:35). Jesus also says, "For what does it profit a man, to gain the whole world, and forfeit his life?" (8:36). The fact of it is that lots of people—myself included sometimes — say, "I'd rather have the whole world, if you don't mind."

Our problem is that we don't realize that the only way to "have it all," is to be willing to "give it all away."

Quality core and dense shell bale after bale.

New Idea round balers make bales with dense shells that resist moisture while the soft core promotes curing. You make top-quality bales...bale after bale.

Because New Idea round balers feature a big, open throat design, bales start easily...without plugging. Our electric auto-tie control makes tying bales easy.

Best of all, you'll find our round balers are just one segment of our hay equipment line. Disc mower conditioners, disc mowers, sickle mowers, sickle mower conditioners, rakes and hay handling tools are all available through your White-New Idea dealer.

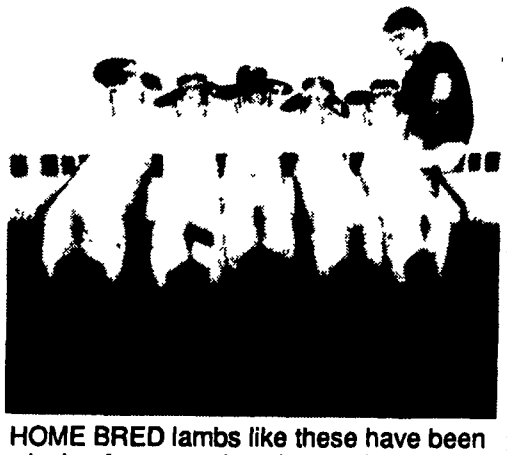
MEAT MATTERS MOST



HOME BRED lambs like these have been winning for me and my buyers in the Mid-Atlantic area. They LOOK GOOD. They HANDLE GOOD. They CUT GOOD. My latest triumph was Grand Champion carcass at the 1991 Keystone International Livestock Exposition. Check these stats.

Eastern Opposes GATT Proposals

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Lewis Gardner, president of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative Association, recently sent a letter to U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan that said the federal administration is violating promises to U.S. dairy farmers in its dealings in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) discussions.

His letter was written after learning that unexpected proposals are being made to resolve the Uraguay Round farm trade talks.

Included in these discussions by the U.S. State Department and European Community (EC) is a recommendation to release direct income payments to EC farmers from the EC's commitments to reduce farm supports.

"The Administration is going back on its word to dairy farmers regarding Section 22," Gardner wrote.

For five years, U.S. dairymen have realized the potential to lose Section 22 dairy import quotas if there is a Uraguay Round agreement, but they have been assured that other countries would make similar concessions on dairy.

Gardner said he is concerned with the overall attitude of the Bush administration toward agricultural policy, and dairy policy in particular.

As president of Eastern and the Regional Cooperative Marketing Association (RCMA), Gardner said he wanted to make clear the position of Northeast dairy farmers regarding administration policy.

Eastern, a Syracuse-based dairy co-op, operates in a nine-state area with 3,100 member farm families. The majority of those member-owners are located in New York, Pennsylvania and Vermont.

MANHEIM TOWNSHIP (Lancaster Co.) — Members and employees of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative met Wednesday at the Eden Resort and Conference Center in Manheim Township to hold their annual business meeting and elect board members and reorganize.

In addition, H. Louis Moore, Penn State University professor of agricultural economics, became only the 14th recipient of the dairy cattle artificial insemination cooperative's Extension Award, a serivce-to-the-industry award.

Reelected to the board of directors were Daniel Hudson, of Viola, Delaware; James Kreider, Quarryville; Dwight Hawbaker, Greencastle; and Lee Kummer, Evans City.

New to board are Glenn Kloos, Mercer, and David Naugle, of Centerville.

Those elected Wednesday serve terms which expire in 1995.

As a result of re-organization, the board officers are now James Kreider, president; David Hileman, of Tyrone, vice president; Dwight Hawbaker, secretary; and Clyde Robison, of Coal Center, treasurer. Additional board members elected to sit on the seven-member executive committee include Earl Furhman, of Hanover; H. Donald Allison, Clymer; and Lee Kummer, of Evans City.

In other business, the Extension Award recognition program, started years ago, was created "to publicly recognize individual extension agents, specialists and others who have been supporters of Atlantic, the A.I. industry and cooperatives, and who have made a significant contribution to our dairy industry," said David Slusser, outgoing president.

"We have made these recognitions at our annual meeting, only when a worthy recipient is identified for our consideration," Slusser said.

The presentation was made immediately following a talk Moore gave on the outlook of agriculture this year and beyond.

A lot of Moore's work is communicating his analyses of the agricultural economy; looking at all the factors which affect its separate industries, their affect on each other, and their affects and effects within the context of the entire national and international economy. He also analyzes markets and presents his findings.

He earned both a bachelor and master degree at Penn State and has been a full professor since 1972. He serves as coordinator of extension programs in farm management and marketing.

Moore, who lives in Boalsburg, Centre County, is a regular speaker for numerous agricultural groups and he also co-writes a regular monthly column for the PennAg Journal, called "B&H Farm Center." A compiliation book of 5-years' worth of those columns has been published.

In addition, he regularly writes for newspapers and magazines and has been featured countless times as an expert on the agricultural economy by the media.

A recipient of numerous awards for his long service and devotion, he also traveled to Poland three times during the past two years to help "conduct a series of extension education programs designed to assist Polish educators, producers, and agri-businesses in their transition to a market economy," Slusser said.

"Lou Moore has definitely factors such as days in milk, lactation number, pregnancy status, number of times bred and previous days dry.

The Herd Performance Evaluator is available on a trial basis to DHIA dairy farmers working with consultants such as veterinarians, feed dealers, nutritionists and county agents. "Because the program is new, participants should expect a series of modifications as farmers and advisers work together to perfect it," Heald says. "With these modifications, the program may be widely available as early as next winter."

The program was developed with support from Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science, Pennsylvania DHIA, Monsanto and the Ben Franklin Partnership Program.

ABC Meets, Elects Board Officers

touched the lives of all of us as Atlantic members and employees. Not only has he spoken at our annual meeting on several occassions, he has influenced us and helped us on our farms, at the local level, and at the national level," Slusser said.

Slusser, as resigning president, also received a gavel in appreciation for his years of service to the cooperative.

In his president's message included in the cooperative's annual report to its stockholder members, Slusser wrote, "After 19 years on the board, I have chosen not to seek reelection, because I believe others should also be given this great experience. We farmers must be responsible for running our cooperative and other farm organizations, or someone else will."

In his address to the members, general manager Harry Roth said that last year, in spite of all the concerns from low milk prices, the division of the former Soviet Union into a commonwealth of states and the fall of the Communist Party there, and crop failure, was a good year for ABC.

"A good year is not only measured by the number on the bottom line, but in terms of member benefits, genetic advancement, business growth, profit, and organizational development," Roth said.

According to the manager, ABC members increased the use of service programs, which included improved use of the sire line-up and mating system.

The cooperative also changed some of its pricing structure to fit members' needs. They also emphasized employee development and training.

"We worked hard at reaffirming the work ethic in our people from one end of the organization chart to the other," Roth said.

Also, Roth said that the sire selection lineup has never been stronger for the members. "The increased requirements for young sires entering our progeny test programs will ensure our continued genetic growth," he said.

"All of this is going to require effort on the part of dairymen and increased overhead on the Federated family to maintain."

Roth reported that the total sales of technician-serviced units of semen increased by 8,500 and that direct herd sales increased by 9,900 units.

"When extending this over a period since 1986, we have seen a total growth of over 50,000 units of sales," he said.

According to Roth, three things are significant about the growth: while the increase was occuring, the number of cows in the state declined by 30,000; the ratio of sales to non-members changed from 69 percent of sales to members to 74 percent last year; and the National Association of Artificial Breeders figures showed a 4.7 percent decline in semen sales.

In other words, ABC sales grew while the market shrank.

Roth said that the increased sales to members is good because sales to non-members is unreliable. The higher the percentage of sales to members, the most consistent the income and the safer the cooperative will be from having to increase costs to cover any possible loss of non-member sales.

Non-member business is highly dependent on international trade, Roth said adding that statistics of international trade shows a slight increase in the total number of units exported units, but the total dollar volume is down.

"When looking more closely, we see that E.C. country sales are down about 500,000 units and extremely negative on income, because they buy the expensive bulls. This trend will probably continue to affect the U.S. industry," he said.

"The U.S. cooperatives, plus the Federated Partners have all leaned heavily on non-member and especially export sales to supplement income. The westen Europe market may reduce even further," Roth said. "In addition, they will find a way to compete in our country for our dwindling cow population."

Roth said that last year was critical for the nation's artificial insemination industry and that "very little profit, if any, was generated by the A.I. studs. This trend will not doubt continue. We, as an industry, have looked to exports as a source of balancing the budget. I am sure other means of operation will need to be considered."

He said that priorities will need to be established and some decisions made.

Roth reported that the federated group is now studying the best way to serve the three partners.

"One study group suggested that we are heading for the most difficult time in the dairy industry. The signs are all around us," Roth said.

"Namely, our milk supply and pricing problems, the cheap food influence, little concern on the part of government to recognize agriculture's place, and of course, the serious implication that our leader-

AJCC Administers Memorial Scholarship

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — The American Jersey Cattle Club recently announced the establishment of the Stanley K. Bansen Memorial Scholarship which will be awarded for the first time in the fall of 1992.

This $1,000 scholarship is available to students working on an advanced degree (masters or doctorate) in dairy or animal science, dairy manufacturing, or agricultural business.

The scholarship is being sponsored by Stanley's wife Dora Bansen and her family of Dayton, Ore.

Bansen is fondly remembered by Jersey breeders for his contributions to the dairy industry. He developed the well-known Forest Glen Jersey herd which consistently ranks as one of the highest herds in the nation for production.

In 1991 the herd ranked first for milk, fat, and protein production for herds of 200 or more animals. The herd boasted a DHIR lactation average of 18,378 pounds of milk, 880 pounds of fat, and 701 pounds of protein on 230 cows.

Bansen's life-long interest in and dedication to the Jersey cow, the remarkable achievements within the Forest Glen herd, and the impact his breeding has had in increasing performance of the Jersey breed made him stand out in the dairy community.

He was honored by The American Jersey Cattle Club with the Master Breeder Award in June 1990.

Bansen held many positions of leadership in the dairy industry. Over a period of years, he served as director and chairman of three DHIA boards. He also served on the board of directors of Oregon Dairymen's Association, and as chairman of the board and president for Oregon Jersey Cooperative Inc.

The Bansen scholarship joins 10 other scholarships administered by The American Jersey Cattle Club.

Three V.L. Peterson Scholarships in the amount of $750 are available to Jersey youth who have completed at least one year of college.

"Vic" Peterson has been called the "dean of dairy breed representatives" for his 25 years of service as an AJCC area representative.

One $750 Paul Jackson Memorial Scholarship is awarded annually to a youth who has completed at least one year of college.

Mr. Jackson was a long-time Jersey breeder, showman, and herdsman who was devoted to encouraging junior interest in Jerseys.

Jersey juniors who are graduating from high school and have been accepted by a college or university are eligible to compete for two $600 William A. Russell scholarships.

The Russell Scholarship was established in 1977 to honor Bill Russell, a life-long Jersey enthusiast, who was an area representative of The American Jersey Cattle Club and National All-Jersey Inc.

Three $750 Jack C. Nisbet Memorial Scholarships are awarded annually to participants in the National Jersey Youth Achievement Contest.

Nisbet joined the AJCC staff in 1941 as an extension director. He served as executive secretary for the club from 1943 to 1947.

In addition to these scholarships, The American Jersey Cattle Club administers the ABS/Morris B. Ewing Essay Contest sponsored by American Breeders Service. The contest winner is to be awarded a $500 scholarship.

Contest entries should focus on the question: What will the role of purebred dairy breeders be in the era of new genetic technology (i.e. cloning, gene markers, etc.)?

In order to be eligible for the contest, applicants must be between 16 and 22 years of age on Jan. 1 of the contest year.

Essays should not exceed 1,000 words and will be judged on accuracy of information, creativity, and grammatical correctness.

Jersey scholarships are available to youth who own at least one registered Jersey and who are accepted or enrolled in college. Selection is based on financial need and scholastic achievement, as well as Jersey and related activities.

The deadline for applying for a 1992 scholarship is July 1. Applications are available by calling the Information Department of The American Jersey Cattle Club at (614) 861-3636, or writing to 6486 East Main Street, Reyoldsburg, OH 43068-2362.

ABC Meets

ship in various segments of the dairy industry is seriously missing the mark.

"All must remember that the farmer-producer is still the key to food production and to cooperative success," he said.

"Both the producer and the organizational leadership must understand that development and application of new technologies are a key link to survival. Not only must we learn what new technologies must be found, but we must be willing to change so that they can be utilized.

"Your cooperative is placing more money and effort in finding new technologies through research and study. Your board feels this is vital," Roth said.

Roth said, "The future (of ABC and the dairy industry) looks real good to me."

But he also cautioned that certain things must be remembered, such as "All that is done must be based on the member and his needs; we must be willing to change and sacrifice certain things to accomplish these member needs; unity within the industry must be restored; and unity within and support of the cooperative must be stronger than ever in order to pull through the years ahead."

United Dairy Service Holds Annual Meeting

SENECA FALLS, NY was the scene of United Dairy Services fifth Annual Meeting. United Dairy Services is a cooperative with members in New York and Pennsylvania. They provide marketing, accounting, and management services as well as legislative representation for small cooperatives and agricultural organizations.

Roland Schallenberg, treasurer, reported that United had a good year. United, a service organization, does not require its members to invest in a capital program. However their move to Seneca Falls, plus some organizational changes have resulted in increased profits and placed them in an enviable equity position.

In his annual message to the members, James Patsos, C.E.O., further expanded on changes made during the past year. He also reported that in addition to serving their member cooperatives, United also has made their services available to non-member agricultural organizations. United Dairy Services is currently supplying marketing, management and accounting services to LeRaysville Cheese Factory in LeRaysville, PA and secretarial and accounting services to Seneca County Farm Bureau. United is also exploring other opportunities to serve the agricultural industry, helping to improve the quality of life on the family farm. In addition, Patsos reported that there has been an increase both in United's membership and volume of milk sold during the past year.

Edward D. Anna, president, in his address to the members gave a positive message. Anna said he anticipates a slight increase in the milk price for 1992. Recently there has been some improvement in the cheese market. Cheese makers are beginning to evaluate their milk supplies and their inventories relative to anticipated sales. He also discussed his involvement in legislative hearings and correspondence he has had with Edward Madigan, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, in an effort to improve the incomes of dairy farmers.

An additional position was created on United's Board of Directors. Robert Nichols, President of Addison Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Inc., was elected to this position.

Officers elected for the coming year are Edward D. Anna, Batavia, NY, president; Don Hamilton, Millerton, vice president; Roland Schallenberg, Westernville, NY, treasurer; Glen Seeley, Marcellus, NY, secretary; and James Patsos, Waterloo, NY, chief executive officer.

Overall, the Annual Meeting of United Dairy Services conveyed a positive outlook for the coming year with a slightly improved income for their dairy farmers.

Management Information For Barn Use

Heifer Management Option

If you would like to have DHIA tell you where your calves are then maybe you need to be on this option. The Heifer Management Option serves as a report to keep track of your heifers. You can enter ages of heifers, sires, dams, reproductive status, and heifer health treatment information. You can get action slips based on reproductive status. Sorting by name, eartag, visible ID, or registration number are a few ways you can opt to sort. Application registry is one of the most popular parts of the heifer management program.

Your local DHI supervisor/technician is ready to assist you with this and can show you copies of what this report looks like. If you have questions, please feel free to call Dixie Burris, Pennsylvania DHIA Membership Development Manager at 1-800-344-8378. Or talk to your supervisor/technician.

diversion waterway was installed near a side road to keep soil erosion from drainage from the nearby town of Russellville and nearby farms. A few years later a contour waterway was placed in the field to direct the flow of water.

Much of the land was placed in contours and an old cattle lane was diverted to make way for the contours.

Installed waterways

In all, the Yarnalls grow about 70 acres of corn, 45 acres of hay, six to eight acres of barley (ground for heifer rations), and straw for bedding. Yarnall became a cooperator with the district in 1969, and has installed about 700 feet of grass waterways and 500 feet of diversions.

"I think the contouring has helped to hold the soil," said Yarnall. "That's what the aim of it is, to prevent erosion, and to try to hold the ground in place."

In 1987, Yarnall signed up with the Chesapeake Bay Program. A compliance plan was drafted by Brubaker Agronomic Services shortly thereafter. As part of the compliance, Yarnall installed a

A special computerized feeder was installed to help deliver the protein and high moisture corn. The computer is now used to topdress the feed, according to Hoopes Yarnall, pictured here.

Slurrystore liquid manure handling and storage facility. Using a special gravity flow reception pit, manure is scraped off the barnyard and pumped over into the storage tank. The manure is stored until it can be applied.

"It's worked out very well for us," said Yarnall. "We got away from day-to-day hauling of manure."

Applies less fertilizer

Yarnall said he also applies a lot less fertilizer than he used to. Now, it is easy to manage with the storage tank. "We put the manure in storage, then spread in the spring and the fall and plow it down.

"We apply a lot less fertilizer," he said. "We hardly buy any plowdown fertilizer now. We use 150 pounds in the row and that's it."

Jean Yarnall said she is pleased they went with the manure storage. "I'm glad we did, because we really like it," she said. "It's clean all around the barn."

From when the farm was purchased in 1936 until 1991, the farm expanded from 121 acres to its current 160. Much of the land is tillable, except for seven or eight acres in pasture, according to Yarnall. The Yarnalls keep two exercise lots on the east and west sides of the farm.

TMR program

"Herdsfamily" Jim and Sharon Nickle manage Yarnall Farms' 70 milking cows and the same number of replacement calves. The farm, on DHIA, milks about 17,300 pounds average. A TMR program was designed by Renaissance nutrition company and is administered by the Yarnalls, which includes haylage, silage, and high moisture corn and protein on a 55 pounds per cow basis. (The dry cows and heifers, under a compartmentalized system, are fed separately four to five times a day.)

In 1956, four surge stalls with milking pipeline were installed in the milking house. In 1988, a double-4 milking parlor was installed. In addition, a special computerized feeder was purchased to help deliver the protein and high moisture corn. The computer is now used to topdress the feed.

In 1980, Hoopes installed a 20 foot by 70 foot wooden stave silo. In 1983, he installed an 80-foot Harvestore silo for haylage. These are used to save time in producing feed.

In the old days, according to Yarnall, farmers would have to spend a great deal of time picking corn and storing it into cribs. But

As part of the compliance to the Chesapeake Bay program plan, Hoopes Yarnall installed a Slurrystore liquid manure handling and storage facility. Here, manure is scraped off the barnyard by herdsman Jim Nickle into a reception pit. Later on, it will be pumped over into the storage tank. The manure is stored until it can be applied.

the past year, 42 acres of corn were combined and stored in one day.

Half the problem

Also, making haylage now is "half the problem as making hay," said Yarnall. "You don't have to rely so much on the weather."

"If I can remember, we used to start mowing hay and mowing all summer long, because you can only mow what you can handle," said Jean. "When you bale, you have to unload it. Now, it's a weekend deal, you can mow the whole farm, and it's done."

The last of the silos was built in 1990, and a mixer was installed.

They are feeding to reach a goal of 20,000 pounds of milk and about 80 cows on DHIA. "We're aiming for that 20,000," said Jean Yarnall.

Reeling from cut

The Yarnalls, like other dairies, are reeling from the drastic milk price cut and a subsequent drop in farm income. After filling the silos full in 1990, in 1991, the price of milk went "kaput," said Yarnall. "The first seven months of 1991 we sent about the same amount of milk and got $20,000 less for it."

But the Yarnall Farm escaped most of the terrible drought which struck the central part of the state last summer. Hoopes said that "we were lucky. We were very fortunate in this area. We had a dry spring, but we got rain in time."

Yarnall said they were able to obtain about 125-150 bushels per acre of corn.

"We had the silos full of hay, and the barn full of hay," said Jean. "We had a good year."

Pity farmers

Because of the drought, farms in bordering counties weren't so fortunate and many suffered a 70 percent or more yield decrease. "I pity those farmers," said Hoopes. "Of course, everybody got hit with the price of milk. But for these fellows who didn't have any crops . . . I don't know."

Cooperative Institute Meets

YORK (York Co.) — Kenneth Ketterer of Newville and Paul McPherson of New Park were recently presented certificates and plaques at graduation ceremonies held at the Penn State Nittany Lion Inn.

Ten directors, representing seven cooperatives from Pennsylvania and New York, were graduated from the ninth annual Pennsylvania Cooperative Directors Institute.

The school is a joint effort of Penn State's College of Agriculture Sciences and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture with the cooperation of the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives. The four-day program is an intensive learning experience on the unique responsibilities of cooperative directors, business operations, decision-making skills, and many additional aspects of directors and board leadership.

Dr. C. Shannon Stokes, head of Penn State's Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology and chair of the PSU/PCC Joint Education Committee, and Boyd Wolff, secretary of Pennsylvania's Department of Agriculture, presented the certificates and plaques to Kenneth Ketterer and Paul McPherson from York Farm Credit, ACA.

"We'd have never made it if we had dry crops," said Jean.

"We didn't get a lot (of rain)," she said. "We just got it at the right time. There seemed to be a streak right through here."

Hoopes said that continuance of the conservation plans throughout the years and neatness of application helped furnish the recognition for the farm.

He said the recognition "perks you up. There're a lot of guys doing a job as good as you're doing, I guess, more or less. We spent some money in the last few years in investing in labor-saving programs and ways of doing things.

"I took 50 years getting it. There's a time and place for everything.

"You like a little reward for your work through the years," he said.

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — The dairy and livestock departments of the Delaware Valley College of Science and Agriculture are planning judging contests at the college in Doyelstown on April 11.

All 4-H clubs and FFA chapters from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, New York and Maryland are invited to participate, according to the college.

Registration forms and entry fees should be returned to the college no later than April 6.

Participants are to judge six classes of dairy animals. Senior participants are to give reasons on two classes of animals and juniors are to give reasons on one class.

Check-in starts at 8 a.m. and judging begins at 9 a.m. Reasons are to be given starting noon and awards for individuals and teams are to be presented at 3 p.m.

Team members are eleigible for team and individual awards. Those who do not have a team will be eligible for individual awards.

A livestock judging contest follows a similar schedule to the dairy contest and is also open to members of 4-H clubs and FFA chapters in those five states.

The entry fee is $5 per person and should be sent with the entry form no later than April 1.

Participants can check in starting 8 a.m. with judging to follow at the college's livestock farm. Reasons are scheduled to begin at 12:30 p.m. and awards are to be presented at approximately 3 p.m.

Teams are to consist of three members — if four members are entered, the low score is to be dropped. Both senior and junior teams are accepted. Juniors will not have to give reasons.

Eight classes, including a performance class, are to be judged. Three sets of reasons are to be given — one each for sheep, beef and swine.

For more information on the dairy judging contest, call Dr. John Plummer at Delaware College at (215) 345-1500.

For more information on the livestock judging contest, call Dr. Frederick Hofsaess at the same number.

McCoy, Dunlap Firms Merge

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Two old line commission firms to merge. McCoy Cattle Co. will merge with Walter M. Dunlap & Sons, Inc. beginning the 6th of April.

McCoy Cattle Co. has operated on the Lancaster Stockyards since 1935, while the Walter M. Dunlap firm has been there since its inception in 1895.

The merger combines personnel in an effort to streamline operations and better serve the Livestock Community. Both firms have extended experience in livestock operations and cite this move as one that will add a greater dimension of service to the livestock community.

Only Farm Credit Has Loan Officers Who Were Trained In The Field.

While you were growing up on the farm going to 4-H, FFA, maybe even AG school, do you know what your Farm Credit loan officer was doing?

Same thing.

Not many bankers can say that.

True, they can make loans nine ways to Sunday. But, now your Farm Credit loan officer can, too. Over the last few years our people have gone through extensive training at making every kind of farm loan imaginable. Now a Farm Credit loan officer can give you the lowdown on rates, options and creative financing as well as any city banker can.

And around here, our Farm Credit loan officers have the power of approval that's equal to most bank presidents'.

So the next time you need to get a farm loan, think about this for just a moment.

Then let one of our Farm Credit loan officers prove to you what we've been saying all along.

That bankers can't be farmers. But farmers can be bankers.

75 Farm Credit
Years and Still the Best in the Field

These heifer calves have plenty of room in these social pens along the farm lane to the home of Fred and Lois Bohn, pictured behind the trees on the right.

Young Farmer At Heart

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MT. AETNA (Berks Co.) — For 30 years Berks County dairyman Fred Bohn has been in partnership with his brother Ray on a 291-acre registered Holstein dairy farm, an operation which remains strong today.

But for the two, it wasn't easy.

Fred said that, when he and his brother bought the farm in 1961, the two farm houses had no inside toilets, and only a pot-bellied stove for heat and a kitchen sink with running cold water.

The houses, barns, sheds and pig sty all needed repair or razing.

Work had to be done on the dairy barn so the two could start milking when they moved, and life was not easy. There was no problem sleeping at night.

But the land held promise and it was the first place that Fred could say he lived that he didn't have to pay rent. It was their farm.

The price of land, of course, was a lot less back then, but compared to today, the value of the dollar was a lot more, it took more work to earn them.

Over the years, the value of the property is much increased.

The creation of the working class known as the "commuter" and his demand for urban sprawl housing has increased the value on almost all agricultural land in southeastern Pennsylvania.

That working class came to be as a result of cheap transportation — artificially reduced fuel prices — which continues to allow commuters to think nothing of driving an hour or more to work.

However, the real value of the Bohn farm has been increased because of the work the brothers have done on the farm during the past 30 years.

The barns and side buildings were rennovated significantly, some eliminated, the houses were completely remodeled, and driving lanes were more permanently established.

The fields are productive and rainfall during growing seasons is more dependable than not. Fred Bohn continues to measure rainfall and record it on a monthly basis.

Records in Fred's book go back to when his father started doing it in 1958 at another farm. The farm gets an average of about 29 inches a year — more importantly, the critical growing months show very consistent precipitation.

Records like those can increase the value of a farm.

Bohns' father moved from Bellefonte (Centre County), when Fred was about 4 years old, to Sheffield Farms in New Jersey to manage some of the dairy farms.

At the time Sheffield milked 600 head and bottled it there at certified milk for sale.

His father moved away in 1945 to another New Jersey farm and run a dairy herd until that farm was sold.

In 1949, when Fred was 12, his father went on his own, renting a farm. It was the first time Fred was allowed to be around the farming equipment and allowed in the barn.

The requirement for Fred's help changed.

After years of working with his brother and father on the rented farm, which was sold, the two brothers traveled all over southeastern Pennsylvania, looking for a farm they could buy.

No more renting.

Despite the primitive state of the farmstead, Fred held the hope that he and his brother could make the farm pay for itself — that it could be a permanent home.

Now they have a 55-head milking string, sell the bull calves, raise replacements and occassionally sell some calves. The two have been members of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative (first with Interstate, then Lehigh Dairies), for more than 30 years, tracing back to the switches locations of its convention from one side of the Mississippi to the other. This year's, the 26th national convention, is to be in Des Moine, Iowa.

Bohn has to put a bid in for Pennsylvania during this year's convention. The bids have to be in three years before the convention date.

Also, Bohn won't be alone in trying to get people to see a state's attractions: South Carolina Young Farmers has also expressed an intent to compete with Pennsylvania to be the site for the 1995 convention.

This is where the cooperation of the businesses and governmental agencies is most important.

Those states wishing to host the conventions must bid on them by putting together a potential package of tours and accommodations highlighting real points of interest for convention goers.

The itinerary must be full, interesting and affordable.

"I'm not doing it for the title or position," Bohn said. "I look at it as a challenge and a learning experience and because I want to give something back to the group and make it really special."

Before it's all done, Bohn said he expects to drive at least 1,000 miles to meet people, spend hours on the road, on the telephone, and keep track of all the promises and dates and maintain the paperwork.

In the works are efforts to get a video program made of what highlights convention goers could see while here, and setting up appointments to meet with people to raise funds.

Bohn isn't totally new to the challenge. He has been involved in puting on two state conventions.

But this will be a new experience, he said, one that he looks foward to, as a way of giving something back to his "family" within Young Farmers.

The local area can expect to benefit also, from an influx of people who will basically be tourists, as far as area service businesses are concerned.

If these 1,500 people come and go away with a strong desire to return, the area service businesses would benefit in the long run.

Of course Bohn must consider the needs and expectations of his fellow Young Farmers.

Bohn has been involved with Young Farmers since 1977, starting with a group based out of the Eastern Lebanon County School District (Elco).

When the Elco district disassociated itself with Y.F., Bohn moved onto another group.

He compared the Elco disassociation with the recent split in Ephrata. "It seems like schools don't want to bother with farmers." He said that he sees the role of Y.F. as basically a continuing education program and said he didn't think it correct to cut off state-subsidized continuing education programs for farmers.

In the meantime, Fred and a neighbor traveled to Conrad Weiser School District, located in Robesonia. That was for 4 years.

Then Bohn said he saw the opportunity to start a Y.F. group at his local, Tulpehocken School District. "So far we are lucky to keep it," Bohn said.

For the past 7 years, Bohn has become more involved with state activities — after attending a 1985 winter conference and becoming regional vice president.

Since then he has been state president and although he no longer sits on the state executive board, he remains active by taking on organizational work.

Fred and his wife Lois worked hard. "We put a lot of money and our own work into it," Fred said. "We built it up as we could afford it.

"The '60s were trying times, as far as drought. Six out of 10 years (it was droughty enough) to put you under," he said.

But they did prevail.

Currently the herd rolling herd average is 18,156 pounds of milke with a 4.0 percent butterfat and a 3.3 percent protein component.

They feed a variation of a mixed ration — the corn silage and haylage silos both empty onto the same elevator. They also feed high moisture corn and alfalfa hay.

last year are excellent, Fred said. He got five good cuttings, normally he gets four.

During the fourth cutting, he realized he had more than he needed and didn't want to go to the expense of cutting and baling, hauling and then selling. Instead he advertised that whomever wanted 100 acres of alfalfa hay could come cut it and bale and take it. Ironically, he got no takers.

The brothers share in the duties and breeding sire selection is done by them — they have switched to higher protein bulls.

Now, while life isn't easy street, they have built their security.

Lois works at Farmer Boy Ag, in Myerstown, and their two children — daughter Susan and son Scott — both have grown and moved away. Fred and brother Ray keep the farm going with occassional parttime help from local students.

There is also a granddaughter, Ashley, who is to be 1-year in April, Fred said showing a picture he keeps at his work office.

He said his daughter Susan works as a program coordinator at a nursing home in the Germantown area, where she specializes in working with Alzheimer's disease. His son works for Clover Farms.

Fred said he is happy with his lot in life, his family and position. Also, he has owned some fine dogs — several English Setters when pheasants were so thick that normal backroad driving in the evenings meant stopping to let the flocks, flying corn high and lower, flit toward roost; a Goldren Retriever-Shepherd mix; and now an Australian Blue Healer.

(His daughter has a chocolate Labrador Retreiver that has become part of her therapy program with the nursing home patients. The dog and the patients know each other.)

Although he has never taken vacations, Fred, in his 60s, has hunted and fished with family and friends around home and in the last four years, has begun to make annual trips with his wife to attend National Young Farmer (YF) conventions.

The trips are valuable even more so, at this time in his life.

From the house of Fred and Lois Bohn is the view of the house of Fred's brother Ray and the dairy barn where the two brothers have worked for 30 years.

With the children grown, the homestead taken care of and secure, and while they still have their health, Fred said that he and Lois plan to attend as many as possible.

They want to see as much of the United States as they can, after living almost their entire lives within a relatively small region.

So far, the couple has gone to Mobile, Alabama; Denver, Colorado; Columbus, Ohio; and Salt Lake City, Utah, Fred said.

"My wife and I have been going for four years and you get to know (other national members). It's like a family get-together, or how a family get-together should be."

With the tours and events offered during the national con-

Somerset Ag-Day Banquet Held

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Correspondent

BERLIN (Somerset, Co.) — It was the stormiest night of the 1991-92 winter to date, and followed a blustery day when the relentless snow and driving winds had created abominable weather and driving conditions. It had caused the en masse cancellation of school classes in Somerset and numerous surrounding counties. Radio and television stations were updating listerners every few minutes with lists of other cancellations which grew into interminably dull monologues with each new reading by station announcers. In short the weather was fit for neither man or beast!

Yet, some 225 persons from the agricultural community braved all of it to attend the Ag-Day Awards and Recognition Banquet sponsored by the Somerset County Chamber of Commerce, the Cooperative Extension Office, The Conservation District and The Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation District. Beside the awards, they were expecting a roast beef dinner prepared by the ladies auxiliary of the Berlin Volunteer Fire Department and a million belly laughs from the slated entertainment, who was the jovial Captain Stubby of radio fame. Many other persons who had planned to attend, however, simply stayed home that night.

Shirley Shafer was named by the Chamber of Commerce as the Outstanding Person of the Year.

DHIA awards went to Gary and Nancy Lynch both for herd milk production and herd protein production. George Stahl got the award for herd fat production.

Century Farm awards were given to Frederick and Joyce Habel, Dean and Deborah Frazee, Ray and Lori Carver, A. Glenn Scott and Son, Sue Ella and Margorite Saylor.

Outstanding Conservation Farmer award was won by the Robert Stahl Family.

ventions, "We're getting different parts of the country that I'd never be able to see," he said.

He talked about the flatland farms he saw in Ohio, the sights in Alabama, the picturesque farms they toured in Colorado and Utah. The tours also visit local sights of general interest — large military bases, national parks, historic areas, museums — such as the John Browning museum.

As an enthusiastic hunter, Fred said that seeing the actual pieces of machinery that Browning designed and built, and finding out that Browing invented a number of sporting arm designs which he sold patents to, he realized that Browning was a genius.

Fred also belongs to other agricultural organizations — the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, the Holstein Association — but he said the Young Farmers is one of his favorites because "of the educational programs and the fellowship within the organization at the local state and national level.

"They are a great bunch of people. They are people like we are. Down to earth. There are no politics. As a group we are not allowed to express political differences. As individuals we may, but not as a group.

"When I go to (state) winter conventions, the atmosphere is like family," he said.

Help Bring Young Farmer Convention Here

MT. AETNA (Berks Co.) — In order to put together a promotion package for Pennsylvania as a site for the 1995 National Young Farmers Convention, a number of items and services have to be purchased.

With an expected 1,200 to 1,500 people associated with the convention, the potential for service businesses and tourism businesses is strong. Also, the long term benefits of these people recommending trips to Pennsylvania goes a long way to stimulating the service and tourism industry here.

But in order to get this state selected as a convention site, the promotion package will have to be good, especially in light of competition from South Carolina, according to Fred Bohn, in charge of creating the promotion bid.

Those who can help with funds or services should call Bohn at (717) 933-8422, or write him at 7695 Lancaster Avenue, Myerstown, Pa., 17067.

PSU Dairy Expo Honors Barnard

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Dairy Science Club is ready for its annual dairy exposition set for April 25, at the Penn State Ag. Arena.

The Exposition is a fitting and showmanship competition open to all Penn State students. Expo participants drew their animals by lottery in the middle of March.

Since then, they have been grooming their cows and training them to lead. Professional, intermediate, and amateur champions will be chosen, as well as overall grand and reserve champions.

Lisa Francisco will serve as the showmanship judge and William Lesher will be the fitting judge. Lisa and William are alumni of both Penn State and the Dairy Science Club.

The 1992 Dairy Expo, the 67th event, will be dedicated to Professor Sidney Barnard. Sid has devoted 28 years to Penn State through his work in extension, teaching, and coaching the Penn State Dairy Products Judging team. He has between 10-12 articles published annually in Hoard's Dairyman. He also made revisions of four Northeast Dairy Practices Council guidelines, which will be distributed throughout North America.

Sid was the main force in getting the expiration date for fluid milk products extended from 10 to 12 days. This change has had a great financial impact on the dairy industry. Sid focuses on quality assurance and consumer acceptance of dairy products, and evaluates over 3,000 dairy products annually.

Sid was chosen by the club for this honor because of his continued support of youth and Dairy Science Club activities.

Jennie Hess (soon to be Brown), a 1990 graduate of Penn State and former Dairy Science Club member, was chosen as the 1992 Outstanding Young Dairyman.

Jennie provided strong leadership in the club by serving as chairperson for cheesebox sales, Fall Classic advertising, membership, and the Spring Judging Contest. She was also responsible for the club's first Dairy Jubilee.

Currently, Jennie is employed as an agricultural extension agent in Youk County. She is in charge of all dairy meetings and newsletters, has been instrumental in helping farmers with their DHIA records, and also works with the dairy youth program. Jennie continues to maintain a strong interest in our club.

Dr. David A. Morrow is the Department of Dairy and Animal Science's 1992 Distinguished Dairy Alumnus. David grew up on a farm in Blair County and graduated from Penn State in 1956 with high honors. Dr. Morrow is currently a consultant on dairy herd health. He works with pharmaceutic l companies and agribusinesses.

Dr. Morrow is also the president of the Penn State Alumni Association, a member of the Penn State Board of Trustees, and a lifetime member of the Penn State Dairymans' Club. This Penn State dairy enthusiast is truly deserving of the distinguished Dairy Alumnus award.

Special events for the 67th Dairy Expo include a calf dressing contest, milk chugging, celebrity cow milking, and an Alumni Showmanship contest.

We invite and encourage all alumni to brush off their old halters and show the college students how it's done! Any alumnus interested in showing must notify Dr. Muller by April 17.

A new event will also take place this year. Sigma Alpha, a sorority for women interested in agriculture, will sponsor cow pie bingo. Individuals will have the opportunity to buy a space and hope that it is the winning block.

The Expo Awards Banquet will be held Saturday evening in Findlay Dining Commons. Expo winners, the expo dedicatee, distinguished dairy alumnus, the Davey Outstanding Senior Award, and the August E. Branding memorial award will be honored and recognized.

This year the club decided to "draw out" the Expo a little longer. A golf tournament will be held on Sunday, April 26 for all alumni and friends. Golf enthusiasts who wish to compete should contact Dr. Muller as soon as possible.

The following members of the Dairy Science Club are busily preparing and organizing the 67th Dairy Exposition.

Committee members include Jodie Everly, overall expo chair; Andy Morley, assistant overall expo chair; Tom McCauley, expo show manager; and Terri Packard, assistant show manager.

Editor:

Several weeks ago, I sent an open letter to Governor Casey protesting the placement of various agricultural funding programs into the budgetary reserve. Essentially, all those funds were frozen and the authorization to spend them was withheld. Concern from the agricultural community and affected farm groups prompted the letter.

As the Republican Chairman of the House Agriculture & Rural Affairs Committee, it is my responsibility to challenge this Administration to be accountable to the taxpayers for providing proper funding for vital programs. In a response to my letter, Budget Secretary Michael Herschock explained that many of the agricultural funding programs were reserved because they were "discretionary" and lacked definite spending commitments.

I reject Mr. Hershock's opinion that these agricultural programs are discretionary. A review of some of these funds will explain why ag research has kept Pennsylvania farmers competitive in crop and animal production. Mushroom marketing funds have helped Pennsylvania retain its top national ranking as a producer. The Milk Marketing Board fills a crucial role in protecting the largest segment of Pennsylvania's farm economy and keeping consumer milk prices competitive. Funds to FFA provide necessary support for a major vocational agriculture youth organization. The Cooperative Extension funding helps provide information and training to farm and rural households. New Bolton Center funding gives farmers top-quality veterinary help for livestock and poultry problems. The additional conservation district funding was to be used to establish the technical assistance for farmer compliance in nutrient management. These funds have been totally or partially eliminated, since the Administration considers them "discretionary."

In addition, the Administration has aggravated the problem by eliminating many of the reserved funds in the proposed budget. These temporary reductions thus become permanent. Agriculture deserves better. It does not need gratuitous lip-service from the Administration. But it does deserve a level and consistent response from state government.

I urge the Governor to reconsider the current agriculture budgetary freeze and the cuts in the proposed agricultural budget for 1992-93. Pennsylvania's agriculture may not remain the #1 industry without the reinstatement of lost funds. I also ask Pennsylvania farmers to contact their state legislators and the Governor and encourage their support for adequate agricultural funding. Together, we can make a difference.

Representative Jess M. Stairs
Chairman,
Agriculture & Rural Affairs Committee

Editor:

Dear Secretary Madigan,

I read with keen interest The Wall Street Journal's (Deregulation of Milk Prices is Considered. Nov. 26, 1991), and appreciate your request for public comment. Below I will answer the specific questions you have posed, respectively.

The dairy industry would be better served with no government regulation of milk orders. This would allow us to better understand market conditions, consequently stimulating our competitiveness.

Yes, I believe milk marketing is carried out more efficiently in New Zealand.

Contractual arrangements between cooperatives (as well as independents) and handlers could and should replace current government orders. Policy involving interregional and interstate transportation of dairy products is one example.

If changes are made in the federal system, milk pricing should be dropped. Weights, measures, and quality control is an entirely separate issue which would need to addressed. However, I do not believe that price regulation is a legitimate function of the USDA or any other government entity.

Yes, market orders should be terminated without delay. The dairy industry should recognize the marketplace as its principle regulator.

Mr. Madigan, as a dairy farmer I am confident that this industry can deal with market forces so long as government stays out of our way. Current USDA policies, however, require us to compete with government forces while trying to maintain our businesses and serve our markets. I don't see progress being promoted in this system, by any scale.

There are various reasons why I advocate the termination of market orders versus revising them. Revising them would still leave room for political manipulation of a business that belongs to the private sector. Principally, I do not believe it is possible to keep federal marketing orders "in balance" once we permit government powers to intervene to this degree.

Our government's destructive farm policy, in general, has caused me to totally mistrust its motives. USDA rules force millions of acres of land out of production, effectively bans new technology, requires that citrus be fed to cattle instead of humans, and flings subsidies around the agricultural spectrum. We're expected to believe that this is all fair and progressive -- in the consumer's best interest.

I do not believe that the consumer's best interest can be served so long as our economic freedoms are taken from us. Also, I think our position as business people vying in a world market is weakened as we continue to lose these freedoms to government regulation.

In summary, I believe market orders are simply another one of the USDA's wasteful ideas, and I urge you to use your authority to remove this perpetual burden from our industry. As you make this important decision, do not only listen to mainstream farm groups, for they are not necessarily representative of the general public. And, I am one of a growing number of farmers who doesn't believe that consumers will stop drinking milk if market orders are terminated.

Please read the enclosed letter which I submitted to Lancaster Farming. Thank-you.

Editor,

Thanks to Representative John Barley with draw on House bill 496.

As a person involved with agriculture I certainly think we all should congratulate Representative Barley for his hard work that helped stop this Bill.

There are some questions that come to my mind. As I spend lots of time in Maryland waters and Maryland farms, my concerns are what is happening with boats on discharging raw sewage into the Bay and how is Maryland enforcing same. Also what is Maryland doing with their Farms in the head of the Bay such as North East, Chestertown and surrounding areas.

Let's not put all the blame on Pennsylvania Farmers.

Again it is good to know we have good people working for us in Harrisburg.

Thanks Representative John Barley.

"Earlier this spring, I used the Aer-Way implement and Aer-Way chain harrow on my rolling pastureland. This was done to open up the ground to get water into the sloping grasslands. At the same time I pulled the Aer-Way chain harrow to scatter the cattle manure around, even after the dry summer we had, I noticed that the Aer-Wayed ground held the moisture better and we got thicker and better regrowth where we ran the machine."

DR. REX WILHELM D.V.M.

"My dairy farm is located on rolling terrain in Reedsburg, Wisconsin. After the first cutting, I used the Aer-Way on my thinning alfalfa stand to get the fertilizer and water into the ground. The second cutting was noticeably better with thicker and leafier alfalfa. I would recommend the Aer-Way to other dairy farmers."

little fellow are extremely important," he said. The needs of the bird — a friendly environment with good lighting, correct temperature, an even floor surface, an easy path to the water trough, and other factors — are critical.

Emory said that bird warmth is crucial. But some growers go too far. "We keep (the birds) warm to the point that probably would kill a lot of them," he said. "We actually just cook them."

Also, different breeds require different climate environments.

Emory, in a talk about critical diseases and poultry quality, centered on the reason for a lot of bird ill health — improper ventilation. Existing diseases and problems with the flock are aggravated by improper ventilation.

Three things

"When I was in school, we were going through physiology and the professor said there were only three things you have to remember about growing turkeys — ventilate, ventilate, ventilate," he said.

Birds require a lot of air volume. The air must also be clear of contaminants, particularly excessive amounts of ammonia or carbon dioxide. Many diseases that are "superimposed" on top of ammonia congestion in the grower houses are aggravated considerably and contribute heavily to bird mortality, according to Emory.

Growers should stop compromising the flock's resporatory system and do the most they can for the "super" turkey.

Heavier bird

Industry continues to meet consumer demand for a heavier bird with more meat. Into the 1990s, consumers will demand more of the "super" tom and hen weights.

Growers will do well to keep an open mind to the new technology and genetics of the super turkey, according to John Gascoyne, a representative of British United Turkeys of American (B.U.T.A.) based in Lewsiburg, W.Va.

Gascoyne spoke about breed flocks and what the industry should expect in the coming years.

Growers should "open their minds to changes" to be successful, he said.

Shorter time

During a 10-year period through the 1970s, the industry saw the growth of a bigger bird in a shorter time. Approximately 12 days have been cut off the production time of a 14-pound hen and 26 days off of a 20-pound hen. According to the B.U.T.A. representative, three weeks have been trimmed from the growth of a 22-pound tom and three weeks has been removed from a 28-pound tom.

Industry has made tremendous progress in gains in the breeding program, he said. This has created many economic opportunities for growers and processors.

In the future, growers can look forward to a 14-pound hen in 10 weeks and a 28-pound tom in 98 days. Preferred results will progress more rapidly in the future. Turkeys will be killed young and the meat yield and bird maturity will be greater.

Growth in the industry through the 1990s will be according to market needs, with greater efficiency at all levels, according to Gascoyne.

Breed types

Gascoyne spoke about tests undertaken on several breed types at the company and the importance of providing room and the right atmosphere to the flock. Temperature is crucial to manipulating the growth rate of birds. In a combination of studies at B.U.T.A., Gascoyne said better results were obtained out of a 70,000 square foot facility when toms were given more space than hens.

"We regard ourselves as having a turkey that not only can be grown very, very rapidly from day one, but probably should be for the best economic results," he said. "The genetic potential — increased breast meat yield — has not been realized."

"The bird we have today is dramatically different, dramatically different than anything we can imagine," said Emory. "What we got coming down the pipeline is dramatically different than anything we've ever seen."

Grower panel

A grower panel, which emphasized the importance of communication skills, was moderated by Bob Sydell, Wenger Feeds, Rheems.

Dwayne Koch, grower, spoke about the serviceman's responsibility to adjust to expectations and to be a problem-solver. It is important, said Koch, to visit other growers and to share growing techniques and experiences in the industry.

All panel members agreed on the importance of sharing information and communication. Jim Skinner, grower, said that there has been no great strides forward in husbandry, although a tremendous amount of knowledge has been gathered about the technology and genetics in raising turkeys. It is vital for groups to share ideas in "both directions," said Skinner. Growouts should strive to go beyond "mediocrity" and increase production expectations.

Kenny Myers, a Roundhill serviceman, spoke about the need for service people to get feedback from growers. The grower also must be willing to try new techniques. "Service people get a lot of flack on poultry and poultry quality," said Myers. He said growers should be in contact with the processor "when there is a problem, not after," he said. Growers should realize that service people need praise and recognition, too, and both should be receptive to new ideas and techniques and remain flexible.

Keep grower informed

Jay Greider, Wenger Feeds, said that the serviceman's job is to keep the grower informed about the changes in company policy, and to listen carefully to what the grower is doing and thinking.

Also on the panel, John Keeling, Overdorff Associates, Hollidaysburg, emphasized the need for honesty and developing careful listening skills. Credibility should be built with small steps, which translate to big steps, and for growers and producers to listen carefully, obtain more feedback, and try to understand their respective needs.

Dr. David Rives, department of poultry science at North Carolina State, Raleigh, N.C., spoke about alternatives to the nitrofurans to fight coccidia and other poultry diseases. Included in the list of new and alternative products (some with growth potential realizations) are Gentamicin, Ceftiofur Sodium, Bacitracin, Virginiamycin, Bambermycin (growth promotant), tetracyclines, Neomycin and Oxytetracycline, Erythromycin, Novobiocin, penicillin, Sulfadimethoxine and Ormetoprim. He related the various degrees of success on different diseases with each.

Also, alternatives to antimicrobials, such as probiotics and sugars (including lactose, mannose, and fructooligosaccharides), were discussed.

Also, Bruce Limpert, Wenger Feeds, Rheems, spoke about nutrient management legislation. The multiple breed flock portion also included presentations by Dr. Barry Kelly, Nicholas Turkey Breeding Farms, Sonoma, Calif. and Dr. Lynn Bagley, Hybrid Turkeys, Inc., Kitchner, Ontario, Canada.

Dr. Bill Weaver, poultry science department at Penn State, spoke about principles of ventilation.

Short Becomes Field Representative

YORK (York Co.) — Brian Short has been hired to fill the position of field representative in the Chambersburg branch office for York Farm Credit, according to Duane G. Bosler, vice president.

Short, a native of Indiana County, Pennsylvania, is a graduate of the Pennsylvania State University. He holds a B.S. degree in agriculture business management, and attended Marion Center Area High School. He was active in the 4-H Livestock Club and FFA.

During the summer of 1991, Short served a 10-week internship with York Farm Credit through Penn State University. This internship gave him the opportunity to work with local farmers and to learn about opportunities offered by Farm Credit.

Mifflin Co. Farmers Hold Spring Meeting

GAIL E. STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

REEDSVILLE (Mifflin Co.)—The Mifflin County Farmers' Association (MCFA) spring meeting, held at the Camelot Restaurant with an all-you-can-eat buffet, was the place to be to hear and ask questions about nutrient management, Ag Security areas, Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) insurance changes, state and national legislative news, and a new "Better Living" Program.

In his job as PFA's Director of Natural Resources, featured speaker Bill Adams deals with farmland preservation and environmental issues. "More and more, farmers are being drawn into many environmental and very complex issues," Adams stated.

Adams first addressed nutrient management. While many pieces of legislation are being considered, Adams distributed a handout explaining PFA-backed House Bill 496 that attempts to set a state-wide standard for nutrient management.

"This piece of legislation would allow each farmer to become certified as a nutrient management specialist - to create his or her own plan on the farm. This is very similar to the pesticide certification process for private applicators.

"Some of the benefits of having a Nutrient Management Plan would be the preemption of local ordinances, and your Nutrient Management Plan could be used as a defense in court if you're ever brought into court for a water pollution problem. So there are short-term obligations, but two very important long-range benefits in regard to nutrient management, a water quality issue."

House Bill 496 calls for a four-step procedure over a specified amount of time for certain types of farms. Farms over 10 acres, farms using any animal manure, and farms raising livestock for poultry will be subject to the provisions of House Bill 496. After the legislation is passed, step one would include the creation of criteria for a Nutrient Management Program by the State Conservation Commission. Step two calls for the establishment of a Nutrient Management Specialist Program by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Step three involves the development of a Nutrient Management Plan for the farm with step four implementing the plan. The timetable for compliance varies per density of farms.

Bill Adams defended PFA's role in the legislation. "If we're not part of the system, we're going to be outside looking in. Every piece of legislation in many ways is a compromise. Sometimes you have to bend a little. The environmental groups say they're not totally happy with House Bill 496, but they're going to support it. The legislature had its eyes on agriculture, we did what we could to get our (PFA) policy into this piece of legislation. Obviously, there is going to be some very controversial issues in it."

While House Bill 496 centers on water quality, Adams warns of the possibility of future water regulation legislation. "Slowly surfacing in Harrisburg is a water management situation. DER has been slowly putting feelers out in regards to the introduction of a piece of water management legislation that would call for the registration of wells. PFA is looking at the issue and is trying to provide input to DER so that they can realize the farm community's viewpoint in this. As this issue progresses, we will give you more information on it."

Adams also touched on the state and local issue of forming Ag Security Areas to preserve farmland, a program PFA has been promoting since 1981. Statewide, Pennsylvania has 450 Ag Security Areas encompassing 1.7 million acres involving 16,000 farms.

Locally, Mifflin County must form a county ag land preservation board in order to receive a conservation easement grant - totaling $88,000 - due to expire December 31. The grant money is used to buy development rights.

State Director Elrose Glick spoke of changes in PFA Insurance and in personnel at the Camp Hill office. In a sponsorship agreement with Nationwide Insurance, PFA predicts no changes until the end of the summer, but Nationwide has promised to have a farm owners package by May. Overall, Glick said, "From PFA's standpoint, we felt we could strengthen our insurance program by making this sponsorship with Nationwide."

Glick then announced Richard W. Newpher's appointment as the Executive Director of American Farm Bureau Federation's Washington D.C. office. Pennsylvania's Board of Directors is in charge of finding a new Administrative Secretary.

MCFA Governmental Relations Director, Mark Ellinger, reported on state and national legislation. Although he could have spent "15 to 20 minutes on these issues," Ellinger listed Washington legislative activity - a reduction in Capital Gains Tax Rate, general health care, food safety concerning pesticides, wetlands and scenic easement, private property rights acts, and legal services reform. State legislative issues include deep mine operations, Ag Security Law Amendments, nutrient management, Commodity Marketing Act, wetlands, Workman's Compensation, and a bottle bill.

Regional Organizational Director Joe Buck discussed the Pennsylvania Foundation for Better Living, a foundation formed to increase the understanding of the relationship between agriculture, consumers, and the economy. The object is to bring the interdependence of people, food, and fiber into the classroom. Each county will be asked to sponsor a teacher for a four-day workshop.

Area Dairy Farmers Agree — Two Herdbooks Necessary

Editor's note: In last week's article, Berger noted the association has recorded operating deficits in five of the past seven years, including a record $1.246 million loss in 1991, according to association records. $1.8 million was the correct figure in investment income from reserve funds which kept the association out of red ink for the year.

KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In 1988, at its national convention in an Diego, delegates from the national Holstein Association narrowly defeated a proposal to open up their herdbook to some of the vast population of grade Holsteins.

Now a group of Ohio dairymen have resurrected the herdbook issue, proposing that the organization launch a second, separate herdbook for grade animals enrolled in the current IHF (Identified Holstein Female) program. Although they would carry a special suffix or prefix to distinguish them from standard registered Holsteins, these animals would be eligible for all of the same programs.

By providing formal recognition of their pedigrees, it is anticipated that such cattle may become more attractive to merchandise and may even provide young bulls for the artificial insemination industry, a market from which they're currently excluded.

Not surprisingly, the proposal has sparked concerns from some current registered breeders, who fear the second herdbook idea is simply a temporary stratagem until the two herdbooks are merged into one. They fear the inclusion of grade cattle, even those that have been bred for generations to the same bulls they have used, will somehow dilute the overall quality of the breed. Moreover, these breeders cite their own struggle to establish all registered herds.

"I started from scratch too, like a lot of other people did," said Bob Knutsen of Cecil County, Md. "Let others do it the same way."

Knutsen and others were critical of the Ohio proposal at a Holstein Winter Forum March 4 in Frederick, Md. But the proposal has gained a lot of adherents at other similar meetings across the country.

At a Winter Forum session held the next week in Butler, Pa., the members were nearly unanimous in their support of the two herdbook idea, providing that any subsequent decision to merge the herdbooks require a bylaws change approved by 75 percent of the delegates.

New Holstein association executive Steve Kerr, who attended both of the sessions, said the bylaws safeguard is a good addition to the Ohio proposal and should set members' fears at rest that the idea is merely a "Trojan horse" for opening up the Holstein herdbook.

Kerr, a former congressional aide and lobbyist who has won high marks thus far for his performance as executive, said recent travels across the country have given him new appreciation for the concerns of members about the direction of the organization and the pace of change. But he also outlined some persuasive arguments for the organization's need to reach out to owners of grade cattle.

"The changes that are coming will leave us in the 19th Century if the association doesn't change with them and the grade identification question is one that will determine how the association succeeds in the 21st Century," Kerr said.

The way in which the membership resolves the grade cow issue will have implications for the global competitiveness of U.S. Holsteins, the financial status of the organization and, indeed, the profitability of registering cows for the rank and file member, Kerr said.

The latter has become the source of considerable debate among breeders as the use of statistical formulas for predicting the genetic worthiness of individual cows has become commonplace. These so-called cow indexes — the female equivalent of the bull proofs that have long been used to rate the worthiness of sires used for artificial insemination — have become the dominant factor in determining the cows used to produce each new generation of AI bulls, which, in turn, drives the high end of the market for registered Holsteins.

The value question has become polarized along have- and have-nots lines. It has even spurred the formation of the Breeder's Majority, a kind of organization within the overall Holstein organization, whose members disagree with the priorities used to establish the current cow indexes.

"The cows with high indexes for production, the bull mothers, the real elite cows, have a certain value. And breeders are concerned that the value of the rest of the breed isn't maybe what it ought to be," said Jason Myers of New Windsor, Md. Myers is one of 13 Holstein members recently appointed to the Ad Hoc Committee on Value of Registered Cattle.

"There are a lot of breeders right now who aren't sure if the good honest cow is worth registering if she doesn't have an index," Oren Bender, president of the Maryland Holstein Association, commented during the debate at the Frederick forum. "Don't lose the people that we do have," he added, by implementing a program that might lower the value of middle-of-the-road registered cattle.

On the other hand, Michael Weimer, who runs Solid Gold Holsteins near Emlenton, Pa., said the Ohio proposal should help, not hurt, breeders like Bender. Weimer also will serve on the value task force.

"I'm in favor of this second herdbook issue," he said. "I think we really need to open up and get new people into doing business with us."

TOXIC FREE WHITE SOYBEANS AND SPELTZ ARE IN BIG DEMAND. WE CAN'T GET NEAR ENOUGH

We pay $12 per bu. for beans and 10¢ per lb. for Speltz. Why? Because they are worth so much more in food value.

OUR MINERAL RICH FERTILIZER WOULD ALSO GIVE YOU BETTER LIVESTOCK FEED-WORTH MORE MONEY.

You can raise a large part of the needed livestock minerals in your crops at less cost at less than buying them in a bag. And they are better balanced by nature in the field than a computer could do it.

BALANCE IS IMPORTANT. THE VET BILLS PROVE IT

Some customers use very little bought minerals, have very low vet bills, have excellent conception, have good heifers to sell because their dams stay in the herd, don't need to spray alfalfa, get 5 cuttings, and our unusually low priced fertilizer lasts long because it doesn't dissipate because it is not chemicalized. People don't last long either when they are chemicalized. Use your natural computer to figure your extra profit which is your income minus your expenses.

'Jill-Of-All-Trades' Never Has A Dull Moment

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — You've heard of Jack-of-all trades. Well, Edith Weaver describes herself as a Jill-of-all trades.

With a hearty laugh, and a flash of dimples, this dairy farm wife said, "If someone else has done it, I figure I can do it too."

Edith tackles reupholstery, furniture refinishing, and numerous sewing projects as a side business to her farm and home chores.

The summer kitchen in the Weaver's century-old log house in Lebanon is Edith's reupholstery room. New foam, cotton wadding, bolts of fabric, and batting are stacked in the room for the reupholstery projects.

Edith got her start in the reupholstery business in 1981 when she did a platform rocker for herself.

"I read a book that explained how to take furniture apart piece by piece and use the old fabric for pattern pieces. I wrote down each piece so I knew the order in which to put it back together," Edith said.

Soon friends and family members asked Edith to recover furniture pieces for them. Edith started scheduling projects on a regular basis in 1982, and now has completed hundreds of pieces.

Each piece stirs excitement in Edith who said, "I can hardly wait to see what a project is going to look like in a new fabric. Sometimes customers aren't even out the lane before I start tearing their furniture apart."

She especially enjoys working with different furniture styles. She keeps a photo album of her projects and enthusiastically describes the details of each piece.

"Why this 1816 love seat had 800 tacks on it," she recalled. "And, look at that elaborate wood carving on this sofa. I think it's the most beautiful piece."

Not only does Edith refinish the wood on projects that customers bring for reupholstery, but she is known to have cut out wooden legs and other missing pieces for the furniture she is reupholstering.

Edith credits her woodworking abilities to her childhood.

"My father used to make wagons to sell. Since my brothers had other things to do, I was the one who helped my father. As a young girl, I learned to use a hack saw and 2-inch angle iron."

Sewing skills were learned from Edith's mother. "Because I was never one to sit still and do nothing, I drove my mom wild. My mom had me sewing quilt patches by hand when I was only four years old just to keep me still."

At a young age, Edith, who grew up with 13 siblings, also learned to embroider, crochet, knit, quilt, and tat.

"Sometimes my fingers get itchy to quilt," Edith said, "but I don't have a lot of time for quilting. I'm booked for reupholstery projects through February 1993."

Over the years, Edith has learned a lot of tricks and methods to improve her reupholstery techniques. She learned that using the old fabric as a pattern did not produce as tight fit because the fabric was often stretched. Now, she cuts the fabric to fit the foam and pulls the fabric tight for a snug fit. At first she hated to do the cording in cushions, "but now it's a breeze," she said.

She takes each project down to the springs and wooden frame. She always wraps foam cushions with dacron batting for longer wear.

Reupholstering often reveals some hidden finds. Edith has found 70 buttons in one chair and other projects have revealed items such as scissors, pocketknives, toys, and coins.

When Edith first started her business, it generally took her a week to do one chair. Now she does a sofa and a chair or two chairs a week squeezed in among her daily chores.

Edith prefers to use nylon and dacron velvet because it really wears.

"Why spend all that time putting on cotton fabric when you know it isn't going to wear well?" she asks.

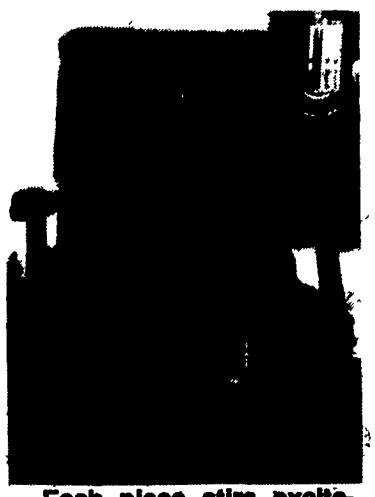
She finds that her household Kenmore sewing machine works better for her than a heavy duty factory model.

When Edith first started reupholstering for other people, she depended on customers to buy their own fabric. But often they had difficulty finding it or they'd ask, "Don't you have something on hand?" So Edith started buying fabric in bulk from local fabric shops. Soon the quantity of work forced her to look for a larger supplier. It wasn't long before she started going to New York City Broadway to purchase fabrics direct from the factory.

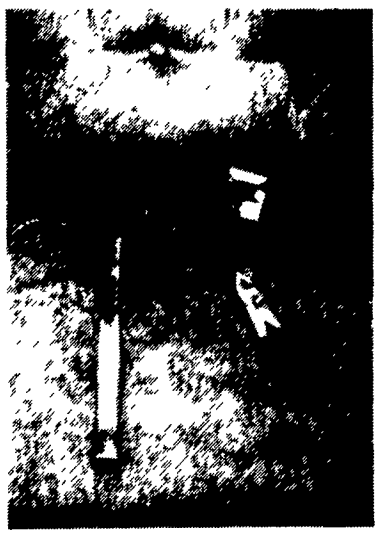
"The other buyers are big guys who sell hundreds of bolts of material. At first I was afraid that they wouldn't deal with me because I'm just a little person compared to the big guys," Edith said. But she finds they are quite affable in helping her select a truckload of fabrics annually in the spring.

Edith Weaver just finished upholstering this rocker. "It's always exciting to see what a piece will look like with new material she said.

Edith also refinishes the wood on furniture that she reupholsters.



Each piece stirs excitement in Edith who said, "I can hardly wait to see what a new project will look like in a new fabric."



In addition to a sewing machine, tools needed for a reupholstery job are simple: hammer, pliers, screwdriver, tacks, and a long needle for stitching on buttons.

Edith removes the old materials until only springs and the wooden frame remains.

But she finds they are quite affable in helping her select a truckload of fabrics annually in the spring.

"I write a list of all the colors that people choose. Some customers tell me in advance that they want a certain shade."

When Edith goes to New York and selects the fabric, she isn't worried that she might become overstocked or that she might purchase the wrong fabric for a client.

She said, "If one person doesn't want it, someone else surely will."

Her clients are all by word of mouth. She said, "The circle just keeps getting broader and broader. She has done work for people as far away as New York, Philadelphia, and Chambersburg. Many of her clients return again and again. She has reupholstered at least 12 pieces for a local antique collector.

Sometimes Edith is asked to cover items such as high chairs, wheelchairs, and even to mend braided rugs.

Edith always seems eager to do it. She said, "I like variety. That's what I like about this job. It never gets boring."

Edith's work isn't confined to reupholstery. She and her husband Mervin G. have 100 milking cows and replacements on their 70-acre farm.

Edith arises at 3:30 a.m. to feed calves and about 100 chickens that the family raise for their own use.

Recently she butchered 23 chickens in one day.

But her barn chores aren't as many as they used to be.

She said, "I used to help with the milking, but now our three sons take care of the milking."

For a while the Weavers milked three times a day but soon returned to two times a day because, according to Edith, "It's hard on man and beast and I don't think they gave anymore milk."

Gardening occupies much of Edith's time.

She said, "I used to say that I was an outdoor girl and my gardening came first, but I can't say that anymore. I have large strawberry and raspberry patches and sometimes they get weedy because I'm eager to see what a sofa is going to look like with a new fabric on it."

When her enthusiasm for outdoor work is at its peak, Edith said, "I feel like chucking all the chairs (those to be reupholstered) outdoors when it's a nice spring day."

She likes working in her garden and finding surprises such as a one-pound-seven-ounce carrot that she grew last year.

In between gardening, household chores, and reupholstering, Edith makes miniature houses out of plastic canvas and yarn. She draws the houses to fit clients' homes and makes them according to scale. Some include music boxes that play the tune, "Bless this House."

She also makes wooden toys, marble rollers, baby mobiles, and other needlework projects to sell. Her two daughters who have off-the-farm jobs are also adept at sewing and crafts and often help with needlework projects. The Weavers have two grandchildren.

People often wonder when Edith finds time to do everything she does.

She said, "I was born with lots of energy. I always want to be doing something."

Because the Weavers live on a farm, Edith said, "I say we have 'floating meals' because the men are often an hour or two late for meals. I learned to be adaptable. I don't sit and twiddle my thumbs waiting for the men to come in from the barn. I use that time to work on one of many projects."

As a "Jill-of-all-trades" Edith said, "The worst thing in life, I think, would be not being able to do things. I really like helping people and I like fixing old things. That's why I like reupholstering because I meet so many people and they are so pleased to see how an old piece of furniture can look brand new."

CARTER 1992

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Lying there on the basement floor, it looked very much out of place.

Bright pink, about three-fourths inch in diameter, this pretty, round button stuck out like the proverbial sore thumb.

Our basement is the farm "mud room," meaning the floor is usually ornamented with not only mud, but manure traces, hay and straw droppings, drying shoes, abandoned sweatshirts, dog hair, a couple of orphaned gloves and the inevitable pair of dirty socks.

Amidst this familiar conglomerate appeared the button - smooth, bright pink, and alien to any of our barn clothes. Seasonal barn garb leans toward thermal coveralls with heavy zippers, insulated sweatshirts, heavy sweaters, and the ever-popular quilt-lined flannel shirts. None in pink.

True, we were in need of a button. No, we were in need of several buttons. The alien pink button just happened to turn up during one of those spells when button-busting hit an epidemic level.

Hanging in the laundry area were two of The Farmer's wool/acrylic plaid work shirts, both in need of buttons down the front mid-section. My best white dress blouse had parted company with a button somewhere through the washer-dryer cycles.

And nearly every one of the quilt-lined flannel shirts our youngest favors over jackets sported button gaps. Especially the one he'd somehow snagged on a gearshift lever while jumping down from a tractor seat, effectively removing every button but the top - unbuttoned - one, and leaving behind only telltale marks of pulled fabric.

Obviously none of these unbuttoned gaps called for a bright pink fill-in. Mostly what was needed was a supply of generic work shirt buttons in a mottled beige-brown blend. Surely the button box would have just what was needed for replacements.

When I was a kid, I loved playing with Mom's extensive and varied button assortment, spilling them umpteen times in the process. And, to this day, I cannot bring myself to throw away a useable button.

After all, about the time you pitch even one tiny button, it will be exactly the one you need a day later. Every holey, shredded shirt retired to the machine shed rag bag first sacrifices all its buttons for the button box reserve.

So it was off to the button box (actually an old candy mint can) wherein resides my own sizeable collection of buttons of all shapes, colors and sizes. Every shape, color, and size, that is, but mottled, beigy-brown-blend buttons of the sort that have been previously removed from former work shirts. Unbelievably, not even anything close.

This called for a whole new approach to the button replacement strategy, matching up enough for a new set, to give the appearance of a least some semblance of order to the shirt front. Plus, they had to fit the buttonholes.

Mixed through the mass of buttons are any number of small, flat, pearly-white types with a center indentation in which the fastening holes - two or four - are located. They're your basic, generic white button, which happened to be about the correct size.

Snagging them proved a challenge. Short of dumping the entire collection out on the table (which would doubtless result in some on the floor), retrieving small buttons from a mass of slippery, sliding, similar plastic disks is like operating in quicksand. Soon as you see what you want, it oozes away.

After several minutes of blindly rooting through the button quicksand, a reasonably matching set of buttons went on the tractor-victim shirt. It was tempting to sew on the pink one, just to see if anyone noticed.

Later, I opened the dryer. Perched precariously on the edge of the lint filter was a mottled, beigy-brown shirt button.

Good thing. The youngest just informed me the bottom button of the tractor-victim shirt is missing. Again.

I wonder if Velcro might work?

Simple Steps To Successful Vegetable Gardening

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The days are getting longer, temperatures are rising, and the yearly ritual of preparing the family garden is upon us. But before you get your hands in the soil, plan ahead to make your gardening venture a success.

Making a diagram to specify land use and plant placement is a great way to get started, according to Denise Sharp, a horticulture specialist at the Home and Garden Information Center of the Cooperative Extension Service, Maryland Institute for Agriculture and Natural Resources.

"By forcing you to organize your thoughts, a diagram can help you avoid some common pitfalls later," she explains.

Sharp recommends locating the garden where it will receive full sunlight throughout the day. If this is not possible, pick a spot that gets a minimum of six hours of sun daily.

Because water is essential, she advises locating your vegetable garden where running water is readily available.

But be sure your plot is far enough away from competing plants.

"Trees and shrubs can be a problem when located near a garden," Sharp notes, "because their roots absorb moisture and nutrients from the garden while their branches add unwanted shade."

Also, certain trees or shrubs — most notably walnut — exude substances from their roots that are toxic to tomatoes and other vegetables.

Once you've decided on the optimum location for a vegetable garden, you're ready to begin the physical preparations.

If you haven't already tested your soil, Sharp recommends doing so right away. The test will tell whether your garden needs lime and fertilizer to provide your plants with proper nutrition.

Residents can get a soil test kit from their local Extension office and have their garden soil tested for $5. Analysis of soil samples usually takes a week or two.

Cool-season plants and those that can withstand frost — may be planted about mid-March to early April, says Sharp. Examples include cabbage, radishes, spinach, lettuce, onions and potatoes. Hold off on planting frost-sensitive plants like tomatoes, beans, corn, peppers, cucumbers and squash until May.

Almost all traditional crops do well in Maryland's temperate climate, according to Sharp. Among the "new" plants available to home vegetable gardeners are crossbred squash varieties, super-sweet corns, seedless watermelons, edible-podded peas and potatoes with unusual skin or flesh colors.

When sowing seeds and placing your plants, take care to avoid some common mistakes made by many recreational gardeners. Don't plant individual seeds or plants too close together. As they grow, thin the plants to reduce competition and encourage optimum growth. Don't forget to tend your garden regularly, and don't plant more than you can handle.

The Cooperative Extension Service has several publications that can help you in your gardening endeavors: L15: 1992-1993 Vegetable Cultivars for Maryland Home Gardens; EB 220: Vegetable Gardening in Maryland ($1); EB 252: Control of Insects & Diseases in Home Vegetable Gardens ($2); FS 555: Controlling Weeds in Home Vegetable Gardens; FS 550: Container Vegetable Gardening; FS 551: Growing Vegetable Transplants; and FS 552: Hardening Vegetable Transplants.

These publications are available from the Home & Garden Information Center at 1-800-342-2507 and local Cooperative Extension Service offices; phone numbers are included in county listings in the blue pages of the telephone directory.

Pets—A Forgotton Item In the Family Budget

Have you been surprised at how much money you have been spending on "groceries" recently? When was the last time you looked closely at your receipt? Often grocery bills include lots of things that aren't food.

Magazines, laundry detergent, hair spray, cat food. None of these items are food expenses. Yet they begin to eat a big chunk out of our flexible spending funds. Did you ever calculate the expense a family undertakes to own and care for a pet? It adds up!

This past year Changing Times calculated some average expenses that pet owners would incur. For dogs, their survey found that people spend $25 to $40 per month on food and can spend as much as $250 for shots and deworming the first year. Cats' costs are less. Their food will total about $7 to $16 each month, and vet bills may be around $200 the first year and $25 to $75 in future years. Fish, hamsters and birds are less expensive, but none are cost-free either.

For farm families these costs may be less, but pets do cost money. Urban families generally have one or perhaps two pets. Farm families usually have many.

Families who are trying to bring their spending under control may forget to count these expenses! Pets can also bring unwanted surprises. A pure-bred dog may end up with a genetic defect making her not worthy of breeding. The cute gerbil you buy may produce several more without your permission! Pets may wander or destroy favorite pieces of furniture. You may have to vacuum more than you wish. The prized baby livestock may become cherished by a child. This, too, can create some family problems.

Pets do have wonderful attributes that for many people outweigh the expenses they bring. For children and adults, they provide a wealth of affection. They willingly absorb a person's stress and frustration, worked out through methodical patting. They listen to a person's thoughts without interrupting. They can be great companions. And especially for dog owners, they are a built-in motivator for walking or getting exercise.

Many doctors' and dentists' offices now have aquariums because research has found these creatures to be calming.

If you find that for financial or health reasons, you cannot afford a pet of your own, you may be able to share some of the joys of pets anyway. Perhaps a neighbor owns a pet and would appreciate some help. Many older people own pets and would welcome a visit from a neighboring child. You can also enjoy the other farm animals from a distance. Although not pets, these animals can still offer you some escape when people pressures are too much.

If you own pets or other animals, here are a few ways to share the joy. Allow well-behaved children to help you care for or touch your animals. Some nursing homes have programs where volunteers can bring their pets to visit with the residents on a regular basis. This is such a great treat for the adults living there.

Perhaps a child in your neighborhood is involved in Scouting, 4-H or some other youth club where care of pets or animals is a project that can be completed. Would you be willing to let them learn by helping you? Each year in Bethlehem, the community presents a live nativity pageant complete with sheep, peacocks, calves, cows, rabbits, and donkeys from local farms. This event brings joy to hundreds of people each year.

Consider allowing elementary school children to tour parts of your farm or participate in a local petting zoo. Be sure that you don't put your livestock herds at risk of picking up diseases.

Pet ownership is not for everyone. It can cause health problems or financial burdens. If you have not yet made a decision about pet ownership, ask yourself whether or not you can honestly afford the time, money, and energy it costs to care for one properly.

If you own a pet, share that gift with others. It's a nice way to help everyone win.

Weight Gain During Pregnancy

PITTSBURG (Allegheny Co.)— Many women worry about gaining too much weight duting pregnancy, many others about gaining too little. "If you're concerned," advises Lindsay H. Allen, Ph.D., "the best thing to do is relax and stop worrying about how much weight you gain."

Dieting to control weight during pregnancy is not a good idea. "It could harm both the expectant mother and her fetus. And contrary to what some women may have heard, dieting won't make delivery or post-pregnancy weight loss any easier," Allen says.

As a faculty member in the Department of Nutritional Sciences at the University of Connecticut, Allen concentrates her research efforts on the nutritional requirements of pregnant women. "We've found that a range of weight gain among pregnant women is quite natural."

Noting the importance of eating foods with high nutrient content, Allen says, "They're better for meeting the extra nutritional demands of pregnancy without eating lots more food. That means avoiding food with nothing but empty calories."

She believes that a good diet can provide all the nutrients pregnant women need, except iron. "I don't think pregnant women should just pop vitamins to take care of their nutritional needs. Instead of supplements, I'd much rather see them eating normal, natural foods to get these nutrients," Allen says.

Relying on supplements for these vital nutrients could be dangerous. "Women could accidentally create imbalances that adversely impact the amounts of other nutrients in their bodies," Allen cautions.

"So my advice to pregnant women is to eat a variety of foods from the basic food groups in moderation and let your weight take care of itself."

"Dairy products are foods that pregnant women should eat more of, not just for calcium, but more importantly because they provide so many other beneficial nutrients like riboflavin and vitamins A and D," Allen says.

Many women do not meet the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances (U.S.RDA) for such essential nutrients as calcium. The calcium RDA is 1,200 mg per day for pregnant women, or four glasses of milk per day. Women determined to maintain their weight during pregnancy are not likely to meet that amount.

Although many women think breast feeding will hasten weight gain, Allen believes that is another misconception. "It's very healthy, very normal for breast-feeding women to eat a lot more food," she says. "They have to eat more to produce breast milk. Once they finish breast feeding, though, the weight comes off very quickly." Eating isn't the only cause of weight gain during pregnancy. "Women should realize that major hormonal changes in their bodies account for much of their weight gain. And that's entirely out of their control," Allen emphasizes.

ADC Meets Farmers' Needs

More Than $110 Million in Extra Payments

Robert B. McSparran
President

"At Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, our mission is to maximize returns to members. In the past four years, we returned more than $110 million to members in equity payments, over-order premiums and quality bonuses. That's an average of $31,500 per member. And these extra dollars are continuing at the rate of $1.5 million a month.

"When non-members ask me why they should belong to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, I am happy to report that we are financially healthy, strong in membership and growing in sales. ADC is the region's largest and most fiscally-sound cooperative, with a guaranteed market and outstanding benefits.

"More dairy farmers joined us last year than at any time in the past decade. If you are not an ADC shipper and are worried about your own milk market, then you should talk to the cooperative that is facing the future with confidence."

'Centsable' Recipes For Economical Meals

Supermarkets are stocked with expensive meat, seafood, sauces, and desserts. Most cookbooks are filled with recipes with ingredients you've never heard of or with items that cost a bundle. It's enough to give any modern day housewife the budget blues.

Impossible turns into possible with planning. The first step is to go back to simplicity. Cut out prepackaged foods that you can prepare yourself. Make your own cream soups. Substitute lower-priced cut meats that can be marinated for tenderness.

If you plan meals in advance, shop for sale items, and clip price-off coupons you might be surprised at how much you can stretch your grocery dollars.

Turn your winter doldrums into springtime optimism by serving these "censable" foods.

"Microwave Magic"

By:
Carol Stark

Unless you've gone food shopping in other areas of the country, you're probably unaware of just how wonderful our grocery stores are here in Lancaster County and surrounding environs. The same may be said of the availability of chocolate. We have not one but two factories nearby, and how convenient it is with so many delicious recipes coming out of the chocolate test kitchens.

Hershey, better known as Chocolate Town is only a short drive down the road, and Wilbur Chocolate, Lititz, is even closer. You can buy chocolate in 10 pound blocks, bags of pieces, chocolate circles and even chocolate in different colors. Furthermore, the microwave makes melting and cooking it easy. There is one thing, however, that you must remember - MEDIUM LOW heat. Chocolate in the microwave doesn't look like it burns, as the outside of the square will never show a burning appearance. But inside the square it becomes burnt and pitted and has a terrible taste. Cooking chocolate comes in many varied forms with different kinds of chocolate like malt, milk, dark and light. It even has different grades as well as different oils, such as sunflower, peanut, vegetable and many more.

You can make the best peanut butter cups from chocolate melted in the microwave. Why not try them for Easter?

Peanut Butter Cups

1 pound of chocolate
1 cup peanut butter
1 cup confectioners sugar
1 cup peanut butter
1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt 1 pound chocolate in the microwave for 3.50 minutes on MEDIUM LOW HEAT. Take out, stir and add 1 cup peanut butter.

Take 1 cup confectioners sugar, 1 cup peanut butter and 1 teaspoon vanilla and mix together. Make dime size balls and set aside.

In a small petite muffin pan add your paper liner. Add ½ teaspoon chocolate mixture, dime size ball and cover with more chocolate. Put pan in freezer for 2 minutes to set and take out and put on party dish or in candy box. This should make about 30 peanut butter cups. Everyone loves these.

Velvet Fudge Sauce

1 (12 oz) package (2 cups) semisweet chocolate pieces
1 (13 oz) can evaporated milk
1 (7 oz.) jar marshmallow creme
2 quart bowl
Time at High (chocolate pieces) 2 to 3 minutes
Time at High (marshmallow creme added) 1 minute

In a bowl, combine chocolate pieces and evaporated milk. Microwave at full power (HIGH) for 2 to 3 minutes. Stir until smooth. Add marshmallow creme in spoonfuls. Microwave at full power HIGH for 1 minute or until marshmallow creme softens. Stir vigorously until blended. Serve warm. Refrigerate remaining sauce.

Melting Baking Pieces

Empty pieces into a glass measuring cup and microwave at full power (HIGH) for 2 to 2½ minutes. Stir twice.

Brownie Cupcakes

⅓ cup butter
2 squares semisweet chocolate, broken up
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
¾ cup all purpose flour
½ cup chopped nuts
8 chocolate covered thin mints OR ½ cup of semisweet chocolate chips
Bowl - 1½ qt. bowl
Baking Dish - 8 (6 oz.) custard cups
Time at High - 1 minute
Time at 30 percent (each batch of 4) 6 minutes

In a bowl, combine butter and chocolate squares. Microwave at full power (HIGH) for 1 minute or until chocolate is almost melted, stirring and breaking up chocolate. Stir until completely melted. Stir in sugar and vanilla. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well with a spoon after each addition. Stir in flour and nuts. Beat well. Spoon into paper bake cups in 6 oz. custard cups, using about ¼ cup batter for each. Microwave 4 at a time at 30 percent (MEDIUM LOW) 6 minutes or until a wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Rearrange cups once during cooking. (Brownies may still appear moist around edges when done.) Immediately top hot brownies with mints or chips. Place cups on cooling rack and quickly cover tightly with foil, tucking foil in around cups. Let stand 10 minutes. Spread mints or chips on top of brownies for frosting. Remove from cups and finish cooling on rack. Repeat with remaining batter and mints or chips.

Fast-Food Restaurant Sells Pork

DES MOINES, Iowa — The pork industry has taken another step forward in getting more pork featured in the fast-food industry. Three pork menu items are currently being featured as a part of a limited-time national promotion at McDonald's, the world's largest fast-food chain.

The wild west promotion features the McRib™, McDonald's most successful promotional sandwich, along with a sausage-based Breakfast Burrito and a Western Omelet that contains ham.

"The pork industry is pleased that McDonald's has decided to feature three pork-based items in its latest national promotion," said Larry Cizek, National Pork Producers Council's Director of Foodservice. "American's pork producers have a long-standing working relationship with McDonald's, and we appreciate any positive impact this promotion may have on currently low hog prices."

McDonald's extensive use of network and cable television and radio commercials, featuring stars from former western television shows, is expected to help stimulate more featuring of pork-based items in the fast-food industry.

ANSWER — Edith Moore requested a Swedish Meat Ball recipe. Thanks to many people who sent recipes. Unfortunately, we do not have space to print them all, but here is one from Janet MacCallum, New Hartford, N.Y., who wrote that her grandmother was a French-Canadian immigrant who married a Swedish immigrant about 100 years ago. She was an excellent cook and learned to cook many Swedish dishes from her husband's family. Janet said these meatballs are delicious — never had better ones.

Swedish Meatballs

1 pound chopped beef
2 to 3 slices bread, soaked in ½ cup milk
1 small onion, grated or chopped fine
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 egg

Combine all ingredients and form into small oval-shaped balls about egg-yolk size. Brown in 1 or 2 tablespoons butter, turning frequently to brown all sides. Continue to cook over low heat for about 10 minutes. Transfer to oven-proof baking dish. Pour most of the fat from frying pan. Add 2 tablespoons flour and stir and scrape brown bits off bottom of fry pan. Add 1 cup warm water gradually, salt and pepper to taste, and continue cooking over low heat to make gravy. Pour gravy over meat balls, cover baking dish and place in 350 degree oven for about 15 minutes. Serve with egg noodles.

ANSWER — Mrs. Tom Maust, Berlin, requested a recipe for making freezer or canned strawberry jam without sugar but with a sugar substitute. Thanks to Maggie Berry, Aston, and to a Carlisle reader who sent the following recipes.

Strawberry Breakfast Spread

1 teaspoon unflavored gelatin
¼ cup orange juice
1 cup mashed or pureed strawberries
6 packets Equal
1 tablespoon orange peel slivers or grated
¼ teaspoon coriander

In small saucepan, sprinkle gelatin over orange juice. Let stand 1 minute. Heat over low heat until gelatin is dissolved and mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat and stir into strawberries. Add remaining ingredients and stir to blend. Refrigerate until firm, 3 to 4 hours. Best when used within one week. Makes 1 cup or 16 servings, 1 tablespoon each.

Strawberry Jam

¼ cup fresh lemon juice
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 tablespoon cornstarch
Dash salt, optional
1 pound 4 ounce bag frozen unsweetened whole strawberries, partially thawed
10 teaspoons Sweet 'N Low equal to 2 cups sugar

Sterilize the jelly jars as follows:

Boil 3 1-cup jelly jars, completely covered with water for 15 minutes. Remove jars from water with tongs that have been held in the boiling water for at least one minute. Let jars drain, upside down on clean paper toweling until using.

In medium saucepan, mix together lemon juice, gelatin, cornstarch, and salt until smooth, add strawberries. Stirring constantly, heat to a full boil; boil 3 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in sugar substitute. Fill jelly jars and seal. Set aside to cool, refrigerate to use within 3 to 4 weeks, then prepare fresh batch.

City Kids Visit The Farm

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A barn was the classroom for hundreds of fourth graders last week. The students were part of Ag in the Classroom program, which teaches children the value of agriculture.

It was the first time that the majority of students visited a farm and got to see a cow close up. More than 200 students from the Lancaster School District visited the farm of Richard and Ken Rohrer on Charlestown Road in Lancaster.

It's the third year that the Rohrers have invited children to their farm.

"I do it because I like children," Ken said.

His wife, Carol, said that the visit enables the children to see how comfortable and happy the cows are in the barn. It's an opportunity for children to learn how they can help the farmers by drinking milk and not throwing trash in the fields.

The Rohrers have three farms with 350 acres and 150 cows. Ken told the students, "Each cow eats about five buckets of silage a day."

The childrens' eyes widened to think of eating that much stuff.

Ken said, "The neat thing about cows is that they can eat things that we can't and turn it into milk, something we can enjoy."

Ken pointed to the three Harvestore silos that hold alfalfa, shelled corn, and corn silage for the cows. "Because the cows eat so much

(Turn to Page B11)

Ken and Carol Rohrer, center back, are surrounded by some students who visited the Rohrer farm for the Ag in the Classroom program.

The children learned that the silos held alfalfa, shelled corn, and corn silage.

Richard Rohrer

No farm is complete without a dog. And this one became greatly endeared to many of the students.

For most of the students from Price Elementary School, the Rohrer farm was the only farm they ever visited.

"Look at this bucket of silage," Ken said. "Each cow eats five bucketfuls a day."

City Kids Visit The Farm

and drink a lot, they make manure," Ken told them.

He showed them how the manure fell between the slats on the barn floor and went into a manure pit.

"The only bad thing about manure is that it stinks," Ken said. "But manure makes good fertilizer to make the crops grow."

The students had lots of questions for the Rohrers. They asked, ""Why do cows have numbers on their ears."

They learned that cows wear numbers for identification. And that the numbers are sort of like getting pierced ears for earrings.

Ken showed the children the hospital area of the barn where cows are kept when they get sick. He showed them how cows are given aspirins for fevers. The children decided they would rather swallow aspirins for people rather than the large tablets given to cows.

Ken told them about the cow that had a twisted stomach and needed an operation the day before. The children were amazed that cows could have operations just like people, but they wondered why a cow had four stomachs.

The children learned that good dairy cows give milk 10 months a year and get a two month vacation in the meadow before giving birth to a calf.

Cows are milked eight at a time. Ken explained how the cows are washed with a hose and dried with a paper towel to make sure they are very clean before they are milked with a milking machine.

The children saw the large glass containers for the milk. Ken said, "Some cows fill the container with 65 pounds of milk in 5 minutes."

Ken showed the children how the milk runs through a stainless steel line and is strained with a cloth before going into a bulk milk tank. A milk truck comes to the farm everyday to pump out six tons of milk to take to the processing plant.

Although the children would have loved to milk a cow, Ken explained that the cows become nervous with so many strangers watching and might kick or not let her milk down.

He did allow many of the children to give a calf a bottle.

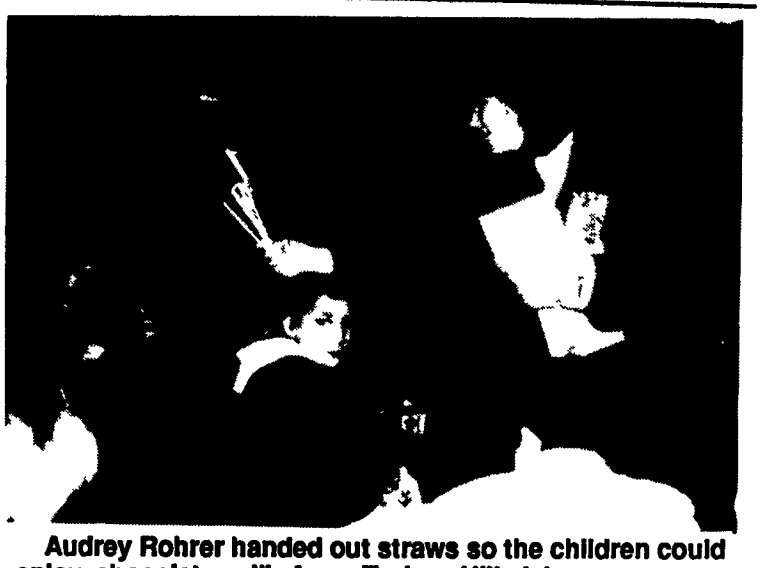
The children sat on hay bales and listened while Richard and Audrey Rohrer talked about the farm and dairy products.

"Farmers need to take care of a calf for two years before he starts getting a return for it. The cow is three years old before its milk has paid the expenses the farmer has put into it. It takes $3 a day to feed each cow."

Richard said, "The average cow gives 120 small milk cartons of milk every day. The children figured out that five of the Rohrers' cows were needed everyday to provide the milk the children drink at their school.

Audrey told the children that cows provide meat, milk, milk products, fertilizer, and leather. She showed them how they should look for a Real seal to make sure the products are made from dairy products and are not imitation products.

Many students took turns holding a bottle for this one-day-old calf.



Audrey Rohrer handed out straws so the children could enjoy chocolate milk from Turkey Hill dairy.

"There are lots of ways to help farmers," the Rohrers told the students.

- Drink lots of milk.
- Look for the Real seal on dairy products to make sure it is not imitation.
- Don't throw grass clippings, shrubbery, and other trash in the farmers fields or it will make the cows sick.
- Don't throw glass bottles in the field or tractor tires will become flat.
- If you want to ride snowmobile or 4-wheelers in the field, ask the farmer. Otherwise people may be injured from fences on the property.
- Don't forget to eat lots of ice cream.

Meet Somerset County Farm Women President

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

JENNERSTOWN (Somerset Co.) — Audrey Gilbert was born in the midst of the farming community in Somerset County. After she graduated from Somerset Area High School, she married Dwight Gilbert in 1963.

For the first five years of their marriage, the Gilberts traveled over the state because Dwight's job was to change tires on heavy construction equipment.

In 1970, the couple settled in Somerset County. Dwight kept the same job, but was no longer required to travel.

The couple has two children, a son, 22, who is married and has two sons, and a daughter, 19.

In 1975, Audrey became a Farm Women member through the influence of her mother who had joined the organization two years earlier. Since then, Audrey has served as treasurer, president, and vice president of her society. At the county level, Audrey has been treasurer, state director, and is presently president of the county's 225 members in 11 societies.

Audrey likes the friendliness and warmth of the members. She said, "For a couple of hours every month, it's nice to get out and be with others."

Farm Women are active in charitable organizations. Their theme, "For happiness" is showing charity to the community.

"Each group does its own project," Audrey said. "Most donate items to senior citizen centers and to rest homes. Members contribute money to the food pantry, cancer fund, and other charitable organizations."

Audrey is both full-time homemaker and businesswoman. She works in her home as a tax consultant. Her interest in income taxes stems from a business education course that she had taken in high school. She has had her own business since since 1975.

Because she works at home, Audrey is also able to be a full-time babysitter for her two grandsons.

She is also active in church and community activities. As a member of Bofwell Church of the Nazarene, Audrey is treasurer and for seven years has been director of children's church. Audrey is a member of the Laurel Mountain Senior Citizens Center and is a volunteer with the local Firemen's Ladies Auxillary.

Audrey Gilbert

Recently, Audrey was recognized by the Department of Education for her volunteer work as a teacher's aide for a special education class at a local school.

"It's rewarding working with children and realizing the value of helping the mentally handicapped. I'd encourage others to get involved for the self satisfaction of seeing the kids progress with love and understanding," Audrey said.

Audrey believes society is becoming more understanding toward the mentally handicapped. She thinks that this change stems from the federal government allotting funds that enable handicapped kids to get out and live in the real world.

Because she had a daughter in the class, Audrey said that she became interested in helping as a volunteer teacher's aide. It enables the children to get the one-to-one teaching that they need, she said.

Berks Farm Women Sponsor Fashion Show

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — "Heel height is beginning to come down.

"Skirts are fashionable at the knee, above the knee, and at the calf.

"Fashion is whatever you want."

These were a few of the fashion statements that Farm Women learned during a Fashion Show held March 23, at Boscov's in Lebanon.

For the fifth year, Berks County Society 11 sponsored a Fashion Show as a fundraiser for their organization. Models from the store paraded numerous spring fashions for dress, sports, and careers.

The women were told that suits are important in everyone's wardrobe. This year, there are many new styles where a classy jacket is worn without a blouse and also traditional tailored "mix and match" styles.

Jacket dresses, especially in black and white colors, are popular and shirtwaist dresses are making a comeback.

Polka dots are very big and jungle prints are seen in a lot of different styles.

Pants are shown with and without cuffs and in narrow and wide legs.

"The Fashion Show is an enjoyable event and our only fundraiser," said Doris Brown, who is president of Society 11.

The Fashion Show was open to Farm Women members, friends, and strangers — whoever paid a $1.50 admission fee. The profits provide door prizes for the Berks Heim Volunteer Thank You banquet and is used to assist other charities.

The Fashion Show although sponsored by a Berks County society, is held in neighboring Lebanon because most members live closer to Lebanon and shop in that area, according to Wendy Lingle, a charter member of the 17-year-old society.

Farm Women from Society 11 provided numerous door prizes and refreshments for those in attendance.

The Berks County Society is part of the larger Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women. The purpose of the organization is to contribute to the power and influence of Farm Women, to contribute to the community activity of Farm Women, to develop leadership and to promote better living conditions in the farm homes of America.

Suits without blouses are big on the fashion scene.

It's difficult to tell whether fashion or fellowship was the more enjoyed by those who attended the event.

NUTRITION HOTLINE

March is National Nutrition Month. Do you know that free, accurate information about nutrition is only as far away as your telephone?

The number is 800-366-1655. The National Center for Nutrition and Dietetics has operated a toll-free hotline staffed by registered dietitians since December 1991. They will answer questions weekdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Eastern time. There are pre-recorded nutrition messages accessible 24 hours a day, changing each month to incorporate seasonal issues and scientific breakthroughs. In the first two weeks of operation, more than 10,000 people called.

WHO NEEDS VITAMINS?

We all know people who pop everything from Vitamin A through K in the quest for a healthy life. But do they really need to take vitamins?

Most people can get the nearly 40 vitamins and minerals required to ensure a healthy body by eating a varied diet.

If you do take supplements, do not take those that contain more than 100 percent of the recommended daily allowance. They can be unsafe. At high levels, some nutrients, such as Vitamin A, are toxic.

Also, be wary of advertising claims that "natural" brands are better than synthetic. The chemical structures of natural and synthetic supplements are identical. Your body will metabolize and absorb both types the same way.

Natural vitamins often cost more and consumers may not get what that are paying for. The term "natural" has never been legally defined. Some of these vitamins contain only 1 percent of the naturally occurring vitamins.

Generic or store brands are as effective as expensive name-brand supplements. Natural ingredients and nonvitamin compounds, such as rose hips, only increase the price and do not improve the quality.

Since vitamins and minerals lose their effectiveness over time, you should check the expiration date before purchasing them.

Vitamins and minerals play an important role in the diet, but they cannot do their job efficiently without the help of carbohydrates, protein, fat, fiber and water. Supplements should not be taken as a substitute for real food or as a way to avoid including a healthful variety of foods in your diet.

Test Your Soil

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Regular soil testing can pay dividends for both farmers and homeowners. Knowing your soil's nutrient requirements and pH level — a measure of acidity — will help you make informed decisions on proper applications of fertilizer and lime.

Triazine herbicides often don't work well at low pH levels. So taking a look at last year's weed map might provide clues on where soil samples should be taken this year. The state soil testing laboratory is operated by the Cooperative Extension Service. The laboratory now charges $5 per sample for lawn and garden tests and $6 per sample for routine farm field tests.

Soil testing service is a good bargain for protecting environmental quality, as well as insuring green lawns, luxuriant shrubbery, bountiful gardens, and profitable crop production.

For more information on soil testing, farmers should contact their local office of the Cooperative Extension Service. Phone numbers for the county Extension offices are listed in the blue pages of telephone directories.

Schuylkill County Fair Completes Cookbook

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW RINGGOLD (Schuylkill Co.) — It isn't the season for a Fair, but that doesn't mean preparations aren't being made for it in Schuylkill County.

That's where Helen Koch and the County Fair Association are working hard to raise money to pay for an arts and crafts building.

They have compiled the Schuylkill County Fair Cook Book, which has more than 600 recipes. The profits from the cookbook will help cover the building that was constructed in 1991.

"We are proud of our Fair and our fairgrounds," Helen said. "Each year the Fair gets bigger and better."

This year, the fair will be held August 3 through 8.

The cookbook is $9.25, which includes postage and handling. Send a check with your name and address to Helen Koch, R.D. #2, Box 18, New Ringgold, PA 17960.

"It's a great gift and a collector's item," Helen said. "Many of the 'Blue Ribbon' recipes from the Schuylkill County Fair are included."

Here are a few of the recipes from the cookbook.

BLUEBERRY MUFFINS
Blue Ribbon Recipe

½ cup milk
¼ cup oil
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup drained blueberries
1½ cups flour
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt

Stir milk and oil into egg. Add dry ingredients; stir until moistened. Fold in blueberries. Put in greased muffin tins or cupcake papers. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

We have gotten so many garden catalogs and it is hard to decide from whom to order. First I hunt rhubarb in one catalog and compare size and price and then after checking in the other five, I still don't know which is the best buy.

My husband ordered lots of roses as he hopes to finally find time to tend them. He also ordered trees and I ordered shrubs and mums. The problem will be where to plant them when they arrive.

We've hired a landscaper to put in some large trees and other plantings. But, we can always think of other things that we want. Although, after paying to have grass hydro-seeded, I hate to dig it up for a flower bed.

Houseplants come and houseplants go. By that I mean that even though I've given away a few of mine, I've been given some too. A friend gave me a gloxinia and a relative gave a fern and another plant that looks like an iris but I do not know its correct name. It blooms early in the spring and one of mine had four orchid-like flowers on one stem in our bay window. Usually there are only two flowers and then they only last for one day.

I've allowed a four o'clock to grow in a large pot of vines. Now it surprised me by being full of yellow flowers. Usually, I'll put a few larkspur in a pot and they too bloom on the windowsill in March. My garden has hundreds of larkspur and four o'clocks which seed themselves and must be destroyed. They say a weed is any plant that grows where you don't want it.

At the present time, I can't imagine how I'll tend two gardens this summer — one at the farmhouse and a new one where we live. I'm hoping Allen will be a big help in cultivating them.

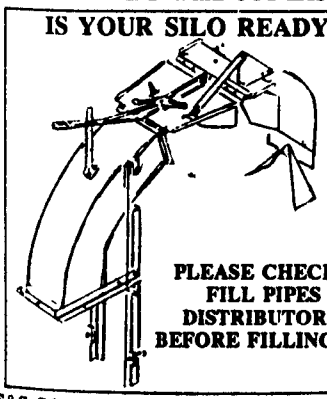
Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

STRONGER AND WILL OUT LAST PLASTER

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

Holstein Breeders Tour Mid-Atlantic Farms

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MARYLAND — As every member of a business is different, so each business is different.

That message came across loud and clear during a tour last week of four Holstein breeding and dairy production businesses; one in Pennsylvania and three in Maryland.

The day-long bus trip was sponsored by the Lebanon County Holstein Club so that members and enthusiasts could visit some of the high profiled Holstein businesses outside of their home county.

The event was typical of the tours also offered through dairy cattle breed organizations and extension offices througout the state.

Several of the owners of the four registered Holstein farms visited talked about the popularity of Canadian-proven stock and Canadian bulls for transmitting strong legs and feet, and wide and flat rear ends, which help in durability and longevity.

Most of the breeders visited during the tour spoke highly of their results of crossing Canadian stock to some of the domestic, longer legged and higher-production genetic lines.

A couple of the farms were almost identical in bull selections, and also in tracing lines back to the Astronaut bull.

Leaving from northern Lebanon County, a charter bus carried 44 people first to the Adams County farm of Penn Gate Farm in Littlestown.

Penn Gate is a partnership operation run jointly by Steve and Chris Wood and Chris's father Bob Gitt, on a farm with a little more than 100 acres of cropland. Additional cropland is rented.

One of the top Holsteins the young couple has is P.G. Elevation Flashie, a 4-E 94-point aged cow which reflects a sturdiness in structure and a productive longevity.

As a 2-year-old, Flashie made a 312-day record of 17,743 pounds of milk and 748 pounds of fat. Her production record as a 7-year-old was 32,412 pounds of milk and 1,382 pounds of fat.

"Most of you have probably heard of her," Chris said. The Flashie cow genetics are prevelant in the herd, she said. Flashie daughters and granddaughters fill a good portion of the rest of 70-stall stanchion barn.

In addition to the Lebanon group, a group of more than 40 people from York County also visited the Penn Gate Farm at the same time to see some of the Excellent and Very Good cows and to talk shop with the Wood's.

The 1992 rolling herd average for Penn Gate Farm was 18,126 pounds of milk, 668 pounds of fat and 600 pounds of protein.

Stalls were cement pads with a dry sawdust used for bedding.

Most of the feed is raised on the farm although Steve said that normally they buy some feed for a couple weeks just before taking in the first cutting.

Last year however, they started buying feed in October, because of the severity of the drought.

Philosophical, physical, educational and financial differences among farm owners were evident during the tour.

Those participating on the tour said they came for a variety of reasons — to look at offspring of known sires; feeding and watering systems; housing structures; breeding programs; calf raising programs and facilities; and to socialize with fellow dairy enthusiasts.

Touring competitive facilities has long been a way for American businessmen to better understand the state of the industry they are in. It is no different with the dairy cattle business.

With United States dairy production agriculture having metamorphised into a highly technical, multi-dimensional business, the attraction of bus tours to successful dairy farms has increased significantly over the years.

Late winter and pre-planting springtime is the most time-affordable period of year for such self-improvement excercises.

After the Penn-Gate visit, the next stop on the March 12 tour was the Windsor Manor Farm in Maryland. The 125-acre farm is run by Jason and Donna Myers who milk 55 cows.

They have a fulltime herdsman and two young daughters who help.

The raise about 40 acres for alfalfa and 60 for corn silage. Whatever corn in excess of silage needs is used for shell corn which they also buy in the spring with money from selling a couple of cows.

This past year was particularly bad for crop production, Jason said.

The Myerses approach feeding in a little different way, using what Jason called a "PMR," a play on "TMR." TMR stands for totally mixed ration. The Myers' ration is acronymed PMR for partially mixed ration — he feeds some of the grains and silages mixed together while feeding hay separately.

Holstein enthusiasts from Lebanon County tour the calf-raising facility at Savage Leigh farm. Everything was constructed for cow comfort and ease of operation.

He bunk feeds grain at 24 pounds to those cows which produce up to 70 pounds per day and additional grain for those making 80 pounds of more per day.

He allows the heifers to clean up the bunks after he turns the milking herd out so there is never any leftover feed to sweep out.

He and his wife moved to the current farm eight years ago after dissolving a 10 year partnership with his father. He found the current Carroll County farm through the help of his father and the two split the herd 50-50, deciding on animals via "draft-pick." He said it took several days to split the herd.

The herd's current rolling herd average is about 21,200 pounds of milk, 780 pounds of fat and 685 pounds of protein, Jason said.

They have a BAA of 107.5 and have mostly homebred animals.

He said they trace the family herd back to the Kelly cow family, and that about five cow families are represented in the herd. "I've always had respect for Astronaut," Jason said, indicating his breeding preferences. He said he has some Blackstars coming.

Another well-known Holstein breed prefix is the 350-acre Gay Ridge Farm, which owns some cattle in syndicate with Kingstead Farms.

Gay Ridge milks about 120 cows and has about an equal number of replacements.

The rolling herd average is just over 20,000 pounds of milk and the herd has a BAA of 107.7. A strong cow family is the "Lilac6 line, according to Donald Wilcom, who with his wife Mary Louise, operates the farm.

The whole herd is on the same ration, except for being broken down into young cow and old cow groups.

Most of the herd is homebred with 24 Astronaut daughters and 12 Starbuck daughters in the milking string.

Currently, they are crossing those lines to Blackstar.

The facility consists of a remodeled barn done in a California flat style that is working well for the family.

They use a homebred Citation sire for cleanup.

The last farm on the tour was the Savage-Leigh Farm located near the West Virginia line in Knoxville.

Owned by Wayne and Cindy Savage, the current farm was moved into in 1989. Formerly Wayne milked 275 cows in partnership with his family on a 1,500-acre farm in Montgomery County, Maryland, near Washington, D.C.

In 1987, the couple purchased the current 200-acre site. In 1988 a majority of the buildings were constructed and remodeling done. They moved into the facility in 1989.

To help feed their 136-head string, which is normally closer to 160 head, they rent an additional 350 acres. (Several days before the tour, the Savages sold 21 of the milking herd. Those 21 cows averaged 84 pounds of milk per day.)

There is still alive on the farm a 12-year-old cow which was the 1989 first aged cow and grand champion of the Maryland Spring Show, Savage-Leigh-E Star Grace, an Excellent 95. She is one of the family favorites and a strong part of the cow herd lineage.

Wayne Savage shows one of his young cows to visiting Holstein breeders from Lebanon County.

This several-hour-old, still a little wet, calf peers out from a maternity pen at the Savage-Leigh Farm. Maintaining a clean place for calving is one step toward preventing calf mortality. Newborn calves are allowed to suckle colostrum from the dam.

"She is the best cow we bred," Cindy said. Grace had also been 1987 reserve grand champion to Hanover Hill Charity. Grace is now considered a flush donor cow.

This past year a Savage-Leigh Starbuck daughter won the Maryland Futurity in a surprise victory for the family. Cindy said she thought another animal was sure to win.

The registered stock for the herd originated with the purchase of some animals from the Naval Academy in Annapolis and also as a result of a trip to Canada where some Astronaut daughters were picked up.

The Astronaut line was crossed to Elevation which was crossed to Valiant, then to Starbuck. It is not a numbers herd, Cindy said.

The family shows extensively, mostly the children handle the showing duties, and a 20-foot by 20-foot carpeted show room can attest to their successes. Glass display cases are filled with plaques, trophies and ribbons. The walls are filled with framed photographs of some of the best cows.

More than 90 percent of the animals they've shown have been home bred.

The Savage-Leigh facility was designed for both cow comfort and for ease of operation.

It sits on a hill in the middle of a fertile-appearing valley, apparently still part of the limestone crescent that reaches from New Jersey-Delaware through Pennsylvania and Maryland. A breeze is almost always present, all year.

The home is an old, large brick farmhouse set back from a public road by a long farm lane that passes over a stream.

The dimensions of the cow buildings, the aisles, and the locations of each building were measured so as to accommodate a front end loader for scraping out manure.

A double-6 herringbone parlor is actually large enough for eight milking stalls. It was made that way for possible future expansion, although that's not the family's plan, Cindy said.

The herd average on the all-registered Holstein herd is 23,439 pounds of milk at 3.7 percent fat. According to Wayne and Cindy, the switch to a totally mixed ration (TMR) was one of the best moves they ever made.

"The mix wagon was probably the best investment we made,"

(Turn to Page B29)

The Savage-Leigh Farm showroom is a tribute to the cattle and the showmanship of the Savage family. Most of the awards were won by the children of Wayne and Cindy Savage.

This feeding trough at Windsor Manor is automated so that the feed before this cow is brought, via conveyor system, from the feed room at the silos behind the cow, along the conveyor system visible in part above the cow to the bunk, where it is further spread out and distributed. It takes only seconds to fill the feed trough in this way, said owner Jason Myers.

On the left, Jeff Werner holds a handfull of high moisture barley while Gay Ridge Farm owner Donald Wilcom explains some of the other experimental feeding changes he was forced to look into in light of the severe crop failure last year.

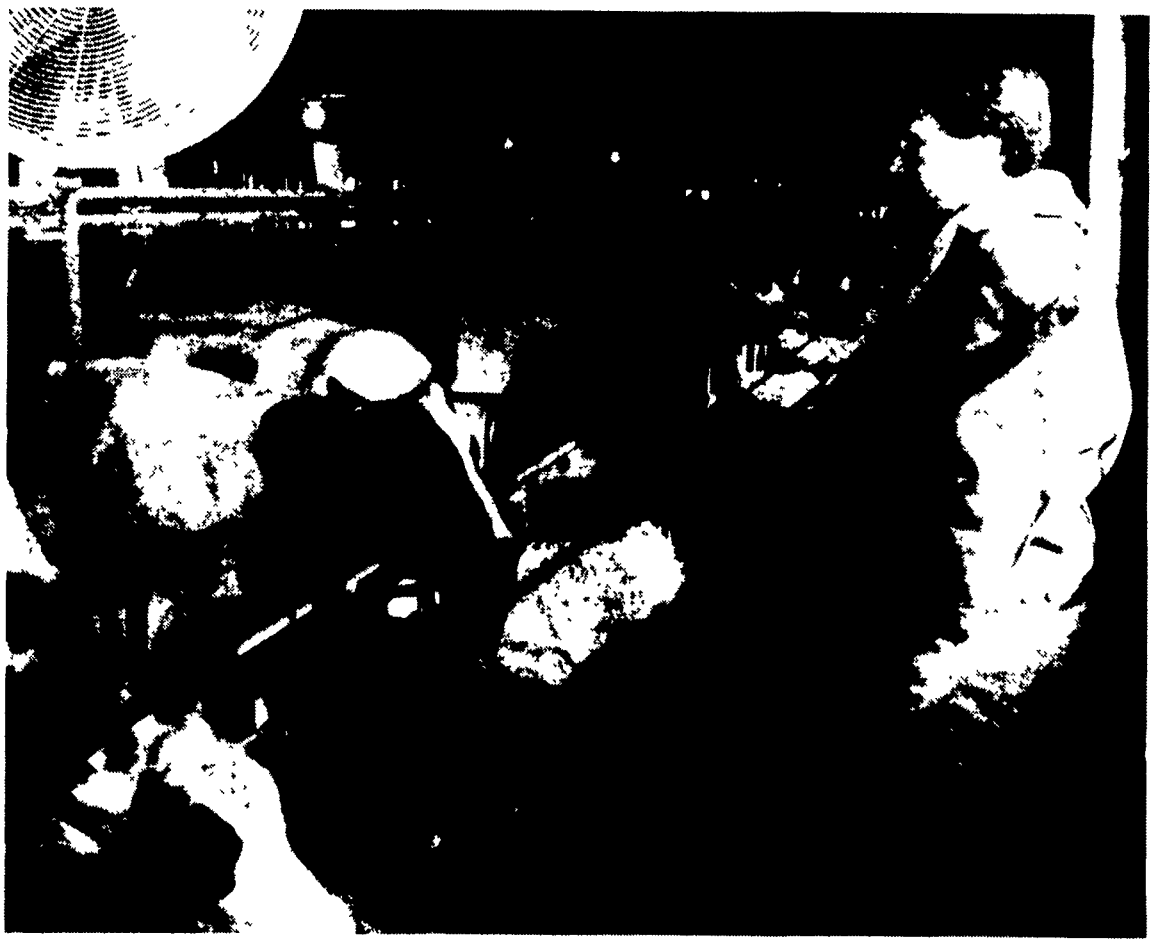
Cindy said. Since moving into the facility and switching to TMR, the herd has increased an average of 3,000 pounds of milk over the past three years.

The farms visited by the Lebanon Holstein Club were also visited by Lancaster County dairymen during their tour the day before.

A number of bus tours are currently being offered by various county organizations.

In addition to visiting the various farms and seeing the different animals and offspring of certain sires, those who tour get an opportunity to discuss possible purchase of calves, look at some animals which may be headed for a consignment sale, talk shop, look at equipment, share stories and get to know each other better.



Kirby Horst, a Lebanon County dairyman, looks over the milking registered Holsteins owned by Steve and Chris Wood, in Adams County.

This 12-year-old aged dry cow, Savage-Leigh-E Star Grace, an Excellent 95, is the pride of joy of Savage-Leigh Farm. Grace now occupies the role of flush donor cow.

The John Deere AMT® 626 Transport has been spotted on farms, ranches, golf courses, orchards, even in Saudi Arabia during Operation Desert Storm.

While it has a rugged 1000-lb. cargo capacity (with 200-lb. operator and passenger), a loaded AMT 626 Transport exerts less ground pressure than an average man walking. That means this four-wheel drive, all-terrain vehicle is gentle enough for landscape needs, yet ready to tackle mud and muck.

The show will be held in an entirely new building this year. I am looking for quality consignments for the afternoon auction.

This property could be ideal as a Gentleman's showplace, a horse farm, truck farm, etc.

NATIONAL FRAME BUILDERS ASSOCIATION INC

Rigidply Rafters laminated beams offer many advantages when building Homes, Schools, Churches and Commercial, Recreational and Agricultural structures. Our beams are available in Industrial, Architectural and Premium Appearance Grades. The rich warm feeling they create enhances any structure.

Laminated beams are superior in all strength characteristics to solid sawn lumber; they resist checking and twisting because of the use of multiple plies of kiln dried lumber, bonded together with phenol-rescorcinal glue.

Rigidply Rafters Inc., has been manufacturing glue laminated products since its initial start up in 1954. We are confident that with our efficient manufacturing plant, team of quality control experts, engineering and sales personnel, we can ensure you a dimensionally stable and dependable product.

To better serve you, we offer our beams in a variety of lumber species: Southern Yellow Pine (CCA treated and untreated), Douglas Fir, Poplar and Cedar.

In the final phase of the manufacturing process the beams can be cut, drilled, stained and sealed to your specification. A protective wrapping can be applied to maintain the beauty and quality of the beams during delivery and installation.

NEW FOOD LABELING RULES ARE COMING

Milton E. Madison
Assistant Professor
Ag Economics

A recent "Feedstuffs" article (February 27, 1992, pp. 22 and 26) highlighted some concerns about proposed new food labeling rules. Comments on the rules were collected during February, with the final rule to be released in November and implemented in May 1993.

The rule will:

- End excessive, inaccurate, and misleading nutritional claims and gimmicks.
- Promote food innovation and healthier diets.
- Cost a lot of money. New labels should be more easily read so consumers can select better foods and perhaps live longer.

Forty-five meat cuts are included in the rule. Poultry products covered include whole birds, breasts, wings, drumsticks, and thighs of chickens and turkeys.

The rule calls for mandatory labeling of all processed foods and voluntary labeling of raw, single-ingredient meat and poultry, with nutritional information available from in-store brochures or posters for voluntary labeling compliance.

If special descriptors are used on the label, full disclosure of nutritional information must be provided. These descriptors include free, fresh, high, low, less, more, reduced, light/lite/etc., source of, lean, and extra lean. Health claims will only be allowed if they are supported by publicly available scientific evidence and there is significant scientific agreement among scientists that the claim is true.

The additional food processing costs because of this program was estimated by USDA to be between $500 million and $1 billion per year or $10.4-11.1 billion over the next 20 years. The American Meat Institute used a different approach and came up with an estimated cost of $1,500 per label that will have to be developed or modified.

They estimate there are 1 million meat and poultry products to be relabeled, so first-year costs will be $2 billion when up-front testing costs are included. The cost over the next 20 years would be $22 billion.

Previous research at Penn State on food processing cost increases have shown that when all similar food products are affected by the cost increase, consumers pay nearly all (96 percent) of the cost increases through increased food prices.

Products are exempt if they are in small packages (less than 0.5 ounces), destined for food service or further processing, or if the business is small (less than $50,000 in food sales or less than $500,000 in food and merchandise sales).

The American Meat Institute argues that the transition time allowed for companies is too short, testing for nutrient content and printing of labels for that many products could flood labs and printers.

Whether the proposed rules have the intended affect of getting better information and innovative products on the market or cause companies to provide less information to avoid expensive labeling will depend on the consumer's willingness to pay the added processing costs involved.

Start testing now if you plan to label your products.

THINK ½ PRICE Lasts Twice As Long
1992 BARN PAINTING SPRAY & BRUSHING
To farm building owners —
Under today's farm economy it is time to reduce maintenance frustrations.
Do you remember of hearing of barn painting of approximately 75 years ago that it stayed nice longer? lasted 25 years?
Observation #1 In recent years many of these good old barn surfaces have been ruined by overcoating, poor preparation and application, lack of controlled paint placement and film thickness. The time is coming to salvage our buildings (a) Start over (b) Water blast (c) RESURFACE (d) Use solid stain to penetrate on bare spots! (e) Second coat with a breathing film thickness (f) Brush out in all directions with finest of bristles.
Really it is not as complicated as the recent changing regulations on clean milk production, or wet soils, or zoning. It is also less expensive than other barn painting experiences!
Observation #2 Colored water (latex) is less desirable for farm buildings. There is a long list of reasons for this.
Observation #3 Todays painted metal siding and roofing has a remarkably short life. Bad alloy or metal. There might be another list of reasons for this. To save it at reasonable coating cost - timing is important.
Observation #4 Today's wood selection for siding etc. is also poor. How about recycling building material?

FOCUS ON BEEF

Heifer AI and Synchronization

Today, many purebred and commercial cow/calf producers are taking another look at heifer AI (artificial insemination) and estrus synchronization, finding yet another way to increase overall productivity of the beef herd.

By combining the use of progeny-tested calving ease sires with today's improved synchronization methods, cattleman are able to capitalize on calf survival, labor savings, and productivity while enhancing the genetic level of the herd.

Calving difficulty is the number one concern with heifers. However, by using proven calving ease sires with low birth weight EPDs, calving difficulty can be minimized greatly.

A major benefit of using calving ease sires is producing a shorter gestation period within the cow herd. Heifers that calve earlier have more days to recover between calving and rebreeding. Less dystocia also means that heifers will breed back sooner, shortening the herd's calving interval and increasing cow productivity.

The use of synchronization also allows heifers to be bred earlier in the season, resulting in even earlier calves and a longer recovery time.

Your replacement heifers should meet the following requirements.

- Conceive within the first 25 days of the breeding season.
- Give birth to a live calf with little calving difficulty.
- Raise a calf to wean with an average or above-average weaning weight.
- Breed back as a 2-year-old in the first 45 days of the breeding season.
- Continue to be productive for six to nine years.

A successful AI/synchronization program will help you meet all these requirements, giving you a superior base of genetics on which to build your herd's future. For assistance in planning a AI/synchronization program, contact your county agent, veterinarian, or AI breeder.

Stream Bank Fencing

If cattle make a mud slide out of your creek side, consider fencing the stream bank.

Fencing is a low-cost, low maintenance farm management tool that has many benefits. Limiting livestock access to stream banks prevents erosion and loss of productive land. It also keeps streams cleaner.

As livestock climb up and down stream banks, the soil collapses and erodes, polluting the stream with sediment. Fencing permits vegetation to grow, which binds and stabilizes soil.

Plants also block agricultural runoff, trapping sediment and pesticides while absorbing excess nutrients before they enter the stream. This sends cleaner water downstream and supports a good neighbor policy.

Fencing protects herd health, too. Watering troughs are cleaner, more reliable sources of water than streams and are less likely to contain waterborne bacteria, which may cause bovine leptospirosis, mastitis, and other ailments. Animals also are less likely to injure themselves on steep, crumbling stream banks.

For more information about fencing, refer to "Stream Bank Fencing: Green Banks, Clean Streams," a newly released publication by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. Visit your local extension office for details.

Feedlot Drainage/Traction

Cattle feeders face enough adversity without leg injuries and poor performance caused by manure-slick concrete. But hard-to-drain squeeze chutes, single file chutes, and crowding pens are frequent injury areas. And hospital pens can be just as hard to keep dry.

Careful design of floors and drainage in such critical areas can reduce injuries and general stress on feeder cattle, improving health and performance. Since cattle leaving the squeeze chute seldom take their time, sure footing is essential.

Even on clean concrete, a diamond or square pattern of grooves is necessary for traction. An 8-inch separation between 1-inch deep by 1-inch wide grooves is a good guideline.

Without proper drainage of the same areas, traction and health are still at risk. Drainage is best addressed by designing processing areas, which should be rinsed clean after each use with wash-water drains, drain ditches, and sloped or curved floors to guide waste liquids.

Gutter-type drains should be placed out of cattle traffic to prevent balking animals, and be designed wide for easy cleaning. Floors should slope toward drains or gutter-type ditches and curve, if necessary, so waste bypasses processing areas. Slopes of ¼ to ½ inch per foot are recommended for moving waste without impairing animal mobility. General feedyard floor shape should be sloped or curved on the outer edges to prevent unwanted waste runoff.

Don't give up if your feedlot wasn't originally designed with good drainage or sure footing in mind. Problem areas, at least, can be jackhammered out and concrete repoured with the desired grade. The investment can make a feedlot safer and easier to maintain, cutting down on man-hours.

Water Testing, Tree Seedlings At Expo

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Is your water worthy of you?

Penn State Cumberland County Extension is offering reduced rate water testing at the Environmental Expo at the Camp Hill Shopping Mall on April 2-4.

Area residents interested in having their water tested for bacteria, nitrate, lead, pH, and total dissolved solids can pick up sample kits at the Camp Hill Mall on Thursday, April 2 and Friday, April 3 from 11 a.m.-8 p.m., and from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. on Saturday, April 4.

Two separate tests will be offered for the Expo:

- A test for bacteria and nitrate for $19.
- A test for bacteria, nitrate, lead, pH, and total dissolved solids for $39.

Return water samples to the Camp Hill Mall on Tuesday, April 7 for testing.

More information on how to collect the sample and when to return it will be available at the Expo at Penn State Extension's exhibit booth or call the extension office at (717) 240-6500 or (717) 697-0371, ext. 6500.

Also during the Environmental Expo, the Cumberland County Conservation District is extending their annual tree seedling sale. Anyone who is interested in planting tree seedlings or bulbs can stop by the Cumberland County Conservation District booth.

The annual tree seedling sale, which generally runs through March 31, will be extended during the Expo to give area residents a chance to purchase White Pine, Douglas Fir, Canadian Hemlock, Colorado Blue Spruce, and Sugar Maple seedlings along with 16 varieties of flower bulbs and pachysandra for ground cover.

Seedlings and ground cover can be purchased in bundles of 10, 25, 50, and 100. Orders must be placed during the Expo on April 2-4 and will be available for pickup in Carlisle, Shippensburg, or Mechanicsburg within three weeks.

Corn Growers Want EPA To Implement Act

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — More than 350 million gallons of corn-based ethanol plant expansion, utilizing more than 140 million bushels of corn, is on hold because of delayed implementation of the 1990 Clean Air Act Amendments, according to National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) President Tim Trotter, a Coal City, Ill. corn farmer.

In a letter to President Bush, Trotter asked that the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) be directed to implement the Clean Air Act as intended by Congress.

"Our high hopes have been dashed by the EPA's delays in announcing guidance for states carrying out the law's provisions in 39 carbon monoxide nonattainment cities, which threaten the required November 1 startup date," said Trotter.

Confusion over guidelines has led some states to draw up preliminary program rules that would preclude the use of 10 percent ethanol blends.

"The potential impact of canceled plant expansion on corn prices and rural development would be especially ill-timed given the current difficulties facing our nation's economy," Trotter said.

"Congress wanted the broadest use of all oxygenates in nonattainment carbon monoxide areas, allowing the market to decide what additive would be the most cost-effective in a given area," Trotter said. "NCGA is confident that ethanol blends can compete effectively for this market."

During NCGA's recent annual meeting, 216 farmer delegates from 23 states unanimously approved a resolution calling for the expedient implementation of the Clean Air Act Amendments without unnecessary limitations on oxygen levels. Nearly 800 NCGA members then signed a petition supporting the resolution.

"Mr. President, EPA is clearly running afoul of congressional intent in carrying out the Clean Air Act amendments," Trotter said.

The law requires gasoline with 2.7 percent oxygen be sold during four designated months in 39 carbon monoxide nonattainment areas. Early versions of select state implementation plans include proposed caps on oxygen content that would eliminate 10 percent ethanol blends from the oxygenated gasoline program.

With regard to reformulated gasoline to be used in ozone nonattainment cities, the fuel composition modeling now used by EPA effectively prohibits the use of ethanol blends in these cities when the ozone program goes into effect in 1995.

Yeo Farms Announces Spring Livestock Events

LOWELLVILLE, Ohio — Yeo Farms announced it is changing the date for its traditional Club Lamb Sale to introduce a new livestock judging competition for young livestock enthusiasts.

The Yeo Farms Club Lamb Sale and Livestock Judging Competition will take place at the farm on Saturday, April 25.

Registration for the judging competition is set for April 25 at 9:30 a.m. Junior and senior judging teams from 4-H and FFA clubs are invited from counties in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, and West Virginia. Yeo Farms will provide several classes of sheep and cattle from their operations for both team and individual judging competitions.

The Yeo Farms Club Lamb Sale will take place after the judging competition at 2 p.m. This year the sale will feature lambs out of a new wether sire owned jointly by Yeo Farms and Yellow Rose Sheep Co., which will also be a guest consignor to the sale.

A total of 40-45 lambs will be offered to 4-H and FFA buyers to use as summer projects leading to competition at county and state fairs.

Larry Garner of Carrollton, Ohio will be the auctioneer for the sale.

The Lawrence County 4-H Club will have a refreshment stand for a continental breakfast and lunch.

This will be the fifth year Yeo Farms has had a Club Lamb Sale. It is the first year that the sale has been held during daytime hours on a Saturday and that the event has been enlarged to include other livestock activities.

Yeo Farms is a crop and livestock farm, owned and operated by Ed and Gretchen Yeo of Lowellville, Ohio. Yeo Farms is a producer of grains, purebred Suffolk sheep, registered Angus cattle, and commercial cattle.

Yellow Rose Sheep Company is a partnership of Steve and Beth Taylor of Rochester, Pa. along with John Fought and Stacy Suffel of Carlise, Pa. Yellow Rose maintains flocks of Suffolk, Dorset, and Hampshire sheep and has been active in developing interest in club lamb competitions in the tri-state area.

Lab Agreements To Help Improve Farm Services

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff recently announced that a new agreement between Pennsylvania State University, the University of Pennsylvania, and the Department of Agriculture will provide better animal health diagnostic services to farmers through laboratory specialization.

"Under this arrangement, Penn State will specialize in virology, the University of Pennsylvania will focus on toxicology, and the Department's Summerdale laboratory will handle most regulatory testing," Wolff said.

The two university laboratories, which are partially funded by the Pennsylvania Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission and the department's Summerdale laboratory, will each provide complete diagnostic services but also will specialize to avoid costly duplication.

"Each laboratory has unique capabilities, but under the supervision of the Animal Health Commission, testing can be referred between labs so that diagnostic services can be more complete," said Wolff, who serves as chairman of the commission. "In complex cases, lab technicians can consult with experts on each institution's staff."

Information on available testing and a new fee structure will soon be mailed to lab users. In the meantime, questions concerning laboratory services should be directed to the individual laboratories or to the Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission at (717) 782-2852.

Triple H Equipment Receives Top Award

PEACH BOTTOM (Lancaster Co.) — Jim Huber of Triple H Equipment was presented one of the top awards for "highest dollar volume" by a Vermeer dealer.

The award is presented annually to the top Vermeer dealers throughout all of North America. he qualified by being one of last year's top volume dealers in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Maryland, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine.

Huber received the award while attending the 1992 Vermeer annual meeting in San Antonio, Texas. The sales conference was held in conjunction with Vermeer's 20th anniversary celebration on the invention of the round bale concept, a concept which helped revolutionize and mechanize the hay harvesting industry. Gary Vermeer, who is credited with developing the round baler, was the featured speaker at the meeting.

Triple H Equipment, a Vermeer dealer since 1974, sells and services a full line of Vermeer hay harvesting equipment including round balers, mowers, rakes, movers, feeders, processors, grain drills, rock pickers, and other assorted agricultural tools.

It marks the second time that Triple H Equipment has received the award since it was first presented in 1989.

NC+ Introduces New Semi-Dwarf Forage

LINCOLN, Neb. — NC+ Hybrids is introducing Nutri-Choice, a unique semi-dwarf forage with a high grain-to-stover ratio.

Jim Osborne, NC+ director of sorghum research, said no other product offers producers the advantages of Nutri-Choice.

Seven years of research show that Nutri-Choice has excellent grain yields, standability, and stress tolerance. In addition, Nutri-Choice matures about 10 days earlier than conventional forages. In fact, Osborne recommends that farmers avoid planting Nutri-Choice with another forage because of the early maturity.

"Our data showed Nutri-Choice was five to seven percentage points drier at harvest when compared to other competitive forages," Osborne said.

Nutri-Choice is best suited for early harvest, high-grain silage.

The six- to seven- foot hybrid can be used throughout the nation, Osborne said, adding that dairy producers who have been mixing forage sorghums with corn may find Nutri-Choice especially appealing.

"Producers can beef up their rations with Nutri-Choice," Osborne said.

A limited quantity of Nutri-Choice is available for spring seeding. Ample quantities will be available for 1993.

Mower-Conditioner Speeds Drying Time

VERNON, N.Y. — A new mower conditioner that can cut crop drying time to just 1½ to 2 days and lays swaths requiring half as many passes to harvest is available from Kuhn Farm Machinery.

The Kuhn FC 301 G mower conditioner, featuring a free-swinging finger rotor and adjustable/reversible comb, is designed for conditioning grassy crops. Conventional methods for drying crops with a 20 percent or less moisture content can take from 3 to 5 days. With the Kuhn FC 301 G, crops can be harvested in 1½ to 2 days. Wilted grass for silage, with an average moisture content of 60 percent, can be harvested in just 4 to 5 hours.

The FC 301 G mower conditioner also speeds up harvesting time. The unit's swath board is designed to merge two swaths, creating one swath 7'6" in size. The swath can be collected by an 8' forage harvester pickup in half the passes required with conventionally sized swaths, saving both operating time and costs. And since crops are harvested so soon after cutting, they retain their maximum nutritive value. If required, the FC 301 G will also lay axial swaths.

The Kuhn FC 301 G incorporates six cutting discs with twin blades to mow 7½ acres in less than one hour. Additionally, a safety breakback mechanism protects against damage by stones or debris.

The FC 301 G is equipped with Kuhn's exclusive Gyrodine® swivel hitch. This device has been specially designed to maintain the distance between the tractor PTO and machine. The PTO shaft is always perfectly in line, even in the tighest corners. Maneuverability is also improved and drive-train chatter and fatigue are reduced. Another major advantage of the Gyrodine® hitch is that the unit can be operated at either 540 or 1000 rpm. By simply removing a pin, the FC 301 G can be adapted to the tractor's PTO speed.

The FC 301 G, a towed model, requires 100 HP for operation. When conventional mowing is desired, the FC 301 G's conditioning unit can be removed and a special guard fitted in its place. Simple to transport, the Kuhn FC 301 G folds to a 9'10" travel width.

For more information, contact Kuhn Farm Machinery, Inc., P.O. Box 224, Vernon, N.Y. 13476, (315) 829-2620.

Get The Lead Out, Say Water Specialists

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Although lead has been removed from consumer products such as gasoline and interior paint, it remains a major health threat in Pennsylvania.

A leading source of lead contamination is drinking water, according to water specialists in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences and the Environmental Resources Research Institute.

"Lead is one of the most serious problems in both public and private water systems in the state," said Dr. William Sharpe, professor of forest hydrology.

Lead poses the biggest threat to children. Once in the bloodstream, it can cause serious neurological damage, loss of I.Q., mental retardation, and other problems. Lead also can cause stroke, heart attack, hearing loss, and kidney and liver damage.

Lead leaches into drinking water primarily from plumbing systems, usually from leaded solder at pipe joints. Corrosive water adds to the problem.

"Corrosive water generally is acidic water that is also soft," said Bryan Swistock, project assistant in forest hydrology. "Hard water contains minerals that can coat the inside surface of pipes and keep lead from dissolving, but soft and acidic water dissolves lead, contaminating tap water."

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has set a drinking water standard for lead of 15 parts per billion (ppb). Beginning in 1992, community water systems will be required to test for lead.

If the water in more than 10 percent of monitored households exceeds that standard, the supplier will be required to treat the system's water to reduce acidity. Suppliers that deliver water through lead service pipes will have 15 years to replace the pipes if water treatment fails to reduce lead levels below the standard.

Individual water supply owners, such as those who maintain private wells, are responsible for their own water quality.

Sharpe and Swistock are conducting a survey to determine the prevalence of lead in the state's private water supplies. So far they have analyzed water from 28 counties representing all but the northwestern region of the state.

Their data show that 30 percent of nearly 1,200 samples contained at least 10 ppb of lead, and 21 percent exceeded EPA's 15 ppb standard. Only five counties had no samples that exceeded the standard.

Although the Pennsylvania legislature recently enacted a bill banning leaded solder, pipes, and fixtures in new construction, Swistock said testing water for lead is a good idea, especially in older homes or areas where corrosive water is prevalent. If tests indicate the presence of lead at unacceptable levels, precautions should be taken.

"The simplest way to rid your drinking water of lead is to let your tap run for at least a minute before consuming water, particularly in the morning," said Swistock. "The water has to be in the pipes for about an hour before lead will leach in. Anytime the water has been sitting in the pipes for at least that long, you should let it run before you drink it."

Swistock said because this solution wastes water, he recommends doing it once in the morning, then filling a container for consumption throughout the day. More costly solutions include treating water to reduce acidity or remove lead or replacing the plumbing system in the home.

For more information about lead in drinking water, contact your local extension office.

Environmental Expo At Camp Hill

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Recycling, composting, pesticide safety, water and energy conservation, attracting wildlife, lawn and garden care, water and soil testing — useful ideas on these and many other topics will be available at the 1992 Environmental Expo at the Camp Hill Shopping Mall April 2-4.

"Backyard Actions for a Healthy Earth" is this year's theme for the Environmental Expo. More than 24 exhibitors from area environmental and conservation organizations will be on hand to provide answers to today's environmental questions. A wide variety of hands-on demonstrations and programs are planned throughout the three-day exhibition.

"The Expo will provide area residents with an opportunity to pick up new ideas to take home and try themselves," said Tom McCarty of the Cumberland County extension office. "With an emphasis on this being the 'decade of the environment' and how every day should be Earth Day, the Expo will show people how they really can make a difference."

The Expo will have programs for the whole family, including plans for backyard composting, water and soil testing, energy savings at home, water quality and the Chesapeake Bay, tree planting in your community, becoming involved in the legislative process, recycling, and Cumberland County 4-H projects.

On Thursday, April 2, Coffey and the Jammer of WTPA radio will serve as masters of ceremonies for the official Expo, opening at 7 p.m. The ceremony will feature Camp Hill Mayor Stephen Urban speaking on the town's environmental issues and will include an overview of the Expo, a lawn mower safety demonstration, a talk on pesticide safety on the lawn, and a 4-H rocket launch.

Friday, April 3, will feature exhibits and projects from the Cumberland County 4-H program. At 7 p.m., family programs include an environmental play put on by the 4-H, a program on family recycling presented by Phillip Schuller of the Pennsylvania Energy Office, and a 4-H fashion show.

Saturday, April 4, from 10 a.m.-12:30 p.m., kids can participate in building a landfill model, learn how to handle money, or learn how to fish. At 11 a.m. on Saturday, Representatives Pat Vance and John Broujos will discuss the scenic river status of the Conodoguinet Creek and other environmental issues in Pennsylvania.

Additional programs scheduled for Saturday are a lawn mower safety demonstration at 11:45 a.m., backyard gardening ideas to attract wildlife at 12 p.m. and 12:30 p.m., "fly casting" at 1 p.m., "Storm Drain Stenciling" at 1:30 p.m., "Plant Propagation" at 2 p.m., and "The Incredible Egg" at 2:30 p.m.

The Environmental Expo is organized and sponsored by the Cumberland County extension with help from the Alliance for the Chesapeake Bay, Cumberland County Conservation District, Representative Kenneth J. Cole's Office, Trout Unlimited, and Whitetail Environmental Center. The Expo will be open from 10 a.m.-9 p.m. on Thursday, April 2 and Friday, April 3, and from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on Saturday, April 4.

Farm Credit Hosts Economist

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — Northeastern Farm Credit sponsored an agricultural outlook conference featuring the nationally known Dr. John Marten, chief economist for "Farm Journal Magazine."

Marten addressed the topic "Production, Prices and Politics," and spoke at two different locations recently. More than 300 farmers attended the conferences. An afternoon meeting was held at the Rockwell Center, Milton and the evening session was held at the Sheraton, Williamsport.

Marten used graphs, charts, visual overheads, and statistics to support his forecasts concerning the economy, the drought, changes in world politics, and international trade. Following Marten's presentation, farmers and agribusinesses had the opportunity to speak with Marten directly during a question and answer session.

Commodity Bill Signed

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agricultural commodity marketing boards can now breathe a sigh of relief, following the passage of a bill that is essential to their livelihood.

The Senate passed House Bill 401, sponsored by State Rep. Kenneth J . Cole, D-Adams. Governor Casey signed ihe bill recently.

Cole introduced the legislation to further streamline the process for creating and continuing commodity marketing programs. The bill originally passed the House in April of 1991. The Pennsylvania Apple Promotion Program faces a renewal referendum this spring.

"This bill provides desperately needed changes to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Commodities Marketing Act," said Cole. "It is important to have this promotion program for agricultural products grown in the commonwealth. The programs administered by producers represent some of the most successful promotion programs we have."

Guy Donaldson, vice president of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association and chairman of the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board, said he is pleased that this legislation has come to fruition.

"It's passage will have the positive effect of making the commodity marketing program referendums more equitable," he said.

Under the legislation, which Cole introduced at the request ot the commodity boards, the number of votes required to reauthorize a marketing program would change from two-thirds to a simple majority.

The measure had the strong support of all six commodity promotion organizations affected by the bill.

Trees Pruned At Demo

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — A fruit pruning demonstration meeting will be held Saturday, April 4 from 1 p.m.-3 p.m. at Bertrams Fruit Farm, between Honesdale and Bethany on Rt. 670.

The information will be presented at several locations in the orchard, and participants will rotate from one location to another.

Topics to be presented will be insect and disease control, planting a new tree, training the 1-year-old tree, pruning a 5-year-old tree, and caring for a mature tree. A demonstration on pruning blueberries will be given at the conclusion of the meeting for those who wish to remain.

Instructors for the demonstration meeting will be Charles Bertram, orchard owner; Donald Overdorff, Wayne County extension agent; and Les Mang, local tree pruner.

The instruction will be designed for small scale fruit producers and home gardeners.

Suffolk Surprise

These four Suffolk lambs all belong to this ewe, not very common. Eldon and Gloria Baum, of Double El Farm in Littlestown, said they were surprised when they went to check their registered Suffolks and discovered one of their ewes gave birth to four lambs. Baum has raised sheep most of his life, but says he never had four lambs at once, before this.

Attentive Care Promotes Lamb Survival

"Lamb survival is a major problem in Pennsylvania sheep flocks," said Dr. Clair Engle, associate professor of animal science. "But there are a number of steps you can take to minimize lamb deaths."

Start with good nutrition for the pregnant ewe. First-lambing ewes and older ewes should get high-quality hay, because younger ewes are still growing and older ewes lose body condition more easily. A balanced mineral supplement with the major elements, salt, calcium and phosphorus fortified with selenium, will improve general health and metabolic function.

Producers should shear ewes a month before lambing, particularly if they plan to shed-lamb. This reduces the risk of external parasites at lambing time and creates more room in the lambing pen. Newly shorn ewes will seek shelter during bad weather either before or after lambing outside. Shearing the ewe also helps newborn lambs get their early fill of colostrum milk. Give newly shorn ewes four to six days of protection from wet and cold environments and be prepared to use high-quality feed to prevent pregnancy toxemia.

When the ewe delivers, be sure the new lamb is breathing properly. Clear out its mouth and nostrils of mucous. Breathing can be stimulated by gently stroking the inner nostril with a straw, passing smelling salts by the lamb's nose or administering mouth-to-mouth respiration. The lamb's heartbeat can be felt with a gentle touch in the area of the left forerib.

Next, make sure the lamb receives its first milk, or colostrum. Newborns must nurse as soon as possible. Colostrum supplies antibodies that protect the lamb from possible illness caused by stresses such as drafts, low temperatures, dampness, or malnutrition.

A lamb's ability to absorb antibodies diminishes greatly two hours after birth. By the time a lamb is eight hours old, it can absorb less than half of the antibodies that could have been absorbed shortly after birth.

It is important to clip a lamb's umbilical cord and treat the wound with tincture of iodine solution before placing it in a lambing pen. This helps prevent tetanus and other infectious organisms from attacking the lamb through the navel.

Keep lambs in a dry, draft-free environment. Respiratory problems such as pneumonia are sure killers of baby lambs. If a baby lamb gets a chill, it's much more likely to develop pneumonia and will never fully recover even if it lives.

Four days after lambing, separate ewes according to single, twin, triplet, and multiple births, and feed each enough to meet milk production needs. High quality hay needs to be part of your feeding program. A 150-160 pound ewe with a single lamb can get by with four pounds of quality hay with a 14 percent protein content.

Ewes with twins should get three pounds of hay and a pound of a 15 percent protein supplement containing corn, soybean, or linseed meal and possibly some corn for extra energy. Ewes with triplets should get three pounds of hay and two pounds of supplement.

Castration and tail docking also should be done at three to four days of age or when healthy lambs have bonded well with their mothers. Don't operate on a stressed or weak lamb until it's in better health.

After four days, lambs and ewes can be grouped in small communal pens, with six to eight ewes per group. Don't mix lambs differing in age by more than 10 days. Hungry older lambs can seek out the new mothers and take milk from younger lambs.

At this time you also may wish to expose young lambs to a pelleted creep ration. It's important to give lambs their first C and D enterotoxemia shot at this age. A second shot given 10 days later provides full protection from the overeating disease.

If your production system requires early weaning, a minimum age of six weeks is recommended. Waiting an extra two weeks to separate the lambs from their mothers helps lambs adjust to concentrate feeds. That ensures better growth and fewer health problams.

As you will note, there is a lot of variation in these forages. All but the pasture aftermath/regrowth were taken from the same producer. The pasture aftermath (8) is a very good feed that could provide the sheep's nutritional requirements except for water and minerals. Sheep had pastured this paddock in late August and a sample was taken from the regrowth on October 22.

The two first cutting Timothy samples (4 and 5) were similar in appearance other than some difference in maturity. The 12.6 percent protein sample (5) was cut early while the 8.6 percent protein sample (4) was the last of the first cutting baled.

Sample 7 really appeared to be a good grass-legume second cutting hay that would have probably sold for approximately $135 per ton on today's hay market. It looked as if it would test at least 12.5-13.0 percent protein and 60 percent T.D.N., but it did not test close to that. Performance from that sample would not be near what would be expected without having tested the sample. It was the highest in fiber of any of these samples. Also expected Sample 6, second cut Alfalfa, to have been higher in protein, maybe about 16 percent.

Samples 2 and 3 were taken off the same field, but 3 was round baled and stored outside. It was dry enough this year that very little waste occurred on the round bales, except on the bottom. A good amount of hay can be saved by stacking round bales inside, on tires, or something to keep them up off the ground.

The #1 sample oat straw tested quite well. In some ways, better than sample 4, it was higher in TDN and lower in fiber. Book values for oat straw are: crude protein - 4.4 percent and TDN - 47 percent.

The main point is that there are variations in the feed value of forages, and it may help your feeding program and flock performance if you check your forages so you know whether you are wasting feed or need to supplement with other feedstuffs.

Lamb Evaluation - Keystone Shepherd's Symposium

The session on lamb evaluation drew a lot of interest at the Shepherds' Symposium as participants had the opportunity to evaluate five lambs on foot and then compare the same lambs on the rail. Producers provided some of the lambs which were selected to try and show some of the variations that are in our market place.

Lamb and Wool Market Slightly Stronger

We are well into 1992 and the lamb market shows some signs of improving with the last American Sheep Industry Report carcass lamb in the northeast advanced $5.00/cwt. Wholesale carcass lamb prices were $1.35/pound for 55 pounds and under, compared to $1.15/pound this time last year, while heavy carcasses 65-75 pounds were $1.25/pound compared to $1.05/pound this time last year. Local slaughter lamb market report lists lambs at (old crop) $.55-$.65 per pound while new crop lambs are $.70-$.90 per pound.

The wool market is just starting some activity in the midwest and west with the fine and 1/2 blood wools doing fairly well. Midwest fine $.65-$.80; 1/2 - $.50-$.65 - medium wools $.25-$.50/pound; western fine wool has gone over the $1.00/pound price.

It appears that demand is up over last year and trading is moderately active. Look for a better price for wool than 1991, but don't anticipate a vase improvement because of the large surplus in Australia and other wool producing countries. Australia's wool production for 1991-1992 is forecast to be down by 22 percent, which should strengthen our market in a few years, if not now.

Milk Replacers

Lambs weaned at less than 4 weeks of age generally require the use of milk replacers.

There are several lamb milk replacers on the market. Most calf milk replacers do not contain enough fat to be successful with lambs. Best results are from replacers containing a minimum of 30 percent fat and 25 percent protein. Lambs should consume 2 to 4 pints of liquid milk (1/3 to 3/4 pounds of replacer powder) daily.

Reduce intake of replacer to encourage consumption of dry feed after 2 weeks of replacer. Have a good quality hay available, also.

Pork Board Reduces Budget

DES MOINES, Iowa — The National Pork Board voted recently to reduce its anticipated budget revenue for the current year by $3.6 million to $36.6 million.

The vote came at a regularly scheduled Pork Board meeting held in conjunction with the Pork Act Delegate Body's annual meeting at Pork Forum in Atlanta, Ga. The original 1992 budget was $40.2 million.

"The budget reduction is needed due to the impact that lower cash hog prices are expected to have on the checkoff revenue collections for the year," said Harold Trask, president of the National Pork Board and a pork producer from Renwick, Iowa.

Trask does not expect the reduced amount of revenue to affect any of the checkoff-funded activities slated for this year, including the expansion of the Pork-The Other White Meat® commercials to network and cable television.

"Pork Board reserve funds will make up this year's deficit caused by the reduced revenue level. These funds have been accumulated to handle circumstances such as these," said Trask.

The Pork Board also proposed a plan to the Pork Act Delegate Body to cap the growth of the delegate body at its present level (about 180 delegates) so it would not become unwieldy in size. The delegates adopted the plan, saying that the body, at its present size, could effectively and efficiently administer the checkoff.

Poly Square Means Healthier Calves

All-Season

Big Foot 5'x7'6"

The Poly Square Big Foot is constructed of Opaque material to eliminate the solar effect It blocks out sunheat-not sunlight. Poly Square's inverted ribs and 5'(W)x7'6"(L) make it the biggest unit on the market today and extremely wind resistant. It has no pop rivets which means no breaks or cracks for snow and rain to sift in. The unit weighs 100 pounds plus manger & buckets. And Poly Square Big Foot is large enough so your calf can lay in the center, away from cold walls in the winter. Use Poly Square with our side feed station and bottle holder which is perfect for use with a fence in a more traditional setting.

New Side Hay Feeder — Made especially for Poly Square Big Foot, no other unit has this feature. Also has a center roof vent for better air movement.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds
BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.
MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.
ON-FARM MIXING
A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that
- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

A Satisfied Customer...

JOHN R. RODGERS, of Belleville had three styles of fencing installed totaling a mile on his farm. John offers these comments. "I looked at others fencers and determined that Beaver Fence Systems had the people that could do a quality job and a quality fence to keep the cattle where I want them. The flexibility of the fence gives me full utilization of the land with maximum efficiency. The job was completed in two days including a barnyard fence, plus 6 and 4 wire pasture fencing."

The Eby Wrangler...

★ Better Looking ★ Better Built
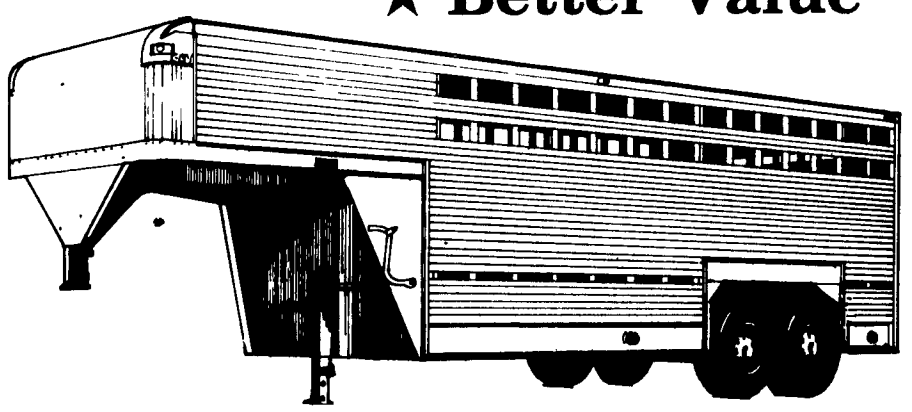
★ Better Value



The Wrangler Model 2000-OH represents a new level of value in livestock trailers.

Its standard specifications, top-quality components and proven engineering are found in other Wrangler models. But the new 2000-OH is less expensive. By standardizing height and width and by limiting the number of optional accessories, Eby lowers the production costs for this model. Now you can get all our traditional craftsmanship in a top-value gooseneck.

Unlike other "budget" trailers on the market, the Wrangler 2000-OH achieves a price breakthrough without compromising quality. Consider these features, standard on the new Wranger 2000-OH:

- 7,000# Dexter Torque-Flex axles
- Steel-belted radial tires, 10-ply rating
- Aerodynamic, attractive design
- Sealed beam lights with enclosed, externally accessible wiring
- 2-year warranty

Specifications

- Available in 14', 16', 18', 20' lengths
- 7' Width
- 6'6" Inside height

MILK CHECK

THOMAS JURCHAK
Dairy Specialist
Lackawanna County

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — Whenever the buying and selling of stocks on Wall Street gets out of balance there is usually a quick drop in the average price that brokers tend to call a "market correction".

I think something like that happened with the Minnesota - Wisconsin Price Series in February that dropped 50 cents to $11.21 for 3.5 milk of manufacturing grade.

Powder prices seemed to be strengthening and cheese prices, even though the demand was weak, hung right in there at $1.15 for 40 pound blocks at the National Cheese Exchange. However, if you look back to last October the price was up to $1.35; so it has dropped 20 cents from October to February.

The rule of thumb is that it takes 10 pounds of milk to make a pound of cheese, so the 20-cent drop in the price of cheese would translate into $2 a hundred for milk.

However, the M-W price peaked in October at $12.50 and fell only 79 cents to $11.71 in February. This was good for producers but hard on cheese makers and something had to give.

That's certainly not the whole story behind the lower M-W which has now dropped $1.29 since October and is still $1.17 better than last February, but cheese prices are still an important factor in setting the M-W price and Minnesota and Wisconsin still make 60 percent of the national supply of cheddar cheese.

Milk production in the upper Midwest is still below a year ago but they have lost fluid milk sales to the Southeast and Southwest where production has increased a lot after the changes in Class 1 differentials made by Congress in the 1985 farm bill.

Production in some of those areas has increased and they now have so much milk beyond their fluid needs that they have built manufacturing plants to process the surplus. This not only takes away the fluid market for the upper Midwest but also puts those Southern states in competition for cheese and powder markets.

Also, with the recent tilt in support prices by the Commodity Credit Corporation on butter and powder prices there seems to be a shift in milk supplies more toward the cheese plants than the butter/powder plants.

Good News

On the other hand, exports of dairy products to eligible countries under the Dairy Export Incentive Program written in the 1990 farm bill, are increasing almost weekly.

Up to February 13, USDA has accepted bids for export of 62 million pounds of dairy products to seven different countries.

For all of 1992 the total could go to nearly 400 million pounds to be sent to 84 countries at world prices with the difference made up by the USDA out of farm price support program funds.

It's also good to know that total cheese inventories in January were down 11 percent from last year and American cheese down 15 percent in private storage holdings. So, there's room for more increases in storage as we head toward the spring flush of milk production.

Powder markets have been showing more strength lately and, with inventories limited in the Midwest, many buyers are going to other regions for their supplies.

How Far Down

Everything I've mentioned so far is only a part of the picture if you want to speculate on how low the M-W price will fall this spring.

The most important information would be how much increase in milk production will producers provide.

So far this year there has been no evidence of lower supplies because of last year's drought, especially here in the Northeast.

In January, Pennsylvania was up 4 percent and New York 1 percent over last year and some milk went a long way to find a market.

In December corn in storage in Pennsylvania was down 45 percent from last year and hay stocks were down 23 percent, but it hasn't affected the milk supply.

Will feed purchases keep the milk flowing until next summer or will production drop off when the feed runs out?

Nationally, grain and hay supplies seem to be ample and many producers are buying now.

If you look at the past, the M-W price has gone down to the support price in seven of the last 10 years but that isn't likely this year, if for no

At $9.94 for 3.5 milk you would have to go back to 1979 to match it.

In addition, we don't have a lot of surplus stocks (with the exception of butter); domestic food assistance programs are increasing; export opportunities look good even outside of the export incentive program and I don't believe national milk production will increase much over last year any more this spring.

The flush is yet to come in April and May, but I don't see the M-W going below $10.50 and it may be down only to $10.75 if we get some breaks.

Even at that it will be 50 cents better than last year and maybe 75 cents better.

February Farm Price

That's enough about the future. Let's look at the present or at least your milk check for February milk.

The uniform or blend price in Order 2 at the 201-210 mile zone for 3.5 milk is $12.52 and that's 45 cents less than Januarv but $1.53 more than last February.

Class I and II milk dropped 38 and 30 cents each but the Class III milk took the full load of the M-W drop and went down 51 cents.

With 45 percent of your milk in Class III it hurt the blend price more.

Total receipts were up 1.7 percent over last month, even allowing for leap year; your Class I utilization slipped below 40 percent; and for the first time this year average daily deliveries per producer were up 8 percent.

Basic Formula Price

This is a term you should understand because it is the basis for pricing milk to handlers in all Federal Milk Marketing orders.

Right now the formula price is the M-W price adjusted to 3.5 percent butterfat using the Chicago Merchantile Exchange price for the current month.

You should know that it's the Basic Formula Price that will change in all federal orders in July, when USDA is to stop collecting the information needed to estimate the M-W every month.

When you hear about alternatives to the M-W, for which hearings should be held soon, you're listening to changes in the Basic Formula Price that has a direct impact on your milk check.

Time To Change

After writing this "Milk Market News" for 16 years it's probably time for a change.

The opportunity comes through Bob Yonkers, extension milk marketing specialist at Penn State, who invited me to participate in a new venture in marketing education.

He will be the editor of a new "Milk Market News" that will be expanded to four pages and contain articles by several contributors, mainly from Penn State, on a wider variety of topics some of which will contain more depth than we can get now on a single page.

It will still be issued monthly, but will be mailed from University Park. Anyone now receiving "Milk Market News" will be on the new mailing list so you won't have to sign up to get it.

What I would like you to do is tell me what changes you would like to see in the content — what information from the present "Milk Market News" should be continued and what should be omitted, and what kind of information should be added that would be useful for you.

It will probably take two months to make the change, so there's time yet to include your suggestions if you want to make any. Send them to me at 200 Adams Avenue, Scranton, Pa. 18503, or call me at (717) 963-6842 so we can do the best job of helping you to understand all the issues involved with milk marketing.

What Do You Do When Pseudorabies Returns?

MADISON, Wis.— You are doing everything on your farm to control disease, including pseudorabies. One day you go into the finishing barn and notice pigs off feed. Your latest lab tests are in the mail and you learn there are pseudorabies positive sows where you expect to find negative sows. Pseudorabies is back on your farm. What should you do now?

Dr. Monte McCaw, North Carolina State University College of Veterinary Medicine, said the most neglected group of pigs on the farm in terms of pseudorabies control is the finishers.

"Pseudorabies is usually passed from old animals to younger animals. If steps aren't taken to vaccinate and monitor finishing floors, pigs may show clinical signs, shed virus, and infect pigs of different ages. Proper use of vaccine can help to reduce the amount of virus that is being shed."

Several management practices have been successful in eliminating pseudorabies from the finishing floor.

- Vaccinate piglets with modified-live vaccine in the nursery and grower barn.
- Move growers and finishers all in/all out.
- Limit the amount of people and equipment traffic between premises and age groups.
- The most disruptive and costly alternative is a production break which should be considered as a last resort. It is best to discuss management practices with your practitioner to find what works best for your operation.

What should you do to prevent this from happening on your farm?

"Be vigilant," said McCaw. "Isolate animals for 21 days and test no earlier than 14 days after arrival on the premises.

"Do not add to the herd until serum test comes back negative. Do not purchase feeder pigs of unknown status and add them to your farrow-to-finish operation.

"Vaccinate sows and gilts before farrowing to maximize passive immunity to litter. Eradicating pseudorabies on a community basis is essential. Herds adjacent to infected herds may want to vaccinate to reduce possibility of an outbreak on their farms."

Legislation Clears Way For Ethanol Use

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Legislation has cleared the way for ethanol use to double in the next three to five years, which could require one in every 10 bushels of corn grown for ethanol production, according to one expert.

As of November, the Clean Air Act requires 39 U.S. cities with high carbon monoxide levels to maintain 2.7 percent oxygen content in all gasoline sold for at least four months a year. Ethanol creates a 3.6 percent oxygen content, and is the highest of any fuel oxygenate.

"The market potential is significant by volume," said Minnesota Ethanol Answer Man Larry Johnson. "Currently, ethanol production uses about one in every 20 bushels of corn grown, and that could be cut to one in 10 if corn growers can capture the market. But that's going to take some effort on their part."

In a session sponsored by Conoco, Inc. at the 34th annual National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) Corn Classic, Johnson educated and motivated farmers to go out and promote ethanol use at the local, state, and national levels.

He said the market potential for ethanol is tremendous, but methanol and methanol products (made from petroleum) are ethanol's major competition for the oxygenated products market.

"Promoting ethanol is the obligation of every U.S. corn farmer," Johnson said. "Once they begin to work with their local dealers, they find out how easy it is to sell their product and they see almost immediate results from doing it."

At the Corn Classic, Johnson provided attendees with do-it-yourself kits to give farmers direction in working with fuel suppliers and legislators.

Urban Tree Seminar In Cumberland Co.

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Trees and open spaces affect the beauty of Pennsylvania's towns and cities. But if urban trees aren't properly selected and maintained, they can become ugly, diseased, and hazardous. Roots can damage underground water pipes, sewers, sidewalks, curbs and streets, while branches can interfere with overhead utility lines.

An Urban Tree Seminar sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension will highlight some of the concerns facing communities, organizations, and homeowners that want to plant trees in their area.

William Elmendorf, Penn State instructor and program coordinator for the Urban and Community Forest Program, will discuss urban tree problems, benefits of good management systems, and sources of available funding.

The seminar is part of a new program administered by Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry and Penn State's School of Forest Resources to help communities manage their trees and open spaces. The Pennsylvania Urban and Community Forestry Program is the commonwealth's response to the national America the Beautiful initiative passed by Congress in 1990.

The initiative provided $466,700 to implement the program in Pennsylvania. The goal is to improve urban environments through tree plantings, research, technical assistance, and education.

The seminar will be held on Monday, April 6, between 7 p.m.-9 p.m. at the Blessed Katharine Drexel Church, located off Route 11 between Hogestown and New Kingston.

The seminar is free, but registration is required. Seating is limited. To register, call the Penn State Cooperative Extension office at (717) 240-6500; (717) 697-0371, ext. 6500; or (717) 532-7286, ext. 6500. Registration deadline is March 31.

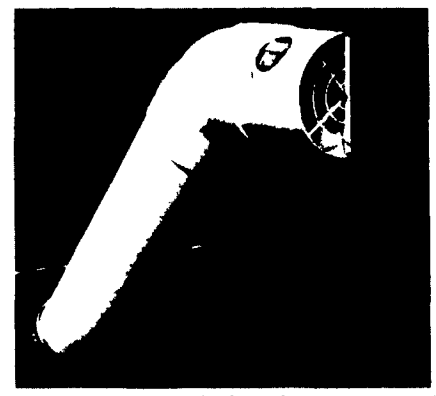
PUMP OUT PIT FAN



Many manure storage pits have been constructed without providing for ventilation of the pit, particularly in buildings constructed several years ago when pit storage was first popular.

A non-ventilated pit results in a build-up of harmful, caustic gases, such as carbon dioxide, hydrogen sulfide, methane, ammonia and mercaptans.

Hydrogen sulfide and carbon dioxide are heavier than air and, as the level of pit waste rises closer to the slats, the gases are forced closer to the animals.

Results of inhaling these gases may be deep, fast breathing from CO^2. Hydrogen sulfide is one of the most toxic gases to animals and humans associated with liquid manure storage. This gas can cause severe irritation to the eyes and respiratory system and sometimes can result in death

River Basin Commission Meets

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Susquehanna River Basin Commission met recently here at the Robert J. Bielo Building. There were a number of important actions taken and reports presented.

The commission adopted a resolution setting forth certain conditions to be included in a Pennsylvania DER modification order relating to operation of the Chester Water Authority's Octoraro Creek Reservoir, adopted a resolution including the proposed Curwensville storage reallocation project in the SRBC Comprehensive Plan for possible implementation, and selected for public hearing an alternative providing for an increase in the interim consumptive use fee from $0.06 per 1,000 gallons of water to $0.14 per 1,000 gallons of water.

The commission also approved an in-lieu-of tax contribution of $12,000 to the local taxing jurisdictions of Harrisburg, adopted a resolution rescinding the appointment of Richard A. Cairo as the acting director of the commission and the powers pertaining thereto, and tentatively decided to meet in the State of New York on May 14.

The commission also adopted the recommendations of staff with respect to the following project applications: Tower City Borough Authority, Penn Township Municipal Authority, City of Oneonta, Town of Kirkwood, and the Union Township Municipal Authority.

The commission heard reports on the Curwensville/Raystown/East Sidney storage reallocation projects, the Susquehanna River Basin Flood Forecasting Improvements Initiative, the need for repair/replacement of the USGS Wilkes-Barre River gage, and the possible discontinuance of funding by the state of New York for certain USGS gaging stations, 14 of which are located in the Susquehanna Basin.

The commission will be announcing further details on two public hearings to be held on a proposal to raise the commission's interim consumptive use fee from $0.06 per 1,000 gallons of water consumed to $0.14 per 1,000 gallons of water consumed. This fee is currently being paid by certain consumptive users who have not yet devised a means of providing makeup water for their consumptive losses.

The commission staff has produced a report explaining the reasons for the proposed increase, which is available upon request. Tentative plans are to hold a public hearing in Harrisburg in April and a second public hearing in conjunction with the commission's May meeting in New York state.

REAL

In Emergencies, Red Mail Box Becomes Handy

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — The little red mail box sounds like a prop in a romantic rural idyll. It is actually a safety concept recently introduced by the Pennsylvania Agricultural Safety Council.

It is the common sense farm approach that deals with the counterpart of a lot of safety regulations that the manufacturing industry has to deal with. Those rules and regulators are the employee and community right-to-know laws, OSHA, EPA, and Department of Labor regulations.

Because of their unique family structure, few employees and multiple responsibilities and roles, farms fall outside the regulations of many of these agencies.

The sad note now is that the farming safety record is miserable. Farming leads the nation in disabling injuries. Usually mining, law enforcement, and rescue services are the more hazardous occupations, but last year farming won.

Farmers suffered 5,300 disabling injuries per 100,000 workers. Mining, the second most dangerous occupation, had 4,000 injuries. The manufacturing industries had only 1,795 injuries per 100,000 workers.

That was not always the case. Early in the century, manufacturing led in worker disabilities. Much of the appeal and basis of employee unionization in the 1920s-1940s was based on the fact that industries just counted accidents as a cost of doing business.

Employee safety and mandated training by such regulatory agencies such as OSHA and Department of Labor only came about after the unions and politicians addressed the problem through worker safety training, followed by stiff enforcement action by regulators.

Agriculture needs to pay heed. If accidents and fatalities, especially among hired workers and children on the farm, continue to increase it is very reasonable to assume that government regulations and enforcement can't be far behind

So, back to the red mail box. How does it tie in? The mail box acts as a safety file full of valuable information. A regular mail box painted bright red should be mounted somewhere conspicuous on the farmstead - near the barn or shop or implement shed.

What is inside the box is the common sense key to the whole regulatory struggle. It should include some very basic information about the farm.

Why, you ask? As a farmer you know where everything is and take that knowledge for granted. But your hired man, your wife and family, or the rescue squad from town do not know. You may be away for the day at an auction, or worse yet, be the victim of that farm accident.

Important information is critical to those responding in an emergency. Having it all located at one spot is a big help.

A map should show where the pesticides are stored and where the L.P. tanks for the crop dryer are located. Is there a pond to pump fire water from? These are all critical pieces of information that can save money and lives when minutes count.

A list of what dangerous materials are stored and where they are is a great help. It could help the fire and rescue volunteers prevent contamination and protect themselves and your neighbors.

Knowing where hazardous materisls such as dairy sanitizing agents, pesticides, fertilizers, and fuels are at can help bring calm perspective to an emergency rather than surprise and danger behind every door and outbuilding.

MSDS or material safety data sheets can tell your family, hired man, or rescue personnel how to clean up and dispose of a spill or leak. There is a lot of common sense safety data on the MSDS sheet which should be in that little red mail box.

Because you may not be there, another valuable piece of information in the red mail box is a list of important phone numbers, including the number of your next of kin, your wife's phone number at work, or the phone mumber of your parents or relatives.

Also important can be the phone number of your veterinarian and family doctor and equipment dealers.

Finally, list where your tools are kept and your owner manuals for the farm machinery. Interestingly, the impressive array of rescue tools carried by emergency squads are virtually useless on farm equipment. The jaws-of-life tools or hydraulic jacks look really impressive on the evening cop and rescue shows on TV when they slice through the thin sheet metal and plastic at a car wreck scene. Those tools are puny toys when matched against the heavy steel guards, case hardened shafts, and frames of today's farm machinery.

Letting the rescue squad know where your cutting torch and large sized tool sets are located, and the heavy winches and timbers for cribbing may actually save your own life in a farm machinery accident. The owner manuals list disassembly directions and how to extract people and limbs trapped in the equiment.

More than one equipment dealer has helped local rescue personnel pull mangled farmers out of their own equipment. The little red mail box costs very little. You may never have to use it, but it can save untold lives and fortunes.

DuPont Lowers Price Of Extrazine II

WILMINGTON, Del.— There's good news for corn growers this spring.

DuPont has announced a $1-per-acre price reduction on Extrazine II, a preemergence grass and broadleaf herbicide for corn.

The program is simple. There are no forms to fill out and growers receive on-the-spot savings at their dealership.

"The price reduction comes at an opportune time, just when growers are planning their preemergence weed control programs," said Joe Foresman, Extrazine II product manager. "The program will save many of our customers hundreds of dollars."

The savings are based on a one-gallon-per-acre rate of Extrazine II 4L or 4.4 pounds per acre of Extrazine II DF, Foresman said. Retail prices may vary.

Extrazine II can be applied early preplant, preplant incorporated (PPI), preemergence, or postemergence. In no-till and conservation tillage, it offers excellent burndown of existing weeds and up to eight weeks of residual control.

The product provides control of tough grasses such as foxtail, fall panicum, crabgrass, and barnyardgrass and broadleaves such as velvetleaf, lambsquarters, cocklebur, pigweed, jimsonweed, and others.

Extrazine II contains one-third less atrazine than other premixes.

Dekalb Honors Growers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Richard D. Schmalz of Doylestown, was honored by DeKalb Plant Genetics for his state first place yield, non-irrigated division in the 1991 national grain sorghum production contest.

R. Gregory Manners of Ringoes, N.J. was honored by DeKalb Plant Genetics for his state first place yield in non-irrigated division in the 1991 national grain sorghum production contest.

Schmalz and Manners received awards at a reception held in conjunction with the National Grain Sorghum Producer's convention recently in Kansas City, MO.

To qualify as a state first place winner, Schmalz planted DeKalb brand DK37 seed, which produced 105 bushels per acre. He had 186.04 percent of the county average. His outstanding yield ranked him among DeKalb's 21 national and state first place winner.

Schmalz, who has been farming for 38 years, also grows soybeans, corn, and wheat. This is his first yield contest win.

To qualify as a state first place winner, Manners planted DeKalb brand DK37 seed, which produced 139.26 bushels per acre. He had 246.48 percent of the county average. His outstanding yield ranked him among DeKalb's 21 national and state first place winners.

Manners, who has been farming for 18 years, also grows wheat, hay, corn, rye, soybeans, and other crops. This is his first yield contest win.

Contestants were scored against the five-year average established for their county by the crop reporting service. Winners are those producers whose yields were highest in relation to the county average. The national contest winners were honored at an awards banquet in Kansas City.

- Many speed choices. The synchropower transmission with a separate synchro-reverser offers 12 forward and 12 reverse speeds, planetary final drive and a self-adjusting, hydraulically-actuated clutch. An optional creeper transmission provides 16 forward and 16 reverse speeds; a dual speed option has 24 forward and 12 reverse and a power Hi-Lo transmission provides 30 forward and 30 reverse speeds. All tractor models are available as either 2WD or AWD.
- PTO power and versatility. The independent PTO operates at 540/1,000 rpm with 6- and 21-spline shafts and has a hydraulically-actuated wet PTO clutch. The Category II/I 3-point hitch has a convenient rear remote control and is equipped with telescopic stabilizers. Optional telescopic lower links are also available.
- Quality performance and comfort. The 6600 Series tractors ride on premium Goodyear radial tires. They have hydrostatic power steering, a tilt-telescopic steering wheel, hydraulically-actuated wet disc brakes and a mechanically-actuated differential lock. AWD models have four-wheel brakes for 40% better braking and an operator controlled front differential lock for tighter turns. All operated from the comfort of the enclosed cab.

To experience the user-friendliness of the 6600 Series tractors, or any of the "orange" line of AGCO Allis tractors ranging from 40 to 128 PTO hp, stop by or call us soon.

Penn State Receives Funds To Start Farm Safety Endowment

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Agricultural Safety Council (PASC) has given $12,000 to create a farm safety endowment in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Our purpose in establishing this endowment is to promote agricultural safety and health among the citizens of Pennsylvania," said Robert E. Faubel, PASC president and property staff adjuster at Old Guard Mutual Insurance Company in Lititz.

"This endowment will be used to develop strong linkages for the dissemination of safety information and to promote overall public awareness of the risks associated with farming activities," said Faubel.

The fund will support extension programs, research, and other components of the Agricultural Safety and Health program in Penn State's agricultural and biological engineering department.

"We're delighted to accept this generous gift from the council," said Dr. Lamartine F. Hood, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences. "This endowment will benefit the entire agricultural community."

"Farming remains one of the most hazardous professions in the nation," said Sam Steel, senior project assistant in the agricultural safety and health program. "Our goal is to raise public awareness of the risks faced by farmers and other agricultural workers. This fund will help us reach more people."

The endowment may support the purchase of a farm safety van, which would transport agricultural safety exhibits and demonstrations to functions ranging from county fairs to extension meetings.

"The van would make it easier to bring those exhibits to a wider audience," Steel said. "Our ultimate goal is to reduce agriculture-related accidents and health problems by making agricultural workers more careful."

One exhibit demonstrates how quickly accidents can occur around power take-off shafts that drive grain elevators and other farm equipment. "This demonstration tests an individual's reaction time, revealing the nearly superhuman speed necessary to avoid serious harm when accidents occur," Steel said. "People leave the exhibit realizing that powered machinery should be treated with caution and respect."

Other exhibits compare various types of respirators and air filters, demonstrate the hazards of improper corn harvester operation, and illustrate how tractor rollovers occur and can be prevented.

To raise additional support, the PASC is offering a limited edition Keystone Farm Safety Tractor model. The collectible model represents a 1967 Allis-Chalmers Model 170, which featured an early version of a factory installed rollover protection structure with seatbelt. Proceeds from the sale of 500 numbered tractors will go to the endowment.

For more information about the model or farm safety issues, contact the Pennsylvania Agricultural Safety Council, 246 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 863-7710.

Foundation Honors Ohio Fertilizer Researcher

MANCHESTER, Mo. — Dr. Donald J. Eckert, associate professor of agronomy, Ohio State University, was named Researcher of the Year by the Fluid Fertilizer Foundation (FFF) at its annual symposium recently in Scottsdale, Ariz.

Eckert received the award for his outstanding research on nitrogen management in corn production and for enhancing market opportunities for fluid fertilizers, according to Dr. Robert Munson, vice president of research and market development of the National Fertilizer Solutions Association (NFSA).

"Dr. Eckert's work is significant because it provides dealers and farmers with information to increase fertilizer use efficiency, which is critical from both an environmental and economic standpoint," said Munson.

Eckert has been a faculty member at Ohio State University for 15 years. His research on soil fertility and best management practices has helped growers increase yields while also protecting the environment.

WORK WATCH

The Work Watch Is Back!

In the mid-1980's we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. They needed a watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps, and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard, and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned. Now, due to the past success and the present need, we are again offering the work watch through Lancaster Farming.

Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when you irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out. Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt. While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable. Finally, the BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per year, and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all the time, without any effort on your part.

A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty. If your work watch stops running within FIVE YEARS of the date of purchase, the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge. This is one of the longest warranties in the watch industry. The manufacturer's confidence in this watch means that you can have confidence in its durability and can know that this is the only work watch you will need to buy for the next five years.

Saul High School Teaches City Kids All About Ag

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

PHILADELPHIA — What do state farm shows and city kids have in common?

Saul High School, located in the Roxboro area of northwest Philadelphia, of course.

During the Pennsylvania Farm Show in January, nine students from Saul — a high school geared to an agriculture curriculum — showed hogs as part of their "hands-on" learning experience essential to school studies.

Students enroll from all over Philadelphia and surrounding areas from grades 9 through 12, according to Jim Tatro, an agriscience instructor at the high school.

Tough curriculum

"Our curriculum is pretty tough," said Tatro. "We don't have the discipline problems that many urban schools have."

In fact, to enter Saul, students have to pass several reviews, including an intensive academic program, interview, and pass a series of behavioral and screening tests to enter. They must earn acceptable grade point averages, show an abiding interest in agriculture, and experience a special orientation process. Out of 600 applications, only 225 are accepted.

A high percentage of the students who are graduated from Saul, according to Tatro, enroll in college. "Eighty percent of our students go on to college," said Tatro. Fifty percent of them enroll in college agriculture programs, including ag education, food science, veterinary science, and related industries.

One recent graduate, Kathy Jones, is a an ag teacher in the Upper Dauphin School District.

Student is Ph.D.

Another student who was graduated from Saul is working toward a Ph.D. in reproductive physiology at Arkansas State.

A former student of Saul, Richard Haas is the owner and operator of Cherry Hill Orchards on New Danville Pike in Lancaster. Haas attended Saul as a ninth grader in 1951. (When Haas was in ninth grade, Saul was known as the Widener Farm School.) After high school, he attained a horticulture degree from Delaware Valley College (at that time, known as the National Agriculture College) in 1958.

Others work in pharmaceutical companies and other types of non-agricultural industries.

The school, according to Tatro, was founded in 1946 and served as a vocation school. Through the years, it developed working relationships with area veterinary colleges and universities, and has ties to Delaware Valley College and Penn State as well as The University of Delaware and other colleges and universities.

There are a total of 16 ag teachers at Saul, who are also trained in an array of ag disciplines, including dairy, beef, swine, and poultry management, in addition to horticulture, floriculture, greenhouse management, and landscaping, said Tatro.

Two farms

Six hundred students from grades 9-12 are currently enrolled in the program. The school comprises two farms, and manages 21 registered Holsteins (milking average just under 21,000 pounds), 20 head of Polled Hereford cattle (with the cooperation from Dunwalk Farms in New Jersey), 20 sheep (mixed flock), and several

Baltimore Releases Cattle Trial Results

TOWSON, Md. — Five Baltimore County farmers who began a cattle trial in August to attempt to raise the marbled beef demanded by the Japanese market have finished their experiment.

The steers were fed a high protein diet for 140 days. When the 12 head were slaughtered in early January, no beef qualified for the Japanese market.

However, a majority did make the Kosher market, with farmers receiving a 9 cent per pound average premium. Participant George Strohmer said that answered his question as to whether there was a potential for this market.

The Economic Development Commission of Baltimore County (EDC) worked with the J. W. Treuth & Sons packing house, Oella, in the effort to get Baltimore County beef into the Japanese market. Treuth supplies Kosher and restaurant markets in the East.

"There are definitely premium dollars for growers if their beef is consistently higher in quality," said Vernon Treuth. "Our yearly average shows 38 to 43 percent of the 20,000 head we slaughter here qualify for Kosher. Seven out of 12 of these cattle passed the high standards for this specialty beef. In fact, really, it's even higher, since two were Holsteins and they don't go into that market. That Kosher percentage was very impressive."

"Selling the carcasses was advantageous," said Dr. Scott Barao, extension livestock specialist at the University of Maryland at College Park, who set up the trial.

The animals were fed Tend-R-Leen, a high-protein feed marketed by Southern States Cooperative, a farmers' cooperative headquartered in Richmond, Va. The cattle were fattened on the 350-acre farm of Richard "Dick" Price in Phoenix. Price is a member of the board of Southern States.

"The feed conversion rate was an incredible 7.95 to 1," said Barao. "This is tremendous for a total trial. I am pretty excited about the potential of using Tend-R-Leen with any kind of on-farm feed."

Barao cited other favorable statistics: "We didn't lose any livers, didn't founder any cattle, and I noticed no acidosis."

Treuth believes that farm raising was important to the success of the trial, since the stress reduction aided gain. "We need a reasonable source of supply for high quality cattle," said Treuth, "and that generates extra money for everybody."

"This was a good learning process for all of us," said Price. "We were fortunate to be able to work with the EDC, constantly reaching out for specialized markets, and a meat packer who was trying to help farmers. And we are pleased that so many of the steers made a specialty market, even though it wasn't the Japanese one."

"We hope this experiment promotes Baltimore County as a steady source of supply to Treuth for a niche market," said Lloyd Reynolds, agricultural liaison between county government and the farmers. "We appreciate the cooperation of the farmers, Treuth packers, the University of Maryland's extension services, and Southern States' feed division."

The group is considering a second trial, adding a couple of animals and beginning earlier in the year, with smaller cattle.

"We started August 21 with 800- to 1,000-pound steers and killed January 10," Price said. "The total gain was 5,315 pounds. I think if we'd begun with lighter animals, 450 to 500 pounds, we would not have seen the drop-off in rate of gain on the last weigh-in day on the farm."

Should the second program be set up, half the animals would be sold when the gain rate starts to drop and the other half would go to 220 days, no matter what the gain.

Also, Price, who raises Holsteins, would not put them into the next trial, even though over the years he has been satisfied with their excellent gain rate. "I might try for animals with genetic qualifications that would get them into the specialty market," he said. "I think as farmers today we must become more aware of marketing and of specialty markets."

Barao believes genetics points the route toward meeting Japanese requirements but that the Kosher market offers opportunity now. The group, pleased at these test results, still hasn't given up on the Japanese niche.

The school also maintains six quarterhorses in their equine program, a nursery and landscape area, and a "one-hole golf course," said Tatro.

"There is a huge interest in the landscape business in this area," said Tatro, noting that many graduates have readily developed careers in that industry.

At the Pennsylvania Farm Show, nine Saul students showed in various purebred and market classes. "Last year was our best year," said Tatro. The students won champion Yorkshire and reserve champion Berkshire classes.

Field trips

The students also go on various field trips, including recent trips to Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, Moyers Packing, and to Herb Schick's farm (the secretary-treasurer of the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council).

The Pork Producers Council has been instrumental in providing help for the school in selecting hogs, helping with livestock judging, and other matters.

In addition, the various livestock show buyers, including Hatfield Meats, have been instrumental in supporting student projects at the school, according to Tatro.

The Pennsylvania Farmer's Association (PFA) has pledged long-time support to the school program.

"I've been actively involved with the kids for some time," said Jan Carson, PFA news media director.

"They are taught to understand farms and how farming works," she said. "At the Farm Show, it helps them relate to the other youngsters in learning good farm stewardship.

"The program provides a lot of students with many benefits, and the PFA strongly supports their efforts."

Livestock Notes

1992 — The Year Of The Consumer

H. Louis Moore
Penn State Ag Economist

Now that two months of 1992 are behind us, the status of the economy is coming into better focus. The rate of unemployment at 7.1 percent is slightly higher than at the end of 1991, but more people are working than ever before. It appears that consumers are increasing their purchasing somewhat, and the recession should end by mid-year.

The end of the recession, however, will not lead to a boom as has been the case when most recessions ended. The huge federal deficit, the decline in the defense industry, and foreign competition will slow down the recovery.

In recent years, livestock enterprises have generally been more profitable than crop enterprises. Livestock enterprises will be less profitable in 1992 because of a substantial expansion in meat production. Beef output will increase 1 percent in 1992 after increasing 1 percent in 1991.

All of the increase in beef tonnage will come from increased output per animal, not from increased animal numbers. Expected to exceed last year's production by about 8 percent, pork leads all meats in production increases in 1992. Profitable hog enterprises in 1989-1990 led to the current expansion, and pork output in 1992 will probably be up 1.2 billion pounds from last year.

Veal is the only meat which will decline in output in 1992 (-8 percent). Veal output makes up only one-half of 1 percent of the total meat supply. Lamb production will increase 2 percent, broiler output will be up at least 4 percent, and turkey production will increase at least 3 percent. All this extra meat will truly make 1992 the year of the consumer.

Meat consumption has been on a record setting pace since 1982, and 1991 consumption was a record 216 pounds (retail weight). Because of the expansion in pork and poultry meat, consumption could reach 223 pounds in 1992. Consumers will only eat an extra seven to eight points of meat this year if the price is a little lower, especially in the first half while recession is still with us.

Livestock profitability will be near the break-even point for most producers in 1992. Most producers finishing animals will cover their feed and feeder animal costs but will have difficulty in covering total production costs. The big unknown for 1992 will be the cost of feed. Grain growers will increase acreage in 1992, but carryovers are so low that weather concerns could cause great fluctuation in grain prices.

On the positive side for livestock producers is evidence that inflation seems to be under control. The inflation rate was just 3.1 percent in 1991 and could be even lower this year. Interest rates are at a two-decade low which will benefit many producers who refinance their mortgates and borrow for production expenses. Lowering their interest costs helps farmers improve their net income. The cost of most production items in 1992 will be steady to only slightly higher.

While this will not be a banner profit year for most livestock producers, there will be opportunities for producers to reorganize and to consolidate some debts which result in lower total costs.

Effects Of Stress On Nutrition Of Feeder Cattle

John W. Comerford
Penn State Beef Specialist

Because newly-arrived feeder cattle are usually stressed, they are more prone to attack from disease-causing organisms. This double-jeopardy is caused by a reduction in the animal's ability to ward off disease in these situations because the stress leads to dehydration, a reduction in ruminal activity, and a failure to eat and drink for an extended period of time.

Table 1. Nutritional Needs of a Calf (400 Lbs.)

Feed Consumption	Gain	Protein	Ca	P
1% body weight	0	5%	.3%	.3%
1% body weight	.5 lbs	21.2%	.55%	.5%
2% body weight	0	7.0%	.16%	.16%
2% body weight		2.0 lbs	15.2%	.6%	.46%
3% body weight		1.0 lbs	9.2%	.11%	.11%
3% body weight		2.5 lbs	11.1%	.48%	.35%

This table tells us that it is virtually impossible to have a ration that will result in positive weight gain when intake is restricted to 1 percent of body weight. Further, it takes at least 2 percent of body weight of intake to result in economical weight gain. However, this rate of intake may be hard to realize in stressed calves, which is reinforced in Table 2.

As this table illustrates, it will take more than a week for calves to exceed even 1 percent of their body weight as feed intake. And for calves that get sick, it may take more than a month after arrival at the feedlot to have a feed intake high enough (2 percent of body weight) to result in economical weight gains.

The following feed practices should help increase feed intake shortly after arrival and therefore reduce nutritional factors contributing to sickness in these calves:

(1) Use palatable starter rations such as good grass hay and grain feeds. Avoid using silage (many calves have never seen it before), urea, and by-product feeds.

(2) Add potassium at 1.0 to 1.4 percent of the diet. This is the optimum level, and more potassium in the diet may actually reduce feed consumption and increase morbidity.

(3) Add niacin to the diet at 250 parts per million. This seems to stimulate intake and will increase average daily gains after calves recover from disease outbreaks.

(4) Supplement the diet so that each calf receives one part per million selenium and 100 IU vitamin E daily, there is evidence that selenium supplements will help to stimulate the immune response in calves.

(5) Addition of Lactobacillus and other probiotic treatments will help stimulate intake and weight gains during the first 28 days, but there is a wide variation in the amount of response to the products.

Table 2. Feed Intake Of Stressed Feeder Calves
(Feed intake as percent of body weight)

	Health	Morbid
1-7 days	1.55%	.90%
1-28 days	2.71%	1.84%
1-56 days	3.03%	2.68%

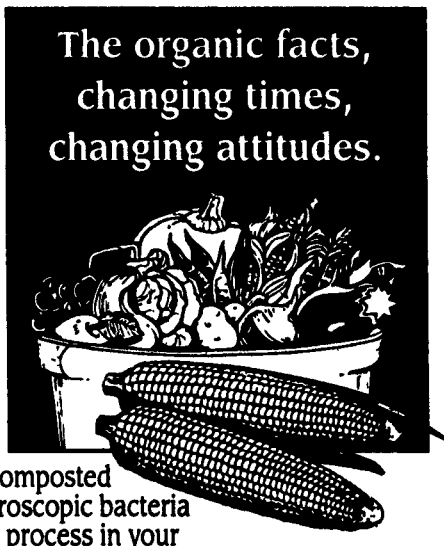
How can Erth-Rite's N-P-K analysis of 1-1-1 fulfill your plants' needs? And then some?



Instant N-P-K availability

Erth-Rite organic fertilizer gives your plants 3% N-P-K to get up and going. Research shows this is all they can use instantly from any fertilizer, anyway.

Plus long-term N-P-K availability

But Erth-Rite is also a composted soil builder. It is filled with microscopic bacteria that continue their composting process in your soil. This process releases minerals and trace elements, fixes nitrogen from the air, and holds nutrients where plants can make use of them. Over several months, more and more N-P-K is available to your crops as they grow.

High yields with Erth-Rite

Since 1961 we have shown farmers the proof they need: healthy, lush, productive crops. In fact, with a careful program, you can expect yields equal or superior to the results of any chemical fertilizer system.

Benefits you wouldn't expect from other fertilizers

Because it restores health and vitality in your soil, Erth-Rite provides unexpected benefits:

- Plants develop healthier root systems as they work to gather nutrition. They crowd out weeds and can lower your need for herbicide.
- Deeper, stronger roots allow plants to better withstand the withering effects of draught.
- Trace elements from Erth-Rite make their way into your feed crops. This can actually reduce your need for costly feed supplements and can improve the health of your herd. And, since your animals are healthier, it can dramatically lower your vet bills.
- With the full range of nutrition they need, plants are more resistant to insects. Farmers report a dramatic reduction in the need for insecticides.
- Although more expensive per ton than chemical fertilizer, you use less per acre. You can actually save money by changing to Erth-Rite.
- Because Erth-Rite is natural, organic and 100% safe, you don't have to worry about government restrictions, product liabilities, or personal safety when handling it.

Give Erth-Rite a try.

We don't expect you to believe everything you read and make a 100% change over night. But we do want you to give us a try—a one-field test plot. You'll see for yourself that organic farming with Erth-Rite produces excellent results. So talk to us about planning for this year or next.

We'll need the results of a soil test. For your convenience we have our own lab, but we'll be happy to work with any other scientific analysis.

At Erth-Rite, we have the products and the know-how to help you farm successfully.

We have bins and spreaders for rent and we also do custom spreading. Give us a call for more information and the name of your nearest dealer.

Bale Spear Bolts To Bucket

LITCHFIELD, Ill. — The new BBS-10 bolt-on bucket bale spear from Worksaver, Inc. features a 2 1/4 inch diameter spear that is 30 percent stronger than a 2 inch diameter spear.

The BBS-10's design allows the bolt to hold the spear on the bucket, not the weight of the bale. The load force is placed against the bottom of the loader bucket, unlike other bolt-on designs that have the load pulling the bolt through the bucket.

The bolt-on bucket bale spear is easy to install, requiring a 1/2 inch bolt hole. The BBS-10 has a 1500 pound bale capacity. Featuring patented "Bullet" nose spear design, the BBS-10 easily penetrates bales. Two 1 1/4 inch stabilizer spikes ensure secure transport of bale.

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

- ★ New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
- ★ 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
- ★ Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry. The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up. By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability. Our studies have shown taht 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure. We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows:

*5 yr. - 100% parts & labor against sprag
*2 yr. - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit
Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645.00 and carles a *2 yr. - 100% parts & labor warranty.

* Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450.00
We also have units & parts available to rebuild old style TA's, including ramp & carrier sets.
NEW price on ramps & carriers - $200.00

Call For Special Price!

Here's a compact tractor you can be happy with...no matter what your size. Too short? The seat adjusts to keep you close to the pedals. Long legs? Plenty of room to fit them in. Need more room between you and the steering wheel? The seat rises as it's pushed back to give you breathing room. There's even a nice, clean, uncluttered deck in case you have big feet. All controls are at your finger-tips and all indicators are clearly visible.

And your choice of transmissions makes it easy for anyone to drive. Come on in and make your decision on models from 14.7 gross engine horsepower to 42.6.

AGCO ALLIS

OPERATOR FRIENDLY

The AGCO Allis 6600 Series row crop tractors are engineered to put you comfortably in control. In addition to a comfortable cab or a platform and ROPS, you get low maintenance, low operating costs and a 4-year/4,000-hour warranty.

- Trouble-free, air- and oil-cooled engine. The 6600 Series tractors are equipped with low-maintenance, 4-cylinder, air- and oil-cooled diesel engines. The 6670 provides 63 PTO hp and the 6680 73 PTO hp, both with 22% torque rise The 6690 has a turbocharged 81 PTO hp engine that delivers a 28% torque rise, as well as the best fuel economy in its class
- Many speed choices. The synchropower transmission with a separate synchro-reverser offers 12 forward and 12 reverse speeds, planetary final drive and a self-adjusting, hydraulically-actuated clutch An optional creeper transmission provides 16 forward and 16 reverse speeds, a dual speed option has 24 forward and 12 reverse and a power Hi-Lo transmission provides 30 forward and 30 reverse speeds All tractor models are available as either 2WD or AWD
- PTO power and versatility. The independent PTO operates at 540/1,000 rpm with 6- and 21-spline shafts and has a hydraulically-actuated wet PTO clutch. The Category II/I 3-point hitch has a convenient rear remote control and is equipped with telescopic stabilizers. Optional telescopic lower links are also available.
- Quality performance and comfort. The 6600 Series tractors ride on premium Goodyear" radial tires. They have hydrostatic power steering, a tilt-telescopic steering wheel, hydraulically-actuated wet disc brakes and a mechanically-actuated differential lock. AWD models have four-wheel brakes for 40% better braking and an operator controlled front differential lock for tighter turns All operated from the comfort of the enclosed cab

To experience the user-friendliness of the 6600 Series tractors, or any of the "orange" line of AGCO Allis tractors ranging from 40 to 128 PTO hp, stop by or call us soon.

WINCO PTO GENERATORS
Power fails at the worst possible time—restart your whole farm with the number one PTO generator the world over!

ENERGX Corporation, the world's largest PTO generator manufacturer, designs Winco PTO units from the ground up for farm standby power. Built to handle motor loads for the duration of the power outage, and rated for continuous duty operation.

Big motors in your feed room groan to a halt. Vent fans, milk coolers stop. There are no lights, no heating, and no power in the house. For how long? Nobody knows! But with a Winco PTO generator, your farm will be back in business in minutes.

Winco PTO generators are available in sizes from 8KW to 75KW continuous duty. The Maxi-Watt® field coil windings provide extra capacity to restart a big farm at the busiest time of the day.

Winco PTO units will run a combination motor load of up to 1 HP per KW.

ORDER YOUR NEW SILO WITH A FIBERDOME CHUTE OR REPLACE YOUR OLD WORN OUT CHUTE

fiberdome SILO CHUTE
made with fiberglass, the material of the future — and proven in the past —

The Fiberdome chute is designed and engineered to be installed on most types of silos. Its structure allows it to withstand the toughest beating the weather elements or silo unloading systems can possibly dish out.

The chute is constructed in full 7 ½' sections to minimize the number of joints. Connecting joints have a 2 ½" tongue and groove design to keep feed in and water out. The large ribbed construction adds stability and strength.

Fiberglass is durable, corrosion-proof, attractive and translucent, allowing sunlight to pass through. Sunlight quickly dries interior moisture in the chute. The hard gleaming gelcote surface will remain for many years.

ARE YOU FEEDING YOUR HOGS TO THEIR GENETIC POTENTIAL?

To Determine Your Lean Gain Potential Rating

1. Know Your Hog's Backfat At The 10th Rib
2. Calculate Days to Market 40 Lb. to 240 Lb.

LGPR RATING CHART

Days 40 lb. - 240 lb.	BACKFAT (10th Rib, Inches) 0.8	0.9	1.0	1.1	1.2	1.3	1.4	1.5	1.6
